REACH'S AMERICAN LEAGUE GUIDE.

PREFACE.

The twentieth annual issue of the Reach Official Base Ball Guide, which is presented to the public at the opening of the season of 1902, marks a new departure—or, rather, a return to former happy conditions.

When the two-league major league principle ruled in base ball, and the old American Association was a great and prosperous organization, the Reach Guide was the official book of that body. Now that the old conditions have been restored and the American League has won its place as a great major league, the Reach Guide again comes into its own as the official hand-book of the American League—legitimate successor to the old Association.

As the official Guide of the American League the Reach Guide contains in completed form everything of interest—both official and unofficial—concerning the doings, records and averages of that organization. Nothing has been left unrecorded and everything has been so exhaustively narrated as to warrant the complete satisfaction of the magnates, managers, players and patrons of the new major league.

But, while the Reach Guide is now distinctly an official Guide for the American League, it has not discarded any of the features which have made it for years a valuable general guide. It still covers the entire base ball field, doing ample justice to the National League and the various minor leagues, all of whose official records and averages are given in full. To thus cover the entire field exhaustively the Reach Guide has been amplified and many more pages have been added, regardless of expense.

Under the circumstances we believe we can safely claim for the Reach Official American League Guide for 1902 unexampled excellence in this field of base ball literature—a broad claim truly, but one that we are confident will be amply sustained by both critics and public.

THE A. J. REACH COMPANY.

THE BASE BALL SEASON OF 1901.

WHILE the season of 1900 was what is known in base ball parlance as an "off year," the season of 1901 was remarkably and unexpectedly successful, despite the fact that the professional game was in a semi-disorganized condition, owing to the war between the old National League and the expanded American League. It was generally expected that there would be a division of public interest and patronage, and a laxity of discipline among players. Happily these expectations were not fulfilled.

EVIDENCE OF SUCCESS.

While, of course, there was a division of patronage where the American and National League competed, yet, on the whole, the attendance was everywhere greatly increased over that of the preceding year in which only one major league flourished. There was also a vastly stimulated interest in the country at large, due, doubtless, to the publicity given base ball by the American League's expansion movement and the partisanship aroused thereby. One convincing proof of the greatly increased public interest in the National game is furnished by the fact that the production and sale of base ball paraphernalia by the A. J. Reach Company exceeded any year in the history of that long-established house, a prosperous condition shared by many other sporting goods manufacturers.

THE MAJOR LEAGUES.

The greatest success in the base ball arena was scored by the expanded American League, which firmly established itself in the great cities of Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, which it had entered only in the spring of 1901. The National League, despite the invasion of two of its great Eastern cities, the loss of many of its finest star players, and many conflicting dates with the American League, enjoyed a fairly successful season—thanks to the fine patronage in the cities where there was no opposition.

THE MINOR LEAGUES.

The smaller, or minor, leagues also, collectively, enjoyed the most successful season in many years, the most notable exception being the great Eastern League, which suffered from a lop-sided pennant race. The greatest success of 1900, the new Western League, did not do as well as expected with its expanded circuit, but, nevertheless, all of the clubs made both ends meet, despite a walk-over race for Kansas City. The Western Association also found it difficult to finish the season, but this was due to the fact that the circuit was unbalanced, the teams very unequal and the management all-round very poor. A crowning misfortune was the financial failure of the President, Mr. William Meyer, of Fort Wayne.

ENJOYED PROSPERITY.

But these few instances of poor luck are more than offset by the good fortune that attended the New England League, Indiana-Illinois-Iowa League and the Southern League. All of these leagues made great financial and artistic successes, and firmly established themselves for another campaign. Singularly, these three leagues were enjoying a first season, thus proving the wisdom of letting an overworked minor league field occasionally lie fallow for a year or two. The California and Pacific Northwest Leagues also benefited greatly from a pronounced base ball revival in those sections. The New York League and Connecticut League also had a fairly successful season.

IN LINE AGAIN.

The only pronounced failures of 1901 were the Virginia-North Carolina League and the Pennsylvania League, and their collapse had no effect on the general situation, as failure was discounted from the start. With the exception of the Virginia-North Carolina League all of the above mentioned leagues will be in the field again in 1902, with the addition of a powerful sectional league in the Middle West, namely, the American Association, under the lead of President Thomas J. Hickey, formerly of the Western League; and a number of small Inter-State and State Leagues. The total number of base ball leagues for 1902 will probably total eighteen.

CHRONOLOGY OF 1901.

Following is the record of the most important events and happenings in the base ball world during the memorable year 1901:

JANUARY.

- 4th.—Baltimore American League Club incorporated.
- 10th.—Organization of the Indiana-Illinois-Iowa League, with M. H. Sexton as President.
- 17th.—American League secured grounds in Boston, Mass.
- 18th.—American Association circuit announced. Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, in the East; Detroit, Milwaukee, Louisville and Indianapolis in the West, at meeting held in New York City.
- 21st.—Philadelphia American League Club secured ten years' lease on grounds, Twenty-ninth street and Columbia avenue, Philadelphia.
- 22d.—At a meeting of the Philadelphia American Association Club, an assessment of $11.75 per share was voted.
- 28th.—American League circuit definitely decided on as follows: Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Detroit. Ten years' agreement signed and ground leases placed in Ban Johnson's hands. Chicago, Ill.
- 31st.—Buffalo admitted to the Eastern League in place of Springfield (Mass.).

FEBRUARY.

- 2d.—Baseball Players' Protective Association issued statement that members could sign with American League only at present.
- 9th.—Compromise measures between National League and Players' Protective Association announced.
- 12th.—Organization of the New England League, with T. H. Murnane as President, and J. C. Morse as Secretary.
- 19th.—Benjamin F. Shibe elected President of Philadelphia American League Club.
- 26th.—National League practically grants demands of base ball players in regard to farming and selling services to other teams without permission.
- 27th.—Important changes in National League playing rules announced.
- 28th.—National League championship schedule announced.

MARCH.

- 20th.—American League spring meeting opened at Hotel Lafayette, Philadelphia, Pa.
- 21st.—American League championship schedule adopted.

- 28th.—Bill in equity filed against Lajole, Bernhard and Frazer, to restrain them from playing with the Philadelphia American League Club.
- 28th.—Pennsylvania State League formed, with Allentown, Reading, Chester, Norristown and Easton as members.
- 29th.—Demurrer filed by Philadelphia American League Club in equity suit against Napoleon Lajole.

APRIL.

- 3d.—Pitcher Willis ignored contract with Athletic American League Club and signed contract with Boston National League Club.
- 5th.—Philadelphia National League team beaten in opening game of season by Princeton.
- 6th.—Catcher McFarland left Philadelphia for home without notice, creating impression that he had jumped National League. He returned in a few days.
- 8th.—First practice game of Philadelphia American League base ball team (Athletics) on new grounds, Twenty-ninth street and Columbia avenue, beating Moss' professionals, 8 to 1.
- 12th.—Athletics beat a picked team of base ball players 41 to 1. Philadelphia.
- 18th. Philadelphia beaten in opening championship game by Brooklyn. Score, 12 to 7. Attendance, 6,000.
- 26th.—Athletics beaten in first American League championship game played in Philadelphia. Score: Washington, 5; Athletics, 1. Attendance, 16,000.
- 27th.—Manager and Captain Davis and Catcher Smith, of the New Yorks, put out of the game in Philadelphia for kicking.
- 28th.—Announced that Hugh Jennings had been secured to play first base for the Athletics.

MAY.

- 2d.—The Chicagos, of the American League, tried to delay the game and forfeited to the Detroits. Crowd rushed for Umpire, who took refuge in players' cage.
- 7th.—Doyle, the Chicago captain, ordered off the field, and Catcher Chance, of the same team, benched. Thomas, of the Philadelphia, fined $5 by Umpire Nash at the Polo Grounds for kicking. McGraw and Schmidt, of the Baltimore, sent to the bench by the umpire.
- 13th.—Brooklyn players created a rumpus at the Polo Grounds, kicking on a decision and forfeited the game after Captain Kelley had been ordered to the bench.
- 17th.—McGraw fined $100 for wrangling with umpire and suspended for five days. Warner, Davis and Taylor, of the New Yorks, put out of the game for kicking.
- 17th.—Court refused to grant an injunction restraining Lajole from playing with American League team, ruling that there was no mutuality in option clause of base ball contracts.

- 20th.—Manager Duffy, of Milwaukee, suspended for ten days by President Johnson, of the American League, for abusing Umpire Cantillon.
- 21st.—National League Umpire William Nash barred from the Polo Ground in New York by President Andrew Freedman.
- 31st.—Baltimore forfeited to the Detroit after a squabble. Catcher Wilson, of the Montreal team of the Eastern League, assaulted Umpire Hunt.

JUNE.

- 1st.—Row at Pittsburg; two Pittsburg players ordered out of the game and Umpire Cunningham threatened by spectators.
- 2d.—Collins and Freeman, of the Boston American League team, ordered out of the game.
- 5th.—Sheckard, of the Brooklyn, spat in the umpire's face, threw a handful of dirt at him and was escorted off the field by police.
- 15th.—Yale beat Princeton 5 to 2 in deciding base ball game of series. New York city.
- 16th.—Chicago and New York National League play tie game of 14 innings. Score, 4 to 4.
- 18th.—Boston National League Club cut prices to 25 cents to meet competition of American League.
- 19th.—Pennsylvania State League collapsed.
- 21st.—Hugh Jennings, after much negotiation with Philadelphia and Baltimore American League teams, signed with Philadelphia National League team.
- 23d.—Protective Association Professional Base Ball Players, in annual meeting in New York, reelected Charles Zimmer, President. Zimmer immediately resigned, and Tom Daly, of Brooklyn, was elected President. Dale Gear, Washington, was elected Secretary, and Frank Donahue, Philadelphia, Treasurer.
- 26th.—Mix-up in schedule brought Boston American League team to Philadelphia to play when they should have gone to Baltimore.

JULY.

- 10th.—At a secret meeting at Red Bank, N. J., Messrs. Brush, Freedman, Robison and Soden, of the National Board, decided to abrogate the National Agreement on September 30th.
- 26th.—McGraw, of the Baltimore Club, accused of negotiating with the National League, with a view to returning to that organization.

AUGUST.

- 21st.—Morris Steelman, catcher of the Hartford Club, and also claimed by Brooklyn, joined Athletics, giving National League men first chance to accuse American League of playing a double contract signer. Subsequently it was announced that Steelman had purchased his release from Hartford and he continued to play with Athletics.

- 21st.—Umpire Connolly, at Baltimore, declared Baltimore game forfeited to Detroit, and Pitcher McGinnity stepped on his feet and spat in his face. McGinnity subsequently indefinitely suspended by Ban Johnson, and reinstated September 3d, when he pitched two games against Milwaukee.
- 21st.—Shortstop Shugart, of Chicago American League team, at Washington, struck Umpire Haskell a heavy blow in the face, cutting his cheek, for which he was next day expelled from American League.
- 27th.—Boston A. L. team beat Detroit 2 to 1, 15 innings.

SEPTEMBER.

- 6th.—National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues, organized at Chicago, Ill., to protect minor organizations from the two major leagues.
- 8th.—Base Ball Players' Protective Association decided that in future members will sign contracts for one year only, and will not recognize option clause of club owners.
- 18th.—Umpire John E. Johnstone and First Baseman George Wright, of Little Rock Club, arrested for fighting on the field, Little Rock, Ark.
- 21st.—Chicago National League team, at Chicago, beat Boston 1 to 0, 17 innings; one of the most remarkable games ever played not a misplay on either side for 13 innings.
- 24th.—Lajoie, of the Athletics, against Milwaukee, accepted all of 16 chances at short field and made 4 safe hits, including a homer and a double.
- 29th.—American League season ended. Chicago won pennant, with percentage of .610; Boston, Detroit, Athletics, Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland and Milwaukee following in the order named.
- 30th.—National Agreement abrogated by order of the National Board, and promulgated by Secretary Young.

OCTOBER.

- 6th.—Championship season of National League ended, Pittsburgh winning championship, with percentage of .647. Philadelphia, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Boston, Chicago, New York, Cincinnati following in the order named.
- 10th.—Manager Manning, of the Washington Club, disposed of all his interest in the Club to Messrs. Fred Postal and Tom Loftus.
- 18th.—Harry Wolverton sued Philadelphia National League Base Ball Club for back salary.
- 20th.—Officially announced by American League that seven members of the St. Louis National League team had jumped to the American.
- 25th.—National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues adopted regulations for self-protection. New York city.

NOVEMBER.

- 5th.—Sportsman's Park, in St. Louis, leased for five years by Messrs. Johnson and Comisky on behalf of the American League.
- 14th.—Burns and Stallings sold Detroit American League Base Ball Club to S. F. Angus and F. H. Doyle.
- 19th.—Annual meeting of American League held in Chicago. Ban Johnson elected as President-Secretary-Treasurer, and Milwaukee team and franchise transferred to St. Louis.
- 29th.—American Association of Professional Base Ball Clubs, with Thomas J. Hickey as President, and teams located at Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Saint Paul, Columbus, Toledo, Minneapolis, Omaha and Kansas City organized. Chicago, Ill.

DECEMBER.

- 4th.—Eastern League met in New York, reelected President P. T. Powers, and admitted Jersey City and Newark to membership.
- 10th.—Opening of the National League's annual meeting. New York.
- 11th.—John T. Brush's base ball trust scheme beaten at National League meeting through the National League declaring itself perpetual without reference to the 10-year Indianapolis Agreement.
- 13th.—A. G. Spalding announced that Andrew Freedman, of New York, must get out of base ball.
- 14th. A. G. Spalding, Chicago, elected President of the National League and American Association of Base Ball Clubs by four clubs, after the delegates from the other four clubs had left the meeting room.
- 16th.—Andrew Freedman enjoined A. G. Spalding from assuming presidency of National Base Ball League.
- 20th.—A. G. Spalding gave up papers of National Base Ball League by order of Court.
- 21st.—Joe Kelly signed a contract to play with Baltimore American League team for season of 1902.
- 22d.—A. G. Spalding wrote letter to all National League Clubs, advising them to sign their players for 1902.
- 28th.—Counsel for A. G. Spalding in court waived immediate hearing of the injunction suit, thus deferring action indefinitely.
- 30th.—American Association met at Kansas City and perfected circuit, by admitting Omaha, and awarding Omaha franchise to Frank W. Bandle.

CHICAGO TEAM, CHAMPION AMERICAN LEAGUE FOR 1902,

THE SEASON OF 1902.

THE outlook for the new base ball season of 1902 is generally good, although somewhat dubious in spots, owing to the fact that relations between the two major leagues are still somewhat strained while minor league affairs are in tangled shape.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

has the best outlook, owing to the fact that it has greatly strengthened its circuit by the substitution of St. Louis for Milwaukee, and has furthermore rounded out its teams with a further infusion of National League star players. Much of the experimental material of the past season has been supplanted by the tried and known veterans, thus making it possible to balance the various teams and assure a close and exciting pennant race. The American League, furthermore, now enjoys the confidence of the public and also occupies the leading place in the base ball world, first, by reason of its all-round strength, and second, by reason of the semi-disorganized and weakened condition of its chief rival.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

had not, up to the time this Guide went to press, entirely composed its internal troubles which have split the organization into two bitterly hostile factions. The fight, even though it be settled, will have a damaging effect upon the future of the organization. To add to the League's troubles the majority of its teams have been so completely stripped of their star players that wholesale infusion of young minor league players has been necessary, thus making of the relative strength of the teams an unknown quantity which only a campaign can settle. It will be, in fact, tantamount to starting a new league under present conditions. No man can tell whether the race will be close and exciting or a procession and fizzle, and so no forecast of the chances of the League race of 1902 can be safely made.

THE MINOR LEAGUES

have also been plunged into difficulties through the defection of the clubs now making up the new American Association—a league which looks strong on paper, and which may become a powerful factor in base ball. When the National Association was organized by the confederated minor leagues—as a result of the National League's abrogation of the old National Agreement—it looked as if the new federation would be amply able to hold its own against the two major leagues and to control the great bulk of minor league players. The creation of the American Association on an independent basis, however, dealt the National Association as it not only deprived two of its members—the Western League and the Western Association—of valuable territory, but weakened its hold upon the players, as the new American Association refused to recognize reservation and raided the various minor leagues by wholesale for desirable players, the Eastern League clubs particularly suffering severely. The most serious effect, however, of the American Association's independent move was upon the salary limits of the National Association leagues. These had to be practically suspended to meet the high bidding of the American Association. As a result every minor league in the country has had its payrolls increased to the danger point, and only exceptional patronage this season can avert trouble.

A HARD BLOW,

UNDAUNTED FRONT.

However, there has been no real weakening anywhere, and there will be about the same array of minor leagues in the field this season as last year. The National Association will contain within its fold every minor league of any importance in the country except the California League and the new American Association, thus assuring a plentiful supply of professional base ball for the entire country. In our "Roster for 1902" will be found a complete list of these leagues—which make up a formidable array alike as to number of leagues, strength of clubs and ability of leadership. If the public shall but support them all as liberally as they deserve the season of 1902 will be an unqualified success, despite the drawbacks frankly enumerated above.

THE ROSTER FOR 1902.

THE outlook for the base ball season of 1902 is exceedingly bright. The major league field is well filled by the American League and National League, the minor leagues are well banded together in a strong National Association, and besides, there are several strong independent leagues occupying good territory and employing high-class players. There can be no doubt now of the greatly enhanced public interest and enthusiasm—thanks to the rivalry engendered by the American League's phenomenal success as a major league. This stimulation has also affected the minor leagues who in the aggregate enter the season of 1902 in better shape and greater number than for many years. An idea of the vast scope of the "organized ball" of the present era may be gleaned from the appended official roster of the various leagues which begin the 1902 season:

BOSTON AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM OF 1901.

AMERICAN LEAGUE EXPANSION SUCCESSFUL.

THE first campaign of the expanded American League as a major league, which began April 24th, 1901, ended September 28th, with Chicago as the champion club. The expansion movement was unqualifiedly successful. The public in the East accepted the new clubs, patronized them liberally and thus assured the future of the American League as a major league, with or without the consent, aid or alliance of the National League. When one considers the handicaps that hampered the expansion movement, the obstacles that constantly presented themselves and the herculean labor required to equip three new plants and place four new teams of major league calibre in an untried field, a partial failure here and there, under the circumstances, would have been perfectly natural; the absence of failure or radical weakness anywhere made the success of the expansion movement simply phenomenal, and vindicated the ante-season judgment and belief that the public demanded and would support two major leagues.

WONDERFUL RESULTS.

It is a remarkable fact that the American League should have been strongest where, by reason of opposition and conflicts, in a state of war, it might have been reasonably expected to be weakest, namely, in the invaded territory of the old League. In Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia the American League achieved its greatest success, and these cities are to-day the backbone of the American League. In Boston and Chicago the American clubs outdrew the National League member, and in Philadelphia, where an almost even break was made, the same story would have been written had not the various misfortunes of the Athletic club made it possible for the Philadelphia club to partially regain the ground lost in the first two months of the season. In the other cities the American League clubs also received as good support as the local conditions warranted—very liberal support indeed, in view of the fact that in all those cities, with the solitary exception of Detroit, the teams were outclassed from start to finish and were never really in the race after the first month of the campaign.

FINANCIAL RESULT.

On the whole season the American League clubs, collectively, played to 1,683,584 people, as against the National League's 1,920,031, thus demonstrating that both Leagues were almost on a par as regards popularity and team strength, but that the American League's circuit, as then constituted, did not rank with the National League in resources or possibilities and, therefore, needed further strengthening. Five of the American League clubs cleared a handsome profit on the season, one club broke even and two lost money—a financial showing which was not exceeded by the National League and which, all things considered, is very gratifying. On another page will be found exhaustive attendance figures for both of the major leagues for 1901.

PITCHING KNOCK-OUTS OF 1901.

IN the American League during the 1901 race 51 pitchers divided 123 removals from the firing line, three Brewers—Hawley, Husting and Sparks—setting the pace, each with six dismissals. Of the other Milwaukee pitchers Garvin was knocked out four times and Reidy three times. Connie Mack's Athletics proved to be the premier pitcher pounders, there being 21 instances on record of substitution of opposing pitchers. Clarke Griffith was relieved twice, both times at the request of the umpire, although the Orioles did swat him hard enough in one game from which he was banished. Jimmy Callahan made two trips to the stable; one was via the referee's decision and in the other he quit because he had the game well in hand. Young retired in his first game of the season under a fusilade of base hits from the Baltimore willow wielders. Joe McGinnity's three journeys to the tall timber were given under the auspices of Commy's Chicagos, the umpire aiding them twice.

COMPARATIVE 1901 ATTENDANCE.

THE remarkable success of the American League's expansion movement was shown by the excellent patronage accorded the new major league in its first campaign as compared with the venerable National League, which for twenty-five years had held first place in the public mind. Between them the sixteen American and National League clubs have enjoyed the patronage of 3,603,615 base ball lovers, the National teams attracting 1,920,031 persons and the American League 1,683,584. Though the National League clubs outdrew their rivals it must be taken into consideration that the cities of the National League circuit have a far larger population than the American League towns, the figures being 8,343,018 to 5,293,626. On a percentage basis, therefore, the American League excelled. St. Louis, in the National League, and Chicago, in the American League, proved the best cities in point of attendance. The poorest were Boston (N. L.) and Cleveland (A. L.). In total attendance, at home and abroad, the Cardinals and White Socks also made the best showings, and Cleveland and Boston the worst. Following are the complete attendance figures for the whole season, as given out by the clubs:

From the above it will be seen that in the National League the best attended series was that between the Cardinals and Giants, which attracted 132,700 spectators, the Pittsburg-St. Louis games (119,377) ranking next. In the American League the contests between the Chicago and the Bostons proved most productive of receipts, 130,874 enthusiasts attending. During the American League season, eleven games were witnessed by crowds of over 10,000, these being as follows:

September 8th.—Boston, 20,000.

September 15th.—Milwaukee, 18,000.

April 24th.—Cleveland, 14,500.

May 30th (P. M.).—Boston, 14,000.

September 1st.—Baltimore, 14,000.

April 28th.—Cleveland, 13,500.

May 26th.—Baltimore, 12,500.

June 30th.—Detroit, 12,500.

July 27th.—Boston, 12,500.

June 2d.—Washington, 11,000.

August 4th.—Cleveland, 11,000.

Chicago, at home, outdrew all other clubs in the American League, and to her great home total is due the fact that collectively the four Western clubs at home outdrew the four Eastern clubs at home by 84,804 people.

FURTHER AMERICAN LEAGUE EXPANSION.

THE 1901 campaign of the American League demonstrated that that organization had become the equal, if not the superior, of the National League in everything except circuit. Several conferences of the American League leaders were held during the season, the upshot of which was a decision to not only still further strengthen the various teams with more National League star players, regardless of expense, but to make the Western end of the circuit stronger. St. Louis was the city selected for invasion.

A TEMPORARY TRUCE.

Plans to that purpose were laid at once, but in June President Johnson had a conference with Mr. A. G. Spalding, at the latter's solicitation, in Atlantic City, at which Mr. Spalding intimated that he had a scheme in hand to reorganize the National League and to restore peace within the base ball world. His plan was to secure options on certain League clubs, with a view to ousting Mr. Freedman from New York and supplanting several other alien League magnates with local capitalists. In order to enable Mr. Spalding to carry out his plan Mr. Johnson agreed to a truce for thirty days. At the end of that period Mr. Spalding notified Mr. Johnson that he had been unable to secure the options he was after and that he was through. Mr. Spalding's option scheme it seems had been defeated by the declination of Messrs. Brush and Robison to entertain it; the former having a plan of his own to reorganize the National League on the lines of a gigantic trust—a scheme which afterwards, in December, caused a deadlock in the National League and the temporary disruption of that organization.

ST. LOUIS INVADED.

The American League then decided to resume the aggressive. Agents were at once set to work, the big war fund was tapped, and before the "melancholy days" of October set in, some twenty-eight additional star National League players were securely under contract to the various American League clubs. In the raid the Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Chicago teams were hit hard, and the St. Louis team was practically gutted. The last-named stroke was engineered by James McAleer, of Cleveland, who had been selected as manager of the proposed new St. Louis club. On October 29th he signed seven St. Louis National League players—the cream of the team—for his new St. Louis American League club, namely: Wallace, Burkett, Harper, Powell, Padden, Sudhoff and Heidrick, the latter being reinstated by President Johnson as a special concession to Manager McAleer. Meantime Messrs. Johnson and Comiskey had secured an option on the old Sportsman's Park in St. Louis, which was subsequently leased for five years. At the American League meeting on November 19th the Milwaukee Club voluntarily retired from the organization and the franchise and such of the team as were wanted by Manager McAleer were transferred to St. Louis.

AN HONORABLE COURSE.

At one time during the fall of 1901 it was among the probabilities that the Baltimore franchise and team would be transferred to New York, but nothing ever came of it. During the National League faction fight the American League was in a position to avail itself territorially of the senior league's sad plight, but the American League, for the sake of the game, refused to avail itself of the opportunity. Mr. Johnson and his colleagues were not only in sympathy with Mr. Spalding's efforts to reorganize the National League, but felt that they could not stultify themselves by abandoning the two-major-league principle which they had always advocated, on which they had made a winning battle for recognition, and on which they based their claim to existence and public recognition. Hence they permitted the Spalding-Freedman faction in the National League to fight it out among themselves, confident that Mr. Spalding's ultimate victory would make for peace and a new era of prosperity and popularity under the two-league system.

AMERICAN LEAGUE EPISODES OF 1901.

AFFAIRS in the American League moved very smoothly during the first season as a major league, despite the fact that it had to stand alone, depending entirely upon its own resources and its own powers of discipline to keep things moving in their proper grooves. For this the American League has to thank largely the force and executive ability of President Johnson and the support given him by the various club officials. Only three disagreeable incidents occurred during the entire campaign. From the very start President Johnson found it necessary to keep a firm rein on the imported National League managers and players who had been accustomed to doing pretty much as they pleased in the older organization, particularly in the matter of umpire-baiting.

THE UMPIRES SUSTAINED.

Right at the start of the season some of the star players began to make things uncomfortable for President Johnson's umpire staff, which consisted of Sheridan, Cantillon, Connelly, Manassau and Haskell. President Johnson had instructed these officials to promptly remove all kicking players from the game, regardless of consequence, and promised not only to stand by them at all times but to supplement their correction with further punishments when occasion demanded. And this policy President Johnson carried out vigorously. On May 20th he suspended Manager Duffy for ten days for abusing Umpire Manassau. In June Manager McGraw, of Baltimore, received a similar dose for repeated rows with umpires—an action which McGraw so bitterly resented that for several months he refused to speak to or hold any intercourse with the American League President.

PLAYERS SEVERELY DISCIPLINED.

On August 21st, at Baltimore, Pitcher McGinnity assaulted Umpire Connelly and spat in his face, for which he was expelled from the American League by President Johnson. The same day at Washington Pitcher Katoll threw a ball at Umpire Haskell, and Shortstop Shugart struck Haskell in the face. For this Katoll was suspended for the balance of the season, and Shugart, like McGinnity, was expelled from the American League.

Later, however, President Johnson yielded to the strong petitions he was fairly deluged with and reinstated the players after suitable fines and apologies had been provided for.

A PLOT FOILED.

During the season an attempt was made to disrupt the American League through treachery. John T. Brush, of the National League, believing that the Johnson-McGraw feud would serve as an entering wedge, conceived the plan of purchasing the Baltimore, Washington and Detroit clubs, or inducing them somehow to desert the American League in mid-season and enter the National League, together with Indianapolis, thus making the League a twelve-club organization again. The sudden shift was to take place July 4th, the National League then starting a new twelve-club schedule. How much assistance or encouragement Mr. Brush got from the inside will never be known; but his plan got a black eye from his own people. At a secret meeting of certain National League magnates in Cleveland, in June, cold water was thrown on the Brush scheme by President Hart, of Chicago, and President Robison, of St. Louis, and Mr. Hart subsequently warned President Johnson of the secret manouvers. The latter at once gave the matter publicity, thus choking off all further efforts to injure the American League in any way except in a fair, open, stand-up fight. Thereafter the American League finished the season without further molestation from without or insubordination within.

SOME CLUB CHANGES.

The end of the 1901 campaign witnessed two important club changes. Manager Manning, of the Washington club, retired from the organization, disposing of his interest to President Fred Postal and Tom Loftus, the latter succeeding Manning as club secretary and team manager. In Detroit Messrs. Burns and Stallings got into a jangle which resulted in their disposing of their several interests to a syndicate of wealthy local business men headed by Mr. S. F. Angus. This syndicate reorganized the club, increased the capital stock to $100,000 and engaged Umpire Frank Dwyer as team manager for 1902. Both changes were agreeable to the American League as a body.

MORE CLUB CHANGES.

Two more club changes were made during the past fall and winter. In August last Mr. Henry Killilea, of Milwaukee, purchased the controlling interest in the Boston club from Mr. Charles W. Somers. This shift of capital, however, did not effect the status of affairs of the old officials and management, which remain in office for 1902. In St. Louis also there was an important shift, the Killileas, of Milwaukee, disposing of their entire holdings to a local syndicate of wealthy business men, composed of Messrs. R. L. Hedges, Ralph Orthwein and R. Gardner. The club was then reorganized as the "St. Louis American League Base Ball Company," with $50,000 capital, and with Messrs. Orthwein, Hedges, McDiarmid, Bruce and Gardner as Directors. The officers are Ralph Orthwein, president; R. Gardner, vice-president; R. L. Hedges, secretary-treasurer. James McAleer was retained as manager.

PITCHERS DEVELOPED IN 1901.

THE major league season of 1901 was remarkable for the number of young pitchers of pronounced ability developed. Seldom has there been witnessed a season like that of 1901 in this respect. With the advent of the American League as a major league organization there arose a demand for more first-class pitchers, and the supply responded to the demand. Old timers, such as Griffith, Young and Nichols, held their own with the best of the new crop, but on the whole the young bloods made the old boxmen look to their laurels. New-comers in the box last season who have shown their right to be in fast company are: Mathewson, Harper, Hughes, of Chicago; Townsend, L. Taylor, Poole, Stimmel, Murphy, Pittenger, Eason and White in the National League, and Wiltse, Seivers, Plank, Patten, Moore, Patterson, Winters and Lee in the American League. Several in this list are not strictly products of the last campaign, but, nevertheless the season of 1901 proved their worth. Furthermore, Chesbro, Kitson, Donovan, Newton, Bernhard, McGinnity, Miller, Katoll, Carrick and several others are comparatively young in the service.

AMERICAN LEAGUE LEGISLATION FOR 1902.

THE annual fall meeting of the American League was held at the Grand Pacific Hotel, Chicago, December 2d-3d, all business being disposed of in two days, thus setting a notable standard for major league diligence in the dispatch of affairs. Prior to the American League meeting on the first day the Board of Directors met, disposed of its routine business, audited President Johnson's accounts, awarded the championship to Chicago, drew up its report to the American League and adjourned sine die.

The American League then went into session. The delegates to the American League meeting were: Chicago, C. A. Comiskey; Detroit, James N. McNamara; Milwaukee, F. C. Gross; Boston, Charles Somers; Baltimore, John McGraw and Harry Goldman; Washington, Fred Postal and Tom Loftus; Cleveland, J. F. Kilfoyl; Philadelphia, Ben. Shibe and Connie Mack. The meeting was presided over by President Ban Johnson. Mr. Kilfoyl acting as secretary. The league immediately re-organized by formally electing Ban Johnson as president and Charles Somers, of Cleveland, as vice-president.

THE FIRST DAY'S BUSINESS.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved, the report of the Board of Directors was accepted, the changes of ownership in the Detroit and Washington clubs were formally ratified, and Messrs. Comiskey, Shibe and Postal were appointed a committee to perfect the transfer of the Milwaukee club and franchise to St. Louis. President Johnson appointed Messrs. Mack, Dwyer and Kilfoyl as the Committee on Playing Rules. Representatives of the Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and Cleveland clubs were elected to the Board of Directors. It was also decided to use a 140-game schedule for 1902, the season to begin April 23d and to end October 5th, and President Johnson was empowered to draft the schedule.

SECOND DAY'S WORK.

On the second day of the meeting the greater part of the time was consumed in adjusting the various details connected with the transfer of the Milwaukee team and franchise to St. Louis, with the Killilea brothers, of Milwaukee, as the principal owners of the new club. A rule was also formulated to suppress betting on American League base ball games by and among spectators. A long debate over the question of restoring to eligibility certain players who had broken American League contracts in 1901 resulted in a decision to leave the question of reinstatement with the individual clubs. The report of President Johnson showed the financial affairs of the American League to be in healthy condition. After deciding to hold the spring meeting in Detroit on March 5th, the American League adjourned, and in the evening the delegates were the guests of President Comiskey, of the Chicago Club, at a sumptuous banquet.

THE SPRING MEETING.

The spring meeting of the American League was held at the Griswold House, Detroit, Mich., March 5th and 6th. The delegates to the meeting were: Chicago, Charles Comiskey; Cleveland, J. H. Kilfoyl; Washington, Fred Postal and T. J. Loftus; Detroit, Messrs. Angus, McNamara and Cook; Boston, Henry Killileu; St. Louis, Messrs. Hedges, Bruce and McDiarmid; Philadelphia, B. F. Shibe and Connie Mack; Baltimore, Harry Goldman and Joseph W. Kelley. Mr. Johnson acted as chairman and Mr. Kilfoyl as secretary.

IMPORTANT LEGISLATION.

The championship schedule was adopted as reported by President Johnson. It is a 140-game schedule, each club playing 70 games at home and 70 games abroad. The season opens April 23d and closes September 29th. The official schedule will be found immediately after the Playing Rules. By unanimous vote it was decided to change the scale of admission rates. The new schedule prescribes 75 cents for grand stand, 50 cents for covered pavilion and 25 cents for the bleachers. This rate will prevail in all cities except Philadelphia, which will operate on the old scale.

THE PLAYING RULES.

The American League adopted the report of its Playing Rules Committee, which recommended the adoption of all the changes made by the Buffalo Inter-League conference with the exception of the foul-strike rule. A report of the Buffalo conference will be found immediately before the Playing Rules, which are given in this Guide as officially adopted by the American League. President Johnson's salary was increased to $7,500 per annum, and he was empowered to remove his headquarters to New York at his pleasure. The "Reach Guide" was adopted as the official American League Guide. After thanking the Washington and Detroit club owners for courtesies extended, and holding open an invitation from Mr. R. L. Hedges to hold the fall meeting in St. Louis, the American League adjourned.

COURTESIES EXTENDED.

Throughout the meeting there was the unmost good feeling and not the slightest friction. There was an unusually large gathering of visiting base-ball writers, players and managers, all of whom were cordially received and royally treated by the magnates. Messrs. Postal, Angus, McNamara and Cook exerted themselves to provide entertainment, and played the part of hosts to perfection. On the first night of the meet a theatre party was arranged and on the second night a sumptuous banquet was tendered the visitors at the Griswold House, at which the delegates were welcomed by Major Mayberry. Speeches were also made by Toastmaster McNamara, Judge Phelan, Recorder Murphy, Police Commissioner Fowle, Messrs. Postal and Angus, the various club magnates and the visiting scribes. Throughout the stay of the delegates the City Hall was illuminated in honor of the American League.

CAREER OF PRESIDENT BAN JOHNSON.

THE most imposing figure in the base ball world to-day is President Byron Bancroft Johnson, of the American League. He is a man of education, ability and force. He has great dignity and possesses lofty ideals. Moreover, he is staunchly loyal to his friends and absolutely incorruptible. To his skill, knowledge, perseverance and execution the American League is largely indebted for its present proud pre-eminence in the base ball world; and to his uncompromising adherence to law and order the good repute of the American League is largely due. In the performance of his duty as he sees it, or as laid down by the law, Mr. Johnson is a zealot and knows neither friend nor foe, hence his rule, while vigorous, commands respect and obedience. His devotion to duty is remarkable, and his one ambition in life has been to place the American League where it now is.

JOHNSON'S CAREER.

Mr. Johnson is a native of Cincinnati, the son of Professor Johnson of Avondale. From childhood Ban was a lover of base ball, and in his college days he was quite a clever player. After graduation he drifted into newspaper work and soon achieved national reputation as a base ball writer on the Cincinnati "Commercial Gazette." In the performance of his duty he ran afoul of President Brush, of the Cincinnati club, to whom he proved a thorn in the flesh. In 1893 Mr. Charles Comiskey prevailed upon Mr. Johnson to give up his newspaper work and accept the presidency of the Western League. Mr. Johnson was reluctant to enter that field, owing to Mr. Brush's control of the Indianapolis club, but was finally persuaded, much to the satisfaction of Mr. Brush, who was glad to get such a fighter as Johnson out of the Cincinnati journalistic push.

HIS FIRST BATTLE.

There was no friction during his first year as Western League President, as the League did well financially and Mr. Johnson proved a capable executive. The second year, however, a small war cloud appeared on the horizon. In 1894 the Indianapolis club was one of the weakest in the Western League. At the close of that season President Brush drafted several crack players, ostensibly for the Cincinnati club, but before the season of 1895 was more than a few weeks old these players, together with several others, were sent to Indianapolis. As a majority of these players had been in Western League clubs the season before, this shadowy transaction raised a protest among the other team magnates and gave rise to the farming system. The protesting magnates claimed that Indianapolis, through its relations with the Cincinnati club, had an unfair advantage. President Johnson agreed with them, and he and President Brush locked horns.

A WELL-DESERVED VICTORY.

The battle lasted nearly two years, and at one time Mr. Brush almost succeeded in a scheme to throw Mr. Johnson and his entire league out into the cold through the National Board and secure the entire territory for himself and certain personal friends. With the aid of Col. John I. Rogers and other National League magnates Mr. Johnson exposed and defeated this scheme and almost unhorsed Mr. Brush in the National League. Indeed, Mr. Brush only saved his seat in the National Board by promising to dispose of his interest in the Indianapolis club, a promise that was subsequently broken, it is claimed. The Western League then passed legislation calculated to restrict the Indianapolis club's "farming" privileges, but Mr. Brush succeeded in defeating this through adroitly having changes made in the National Agreement to not only meet this particular Indianapolis case but calculated to still further foster and spread the farming evil.

MAKING HIMSELF FELT.

Meanwhile, the affairs of the Western League had assumed so much importance that President Johnson was forced to devote his entire time to its management, and he removed to Chicago. He was opposed to the farming system and tried also to have the drafting rule abolished, but at that time he was not strong enough to control the situation, and there were in his own ranks dissenters from his views. Mr. Johnson had no easy task handling the affairs of the Western League. Almost every season brought about changes in the circuit. Before he had been in office two years he saw that there were one or two undesirable men in the organization who, sooner or later, would wreck it, and he at once set about to get them out. In every case he was successful, and in their places secured excellent men and added great strength to the Western League.

THE FIRST STEP IN EXPANSION.

Each year Mr. Johnson was granted more authority, and his position became more thoroughly established. During the last four years he has had almost absolute control of his league, and in several cases has practically controlled individual clubs and dictated the entire policy of the league. Several times he clashed with the owners, but almost invariably won his point. In the fall of 1899, when the National set about reducing itself to an eight-club basis, Mr. Johnson began his expansion policy. He had the Western League rechristened American League, secured splendid backing for a new club in Cleveland and induced Charles Comiskey to move his St. Paul team and franchise to Chicago, when the present American League Park on the South Side was built. This move brought on a clash with the National League. But the American League was determined to enter Chicago, with or without war, and as neither threats nor entreaties could move it from that position, President Hart, of the Chicago National League club, gave reluctant consent to the occupation of Chicago.

HIS GREATEST WORK.

The 1900 season of the expanded American League was such an unqualified success that President Johnson decided to expand some more and make his organization a major league of national proportions. The National League had opened the door for Mr. Johnson by leaving Baltimore and Washington without clubs during 1900. Mr. Johnson announced that the American League would annex these cities for 1901, paying the National League a fair price for its holdings there, and would ask for permission to place a team in Philadelphia. This move met with so much opposition in the National League and the relations between the two leagues became so badly strained that the American League broke off all negotiations, withdrew from the National Agreement and changed its plans so as to also invade Boston.

THE EXPANSION MOVE.

This plan was facilitated by the fact that the five-year membership agreement of the American League had expired. Seven men within the American League undertook to finance the expansion movement; Indianapolis, Minneapolis and Buffalo were dropped; the Kansas City team and franchise, with James Manning, were shifted to Washington; Connie Mack, of Milwaukee, received the Philadelphia franchise; Chas. W. Somers, of Cleveland, undertook the Boston proposition, and in Baltimore a local syndicate, headed by McGraw and Robinson, entered the list. In each of these cities grounds were leased for long terms and new ball parks built; the National League was raided for about thirty star players and eight strong and well-balanced teams were placed in the field.

A TREMENDOUS TASK.

All of this tremendous task was conceived and executed in the short space of five months—a monumental achievement unparalleled in the history of base ball. Throughout it all President Johnson, familiar with every detail, was constantly on the move and kept himself in intimate touch with every phase of a most intricate and confusing situation. He proved himself equal to every emergency, readily solved every problem and commanded every situation which confronted him. He was in those perilous times; he was the man of the hour throughout the trying and eventful first season of the American League as a major league; and he was still the man of the hour during the past winter, when fuller expansion had to be accomplished and new problems had to be solved. In adversity and prosperity alike President Ban Johnson has stood every test unflinchingly, and he has emerged from every conflict with fresh laurels of success. Mr. Johnson has fairly fought for and won, in his ten years of base ball leadership, the fullest meed of success, and is clearly entitled to his position as the greatest executive in the base ball world.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

AMERICAN LEAGUE PRESIDENTS.

NO league ever presented to the base ball world a collection of more able, popular and progressive club presidents than the American League presented last year. This is the more remarkable when we consider that all of them were inexperienced in handling a league of national scope, and many were entirely new to base ball. Following are portraits and sketches of this bright galaxy of base ball notables:

PRESIDENT COMISKEY, OF CHICAGO.

Charles Comiskey, the famous president and actual manager of the Chicago Club, has been a familiar and great figure in the base ball world for a score of years. Mr. Comiskey's first professional experience was with the Dubuque Club away back in 1882. In 1883 he joined the St. Louis Club and under Ted Sullivan's tutoring he made such rapid advances that in 1884 he became manager-captain of the famous St. Louis Browns handling, be- time American champions, winning the pennant in 1885-86-87-88. During this period Comiskey enjoyed the reputation of being the greatest field general in the profession. In the 1890 he broke with Mr. Von der Ahe and joined the Chicago Brotherhood famous all-star team. That year Comiskey proved a gigantic failure, and the next year Comiskey returned to Von der Ahe. The two could not get along however, and the next year Comiskey became the Cincinnati club's manager. After two seasons' vain struggle to make a winner out of this team he gave it up, and entered the Western League as owner of the St. Paul Club, which he ran until 1900, when he transferred his St. Paul team to Chicago and won the Western League—rechristened American League—championship. Last year he repeated the trick with a stronger team in the larger arena of the American League, thus capturing one more major league championship and having six pennants to his credit.

PRESIDENT SOMERS, OF BOSTON.

Charles W. Somers, president and principal owner of the Boston Club, is one of the most able, respected and popular magnates in the American League, and to-day wields an enormous influence in base ball, although his active connection with the game dates back but two or three years. Mr. Somers is a native of Cleveland, where he holds a high social and business position.

In business he is the manager of the firm of J. H. Somers & Co. (himself and father), wholesale coal operators and ship-pers. The company owns extensive coal mines in Central and Southern Ohio, West Virginia and Michigan. To M. Hanna & Co., the largest coal shipping house in Ohio. Though but 33 years of age Mr. Somers is rated a millionaire. Mr. Somers and his bosom friends, Mr. Kilfoyl, organized and financed the Cleveland American League Club two years ago when the Robisons sold out their National League club. When the American League decided to expand, Mr. Somers was the man most relied upon by President Johnson to back up and help to finance the new clubs in Boston and Philadelphia. At the crucial moment Mr. Somers disposed of his interest in the Cleveland Club and put both the Boston and Philadelphia clubs on their financial feet.

When the expansion plan was consummated Mr. Somers retained the Boston Club, of which he is still the president.

PRESIDENT POSTAL, OF WASHINGTON.

Mr. Frederick Postal, president and principal stock holder of the Washington Club, was born near Detroit, Mich., 42 years ago, and is still a resident of that city, where he, in conjunction with A. E. Morey, owns and operates the Griswold House, the headquarters for many years of visiting base ball men and teams. Mr. Postal is a boniface by nature, having been identified with the hotel business since his youth, when he managed the Personally Mr. Postal is one of those sunny men whom it is a pleasure to meet and know. He is married, has a very interesting family and is quite well off as regards this world's goods.

PRESIDENT SHIBE, OF PHILADELPHIA.

Mr. Benjamin F. Shibe, the noted president of the Athletic Club, of Philadelphia, is a veteran in the game of base ball. From his youth he has been a follower of the sport. He was a partisan of the old Athletic Club of the 70s, and when that great club disbanded Mr. Shibe kept base ball interest in Philadelphia alive by maintaining for years the Shibe Club, a semi-professional organization of great local fame which produced a number of subsequently famous professional ball players. In the 80s Mr. Shibe in the Athletic American Association became bankrupt and was wiped out in the reorganization of 1891. Mr. Shibe also secured the athletic charter for a club in the American League for one season. Mr. Shibe always prized the famous old "Athletic" title, was a strong partisan of the old Athletic Club and a zealous believer in the two-major-league principle. Under the circumstances it was quite natural that, when the American League adopted that principle and expanded to major-league proportions, Mr. Shibe should ally himself with and become interested in the local Athletic Club. With him this was not a matter of cold business but of principle and sentiment. Mr. Shibe is a man of solid attainments and of wealth, being a member of the famous sporting goods manufacturing house—the A. J. Reach Co., of Philadelphia, of which city Mr. Shibe is a prominent and universally-respected citizen.

acquired stock in the Athletic Club of the Eastern Association, which was reorganized in 1890, and in the reorganization Mr. Shibe was a member of the company which operated the original Athletic Club for one season. Mr. Shibe prized the "Athletic" title, was a partisan of the old Athletic Club and a zealous believer in the two-

PRESIDENT ORTHWEIN, OF ST. LOUIS.

Ralph Orthwein, the president of the newly-organized St. Louis Club of the American League, enjoys the dis-tion of being the youngest president in that organization, possibly, too, he is the wealthiest individual connected with the League. He is of age, and is not yet 30 years of age, and is rated a millionaire in his own right and the son of a millionaire. He is a native of St. Louis, and is secretary of the Sempire Clock Company and director of the Orthwein Investment Company. A thorough sportsman, leading trait is the love of the horse. Two years ago he became the owner of the champion saddle horse of the world, who has been exhibited at the principal horse shows of the United States. A man of clearheadedness and judgment, he has combined business ability with the instincts of a sportsman, and for years has been a central figure in St. Louis business circles.

PRESIDENT KILFOYL, OF CLEVELAND.

John F. Kilfoyl, president of the Cleveland Club, is another one of the progressive and able young men of the West, who is in the game of base ball for love of the sport and not merely for the profit of it. Mr. Kilfoyl is a native of Cleveland, and there his life has been spent and his activities centered. He is in business and business way he is an estate man and with several and the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. His connections are wide and he is a member of many clubs, namely, the Golf Club, the Yacht Club, and the Gentleman's Club. Always a ball player he took a in connection with Mr. Somers, in the organization have been prominent both socially. In addition he is a leading real estate man and is also connected with banking houses and the Chamber of Commerce. He is a social connection and he is a member of several Cleveland clubs, the Cleveland Club, the Colonial Club, the Wheel Club, the men's Driving Club, and the lover of base ball in prominent part, the organization of the Cleveland Club of the American League, and has been its president for the past three years. Mr. Kilfoyl was also an ardent expansionist and was one of that small but courageous band which so ably backed up President Ban Johnson in the great work of American League expansion. Men like Mr. Kilfoyl are an ornament as well as a necessity to the national game.

PRESIDENT FRANK, OF BALTIMORE.

Sydney S. Frank, who was president of the Baltimore Club last season, and who will this year act as vice-president of the club, is a native of Baltimore, in which city he was born in 1872. He received a good education in the City and has always been for some years engaged in the Baltimore brokerage business, and is now representative of Arthur Leffer & Co., of Philadelphia and New York. He has always shown a lively interest in the American League when the club was organized last year he became one of its principal stockholders and in its first position he helped largely in placing the new club firmly on its feet and making it a Baltimore institution. This year Mr. Frank will be too busy with his private business to give the Baltimore Club as much attention as formerly, but he will retain his official connection with the club and give it such time as he may be able to spare.

PRESIDENT ANGUS, OF DETROIT.

Samuel F. Angus is a new man in base ball. The exit of Messrs. Burns and Stallings from the Detroit Club last fall and the reorganization of that concern brought into the American League some new factors in the persons of Messrs. Angus, Doyle, McNamara and Cook, who became the owners Club. Mr. Angus, the leading stockholder, is also the new president of the Detroit Club. He is a portly gentleman, a business man in many directions, but best known as the president of the Detroit, Arbor and Jack trolley line 76 that is destined to reach Chicago. He is an ardent lover of base ball as a pastime and recreation, and will be one of President John's staunchest supporters in the annihilation of rowdyism. He has never been identified with the game in any way except as an enjoying spectator, and has gone into it for the same reason that impels other men of means to buy fast horses or steam yachts—not for profit, but for pleasure and glory.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 RACE.

IN keeping with the financial success of the American League's first campaign as a major league—which firmly established that organization as a National body—was the artistic success in the campaign of 1901. This was really remarkable, considering a first season with so many experimental teams—a condition which will be largely obviated in the present season; the merits, demerits and needs of the various teams having become known during the 1901 campaign. All of the teams played fast, gingery ball, without the aid of handicapping rules, such as the National League found necessary to expedite games. Unfortunately there was, in the first half of the season, an excess of rowdyism, due partly to the mixture of elements accustomed to different methods of procedure and discipline, partly to poor umpiring and partly to over-anxiety for success under new and trying conditions; all of which was, however, stamped out by President Johnson long before the season closed. Considering that war prevailed the discipline of the managers and the self-restraint of the players was remarkable and highly creditable.

THE FIRST DIVISION CLUBS.

Chicago won the championship by reason of superiority in pitchers and base running and a fortunate immunity from serious accidents. Boston, the second club, gave Chicago a close run all season and proved itself the stronger in the inter-club series, but fell down on the homestretch owing to a lack of competent pitchers and a batting slump by the outfield. Detroit, which infused less League talent than any other team, was the best balanced team in the American League, and was so ably handled that it was in the race for the larger part of the season, but finally had to be content with third place, owing to a mid-season run of injuries to valuable players. The Athletic team also had more than a fair share of bad luck in the way of desertions and accidents in the first half of the season, so that the best it could achieve was fourth place, though in the last two months of the season it played the most consistent winning ball in the League.

THE SECOND DIVISION CLUBS.

Baltimore started strong, but accidents to McGraw and Robinson, injuries to other indispensable players, and frequent umpire troubles put the team in the air in mid-season and it never came back, although it made a strong enough finish to wind up in fifth place. Washington played beyond its speed for the first month or so, but finally fell down, the fall being accelerated by the complete failure of a vaunted pitching corps. Cleveland's pitchers went wrong in a bunch in the first month of the campaign, and after that the Spiders never could recover lost ground, although they played strongly in spurts. Milwaukee, the tail-ender, was out-classed from the start in all departments, the team not having been sufficiently strengthened with National League material, and to make matters worse the little new material secured proved almost worthless. Following is the complete record of the 1901 campaign:

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPIONS.

CHICAGO'S American League Team, winners of the championship for 1901, under the lead of the veteran field general, Charles Comiskey, is entitled to the greatest credit for its fine achievement for the reason that it was the oddest combination ever put together for a straight race to the flag. Relics of half a dozen teams, cast-offs from National League clubs in the past; men who in other company never startled the world by their achievements as batters or fielders—this odd collection, with some good pitchers and the training of Comiskey, won first a flag in the slower company of 1900 and then defeated all competitors in the high-class American League of 1901. The value of team work was never more forcibly displayed than in the two flag-winning campaigns of Comiskey and his team, the first and only team to bring a pennant to Chicago since the halcyon days of Anson, away back in 1886. Following will be found pictures and pen sketches of the American League's worthy champion team:

CAPTAIN GRIFFITH.

Clark Griffith, star pitcher, road manager and team captain of the champions, is a striking figure in base ball. He is now thirty years old—

—according to his own tab—and has been a professional ball player since he was sixteen. Pitching 'round Illinois towns in 1887, "Griff," a pupil of Charley Radbourne, soon attracted much attention. He had trials here and there, was once on St.

Louis' list, and finally caught on with Milwaukee, where he starred till James A. Hart got him. His career with the Chicago National League team was one of steady success, although the club never ranked very high in the race. Seeing an opportunity to make a wad of extra cash, "Griff" jumped to Comiskey in 1901 and worked for the success of his new team as he never worked before. Griffith is considered by many experts to be the cleverest of all boxmen, and no other twirler of similar length of service can show so large a percentage of victories. His record last year was 24 victories and 7 defeats for .774. He batted for .300. He is unquestionably a base ball star of the first water.

PITCHER PIATT.

Wiley Piatt, the lone southpaw pitcher of the Chicago team, has had a comparatively short career on the diamond. He first came into prominence with the Dayton club, of the Inter-State League, four years ago. He and Flick, of the same club, were signed in 1887 by Manager Stallings, of the Philadelphia club, and both made remarkable successes in their first League year. Gradually, however, Piatt fell off, and in 1900 his strength was undermined by a severe attack of typhoid fever. In the spring of 1901 he jumped to the Athletic club, of the American League, but failed completely to hold up his end, and was released in June. He was idle all summer, but Comiskey engaged him in the fall, and he showed surprising speed, skill and general effectiveness. On the whole season he won 9 games out of 23 pitched for .391; but for the Chicago team he won 4 games out of 7 pitched for .636.

PITCHER CALLAHAN.

James J. Callahan, second pitcher of the Chicago team, hails from Fitchburg, Mass. After showing good form 'round the New England towns, he was drafted by Philadelphia, and when the Quakers let him go without half a trial they lost a jewel. Drifting to Kansas City, he showed such sensational skill that James A. Hart grabbed him. Callahan won most of his games with Chicago, and played nearly every position in the field from time to time. He joined Criffith in the acrobatic stunt of 1901, and is said to receive an enormous salary from Comiskey. Callahan always ranks high among the pitchers, and is invaluable for batting strength and general fielding ability. Last season he batted for .344, and won 15 games out of 24 pitched for .625.

PITCHER PATTERSON.

Roy Patterson, "the boy wonder of St. Croix," is a Wisconsin lad, now twenty-three years of age. He never played with any professional team until he was given a trial by Comiskey at St. Paul in 1899. It did not take "Commy" long to see that the boy was a coming wonder, and Patterson, under his tuition, went to the front by bounds. He was the leading pitcher of the American League in 1900, his first year of service, and, while starting poorly last year, got back to form by July, and finished with a grand record of winning games. "Pat" is a marvelously scienced pitcher for one so little versed in old leaguers' ways, a light hitter, a fair fielder and a youth of finest habits. He hit for .220 last season, won 16 games pitched and lost 15 for .516.

PITCHER KATOLL.

John Katoll, known to his fellows as "Big Jack," the fourth pitcher of the champion club, was a blacksmith in Detroit till he conceived the idea that he could play ball. He pitched at Utica, N. Y., and did so well that he was given a trial by James A. Hart. He did not last, and went back to the minors for one season, when Comiskey landed him. Since joining the "old Roman" Katoll has been a steady and reliable man, though not brilliant in his work. He has great speed, with fair control, and would be a second Rusie if he thought a bit more actively. Katoll is one of the poorest batters on earth, but is very popular with the Chicago South Side fans. He won 11 games and lost 10 for .523.

CATCHER SULLIVAN.

William D. Sullivan, the star catcher of the Chicago team, did the bulk of the backstop work last season. He was a pupil of Tom Loft-

tus, who developed him at Dubuque, and always maintained that he was bound to be a marvel as a backstop. Loftus secured him a job with the Bostons, and he would have replaced Martin Bergen as chief catcher for the Beaneaters had not a fat salary led him to Chicago. "Sully" was in 95 games last year, batting for .245 and catching superbly. He was generally considered the best maskman in the service of the American League.

CATCHER SUGDEN.

Joseph Sugden, the senior catcher of the Chicago team, is referred to as "the old man," but is really not much over the 30 mark. A Philadelphian, he learned the game around the Quaker City, and first became prominent with Charleston, in the Southern League.

Pittsburgh engaged him in 1893 and kept him some seasons. Falling off in his batting, he was transferred to St. Louis, but did not stick, and went to the American League. After joining Comiskey he showed much improvement in both batting and catching. His batting average last year was .283. The young pitchers considered his coaching invaluable, and his stick work last season was of a high order.

FIRST BASEMAN ISBEL.

Frank Isbel, first baseman, was one of Comiskey's finds. He caught on with "Commy" at St. Paul as a pitcher, but showed such adaptability that he was used at half a dozen other places. He batted so well that James A. Hart drafted him, but the big fellow did not stick in the National League. Mr. Comiskey took him in tow again at St. Paul, kept on developing him and took him to Chicago.

He was to have been used as a pitcher, but an accident to Frank Motz, the regular first baseman, sent Isbel to the initial pillow and he has stayed there ever since, although subbing all over the field for any injured player. "Izzy" led the American League in stolen bases last year. He batted for .261.

SECOND BASEMAN MERTES.

Samuel Mertes, known the country over as "Sandow," the Chicago club's efficient second baseman, was also a discovery of Comiskey, who had him at St. Paul and made him famous. The Philadelphia team took him, but kept him only part of one season despite his hitting and astounding speed on the bases. Mertes went back into the Western League and played such fast ball that Chicago gave him a second trial. He was with Chicago three years and then deserted to the American League. "Commy" intended to use him as a fielder, but the defection of Dick Padden made it necessary to put him in the infield. Here he played ball that was not only fast but heady, while his batting was heavy and his base running second only to that of Isbel. His batting average last season was .280.

THIRD BASEMAN HARTMAN.

Fred Hartman, who covered third base, is a heavily-built German who twice failed in the National League and was never really developed till Comiskey got him. He was in the Johnstown, Pa., club when he first attracted notice. After a brief trial with Pittsburg he went to the Western League, where he did so well that St. Louis took him, later trading him to New York, where he could not harmonize with Mr. Freedman. Back among the minors he fell into the Chicago team and has shown improved form ever since. His hitting, fielding and base running last season were about the best in his career. He batted for .312 on the season.

SHORTSHOP SHUGART.

Frank Shugart, the champions' shortstop, is a veteran of long standing. Back in 1889 Shugart, who lived near Pittsburg, was playing in a New York League club. In 1890 he went into the Inter-State League and played such fast ball that the Chicago Brotherhood team tried him out. He fell back after the Players' League died, and staid among the minors again for a few months when Pittsburg bought him. Subsequently Shugart played with the St. Louis, Louisville and Philadelphia clubs, never ranking as a star, but always rendering conscientious service. He dropped back into the Western League, went to Comiskey and the "old Roman" has made him play real ball for the champions.

OUTFIELDER MCFARLAND.

Herman McFarland, outfielder of the champion Chicago team, made his professional entry in the West, playing in Iowa and Nebraska. He soon acquired enough note to have two National League trials — with Louisville and Cincinnati — and was with Indianapolis for a time. He batted lightly in 1900, and it was not supposed that he would stick in the improved company of 1901. As the issue proved, Herman fooled them, batting cleverly and doing fast work in the field and on the bases. He batted for .265. McFarland hails from the Falls City.

OUTFIELDER JONES.

Fielden Jones, who played right field for the champions, is one of the stars of the American League. Jones first came into prominence under Tom Burns in the Springfield club, of the Eastern League, in 1897, and was drafted by Brooklyn. With the Brooklyn club he had varying fortune, being used mostly as a substitute until last year, when he became the club's regular outfielder and materially helped it to win the National League championship by his great fielding, heavy batting and clever base running. In the spring of 1901 he jumped from the Brooklyn club to the American League, joining Comiskey's team at a fat salary. If anything, he did even better work than the previous year in all departments of the game, and was a great factor in the new champions' success, his batting average being .325. He hails from Shinglehouse, Pa., and is but twenty-five years of age.

OUTFIELDER HOY.

William E. Hoy, the famous "dummy" outfielder, has been a conspicuous figure in base ball ever since 1888, when he went from the Oshkosh team, of the old Northwestern League, to the National League. Despite the fact that he is deaf and dumb, Hoy's work proved so good that he has never lacked work, although shifted to almost every club in the League circuit. In the thirteen years since he entered the fast company Hoy has played on about seven different clubs, always proving a good batsman, fast runner and simply wonderful outfielder. Comiskey got him in 1900, and Hoy's work has shown no sign of deterioration since, although he is now more than thirty-three years old. Hoy, despite his infirmities, is a well-read gentleman of polished manners. His batting average last year was .293.

SUBSTITUTE FOSTER.

Clarence Foster, utility man, is a collegian from Manhattan University. He was a pitcher at school, but acquired some experience as a fielder in the Connecticut League. The New York club, taking him on in 1898, used him for in and outfield work. He played with New York till the summer of the past season, when he went to Washington. The Senators let him out as he was unable to do himself justice through illness. Comiskey gave him a contract, and he won the first game he played with a home run through center field. His work thereafter was so good that he will be given a fair show in 1902. Last season he batted for .270.

AMERICAN LEAGUE AVERAGES.

THE official batting and fielding averages of the American League for 1901, as compiled by President Johnson, are herewith given. Only those players who participated in ten or more championship games are included in these figures. Napoleon Lajoie, of the Athletics, easily leads all the batsmen. His average is .422, a phenomenal one. He played in 121 games, was at bat 543 times and made 145 runs and 220 hits. He sacrificed only once, which accentuates the quality of his fierce batting, and stole 27 bases. Wiltse, of Philadelphia, is second, with a batting average of .373, while McGraw, of Baltimore, is third, with .352. Callahan, of the Chicago club, stands fifth in the list, having an average of .344. He is just below Freeman, of the Boston team. The champion batsman, Lajoie, also leads in the matter of runs, having 145 to his credit, with Williams second and Hoy third. Only thirteen men made 100 or more runs. Isbell, of the Chicago team, leads the League in number of stolen bases, having 48 to his credit. Mertes, of Chicago, pilfered the second greatest number, 44, and Jones, of Chicago, got 42, and Pickering, of Cleveland, 41. No other player reached as high as 40 bases. Nance, of Detroit, made the greatest number of sacrifice hits, 24; Parent, of Boston, made 21, and Stahl, of Boston, 20; Waldron, of Washington, played the greatest number of games—141. The next nearest were Anderson, Collins, Pickering and Ferris, with 138 games each. Thirty-five men batted for .300 or better, as against 24 .300 batsmen in the National League, thus showing greater batting power for the younger American League. The figures follow:

N. LAJOIE.

THE TEAM ERROR RECORD.

In the American League race of 1901 the greatest number of errors made in a single game was 12. There were 105 errorless games, Cleveland and Detroit excelling in this particular. The number of games in which only 1 and 2 errors were made was also exceptionally high as will be seen by the following complete record:

DETROIT AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM OF 1901.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 EXTRA-BATTING.

THE American League players were quite successful during 1901 in making long hits, as a total of 1,530 doubles, 679 triples and 226 home runs attest. The Athletics rolled up an aggregate of 858 extra bases, making the large number of 244 drives for two bases. The Bostons stood in long distance hitting exactly where they finished in the race, viz., second—and, thanks to "Buck" Freeman, outranked the other teams in four-bag jolts. The Orioles, the third team, made by a specialty of triples, getting 112, half a dozen more than the Bostonites negotiated. The Senators stood fourth, the Chicagos fifth, the Tigers sixth, Brewers seventh and the Clevelanders eighth. McAleer's Minions made 202 doubles and only 11 homers.

LAJOIE'S GREAT RECORD.

That wonderful batsman, Napoleon Lajoie, made all other willow wielders bow to him in the matter of extra-base hits, running up the marvelous total of 187 from 48 doubles, 13 triples and 13 home runs. This was 59 more than his 1900 record, and 8 more than Jimmy Williams' 1899 figures, which were considered remarkably high. Lajoie excelled all the players in doubles and homers, honors in triples going to Williams, of Baltimore. Jimmy Collins ranked No. 2, and there were 14 other players who secured three-figure records. The Athletics possessed a trio of pitcher-pounders in Lajoie, Seybold and Davis, who apportioned 103 doubles, 33 triples and 29 home runs.

THE DIFFERENT LEADERS.

There were 16 players who batted for 25 or more doubles, Lajoie making 48, Anderson 47, Collins 42, Farrell 34, Cross 31, Davis 30, Bradley and Hallman (M.) 28; Williams, Holmes, Beck, Dungan and Nance, 26; and Seybold, Powers and Pickering, 25. Seven players displayed especial aptitude in triples, Williams getting 22, Keister and Mertes 19, Collins and Stahl 16, and Ferris 15. The players who made 8 or more home runs, with their records, were: Lajoie 13, Freeman 12, Grady 9, and Anderson, Seybold and Davis 8. In passing it might be noted that in the five double-headers played in August with the Senators, Lajoie and Davis each secured four of their drives for the circuit. The complete long-hitting record of the clubs and teams of the American League, as compiled by Mr. Ernest J. Lanigan, is appended:

THESE DREW ZEROS.

The players credited with long hits number 143. The 39 individuals who did not bat for an extra-base drive were:

Plank, Ketchum, Loos, Leitner, McPherson, Carr, McKinney and Linderman. Athletics; Piatt, Athletic-Chicago; Baker, Cleveland-Athletic; Lockhead, Detroit-Athletic; Snodgrass, Latimer, Schmidt and Karns, Baltimore; Kellum, Morrissey, Slatery, Wilson, Volz and Gleason, Boston; Dupee and McAleese, Chicago; Cervak, Moore, Hart, Braggins, Hallman, Cross, Hall, McAleer, Weyhing, Hogan, Gallagher and Livingston, Cleveland; High, Detroit; McBride, King and Garvin, Milwaukee.

INDIVIDUAL BATTING FEATS.

Following is a table showing the number of times players were credited with four, five or six safeties. Lajoie and Waldron each secured a quartette of hits six times, while Clarke twice made five hits. The only six-hit games are claimed by Donlin and Nance, each of whom batted safely every time up. The figures:

TOTAL HITS BY TEAMS.

The Athletics during the season of 1901 made the most base hits. They got in 1,404 good drives and have the satisfaction of being the only team which averaged more than 10 hits in each contest, the Baltimores being 0.04 shy of earning that distinction. The averages of the clubs were:

HEAVY SCORING GAMES.

During 1901, in 40 American League games, one team scored 13 or more runs, while in five contests both clubs were credited with 13 or more tallies. There was also a quartette of games in which teams secured 20 or more tallies. The Detroit-Cleveland game of September 15th (21 to 0) was the most one-sided contest of the year, while the Boston-Athletic match of May 2d (23 to 12) was productive of the greatest number of tallies. The hoodoo number 13 turned up 17 times, Washington and the Athletics playing a tie game with that score July 1st. Following is the list:

- April 25th.—Detroit, 14; Milwaukee, 13.

SOME LARGE INNINGS.

Thrice during the season did clubs make 10 runs in an inning. Detroit surprised Milwaukee in this manner in the ninth, April 25th, and the Brewers returned the compliment in the fourth, August 4th. The Bostons, on May 2d, flushed 10 tallies in the third round of their affair with the Athletics. These were the large innings of 1901:

April 25th.—Detroit, 10 runs in ninth off Dowling and Husting, of Milwaukee.

May 1st.—Chicago, 8 runs in the second off Yeager, of Detroit.

May 2d.—Boston, 9 runs in second off Loos and Bernhard, of Athletics, and 10 runs in third off Bernhard, of Athletics.

May 5th.—Milwaukee, 8 runs in fourth off Patterson, of Chicago.

May 20th.—Detroit, 8 runs in ninth off Hart, of Cleveland.

May 23d.—Cleveland, 9 runs in ninth off Patten and Lee, of Washington.

June 2d.—Boston, 9 runs in ninth off Reidy, of Milwaukee.

June 8th.—Boston, 8 runs in fourth off Sparks, of Milwaukee.

June 10th.—Washington, 8 runs in eighth off Katoll, of Chicago.

June 14th.—Boston, 9 runs in eighth off Cronin, of Detroit.

July 9th.—Chicago, 9 runs in sixth off Garvin and Husting, of Milwaukee.

July 20th.—Baltimore, 8 runs in second off Sparks, of Milwaukee.

Aug. 4th.—Milwaukee, 10 runs in fourth off Cronin, of Detroit.

Aug. 31st.—Cleveland, 9 runs in seventh off Mercer, of Washington.

Sept. 7th.—Washington, 9 runs in fifth off Husting, of Milwaukee.

Sept. 18th.—Chicago, 8 runs in sixth off McGinnity and Dunn, of Baltimore.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 BATTING FEATS.

THE American League campaign of 1901 was marked by some remarkable batting feats by teams. In 16 games teams hit opposing pitchers for 20 or more safe hits. Roy Patterson, the St. Croix wonder, failed to live up to his title, May 5th, when the Brewers batted him for 25 hits, for a total of 36 bases. Dale Gear was walloped for an aggregate of 41 bases August 10th. Bernhard got badly bumped by the Bostons three times. Following is the record of the heaviest batting feats:

April 28th.—Chicago, 23 singles off Baker, of Cleveland.

May 2d.—Boston, 13 singles, 5 doubles and 3 triples off Loos and Bernhard, of Athletics.

May 5th.—Milwaukee, 17 singles, 6 doubles, 1 triple and 1 home run off Patterson, of Chicago.

May 8th.—Boston, 16 singles, 1 double, 4 triples and 1 home run off Bernhard, of Athletics.

May 31st.—Athletics, 15 singles, 4 doubles, 1 triple and 1 home run off Moore, Braggins and Hoffer, of Cleveland.

June 24th.—Baltimore, 14 singles, 3 doubles and 5 triples off Miller, of Detroit.

June 29th.—Athletics, 17 singles, 5 doubles and 1 triple off Foreman and McGinnity, of Baltimore.

July 24th.—Chicago, 14 singles, 4 doubles and 2 triples off Patten, of Washington.

Aug. 2d.—Boston, 18 singles and 4 doubles off Bernhard, of Athletics.

Aug. 8th.—Chicago, 16 singles, 4 doubles and 1 triple off Siever and Cronin, of Detroit.

Aug. 10th.—Athletics, 13 singles, 4 doubles, 4 triples and 2 home runs off Gear, of Washington.

Aug. 11th.—Detroit, 16 singles and 4 doubles off Reidy and Hawley, of Milwaukee.

Aug. 13th.—Chicago, 19 singles, 2 triples and 1 home run off McNeal, of Cleveland.

Aug. 29th.—Cleveland, 16 singles, 4 doubles and 1 triple off Lee and Mercer, of Washington.

Sept. 15th.—Detroit, 15 singles, 7 doubles and 1 home run off Bracken, of Cleveland.

Sept. 21st.—Washington, 20 singles, 1 double and 2 triples off McNeal, of Cleveland.

NOTEWORTHY FEATS.

Here are the noteworthy batting incidents of the American League's 1901 campaign given in detail and by month:

APRIL.

April 25th.—The Detroiters made 9 two-baggers off the Milwaukee pitchers, four of them coming in the ninth inning, when 10 Tigers found their way over the pan. Dillon made 4 doubles

In this game and two of them in this inning, his last swipe bringing Gleason in with the winning tally.

April 26th.—The Baltimores batted Kellum for 11 hits, of which 5 were doubles and 3 were triples. In the first six rounds the Orioles did not get such an insignificant thing as a base hit.

April 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th.—In four games played with the Milwaukeees, the Detroits made 45 runs and 61 hits for a total of 81 bases. Each contest was won by the Tigers in their last time at bat, they securing 10, 2 and 4 runs in the ninth and 5 in the eighth.

April 29th.—Home runs by Dillon and Elberfeld in the sixth, following an error by Brain, brought in all of Detroit's runs and enabled the Tigers to defeat the White Socks, 3 to 2.

April 30th.—Freeman's home run in the ninth, scoring Stahl, enabled the Bostons to tie the Athletics and win in the tenth.

MAY.

May 2d.—Eleven two-baggers were made in the Boston-Athletic game, 6 by the Quakers and 5 by the Somersets.

May 7th.—In a game with Milwaukee, Detroit scored 9 runs, each player making one.

May 8th.—Baltimore defeated Washington 5 to 1, making all her runs in the initial inning. The game was played in one hour and five minutes.

May 11th.—Washington defeated Boston 3 to 2, the Senators getting all their tallies right at the start on a trio of gifts and Quinn's double.

May 17th.—Home runs in the ninth inning by Foster and Coughlin were the deciding factors in the Athletics-Washington game, which the Senators won 8 to 7.

May 18th.—Isbell's three hits—a single, double and homer—helped the Chicago to four of their five runs, and their victory over Milwaukee was due to him.

May 31st.—Holmes' home run in the ninth inning of the Detroit-Baltimore game tied the score. In a wrangle over Ducky's hit, the Orioles forfeited to the Tigers.

JUNE.

June 2d.—Eleven two-baggers were made in the Milwaukee-Boston game, eight by the Collinsites and three by the Brewers.

June 5th.—Buelow's home run in the eighth decided the Detroit-Athletic game in favor of the former.

June 10th.—The Washingtons made four singles, a double and two home runs in the eighth inning of the game with Chicago, scoring eight runs and tying the score. In the tenth Hartman's home run with two men on bases gave the White Socks the victory.

June 11th.—The Detroits whipped the Athletics 4 to 1, making all their runs in the first inning on two doubles and three singles. Thereafter, Fraser held the Tigers down to two doubles.

June 20th.—The Clevelandes batted Bernhard, of the Athletics, for 17 hits and scored but 6 runs. A queer feature of this queer game was that the first nine swats, two of which were doubles, netted just one run.

June 24th.—The Athletics swatted Callahan, of Chicago, for 19 hits and scored only 5 tallies, 4 of which were made in the first inning and the other in the fourteenth.

June 28th.—Parent's homer in the eighth scored 4 runs and decided the Washington-Boston game in favor of the latter team, 6 to 5.

JULY.

July 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th.—In six games the Washingtons scored but six runs, as follows: 1, 0, 1, 1, 1 and 2.

July 10th.—Chicago's 16 hits off Sparks, of Milwaukee, produced only 5 runs. The Brewers scored 4 runs off five hits.

July 13th.—Seventeen hits were made off the Cleveland pitchers by five of the Detroit players.

July 30th.—Before a man was put out in the sixth inning, the Athletics had scored 6 runs and the bases were full, Earle Moore, of Cleveland, being the sufferer. Lajoie's home run in this inning chased three men in ahead of him.

AUGUST.

Aug. 3d.—Scott made a home run in the tenth inning, enabling Cleveland to defeat Milwaukee, 8 to 7.

Aug. 4th.—The Brewers scored 10 of their 11 runs in a game with Detroit, in the fourth inning.

Aug. 8th.—In the double-header between the Washington and Athletic Clubs, 18 two-baggers were made, 11 by the Quakers and 7 by the Senators.

Aug. 10th.—In the eighth and ninth innings the Athletics scored 9 runs and made 12 hits, for twice as many bases, off Gear, of Washington. Between them the Quakers' battery—Wiltse and Powers—scored 7 runs and made 8 hits, for an aggregate of 19 pillows.

Aug. 12th.—Anderson made a home run over the left field fence at Bennett Park, Detroit, being the third player to accomplish the feat since the grounds were opened. Fifield and Williams are the other men who have duplicated "Handy Andy's" feat.

Aug. 17th.—Hartman made two doubles and a triple off Lewis, and yet failed to score or bring in a run.

Aug. 22d.—Chicago's 18 hits off Howell, of Baltimore, produced but 6 runs.

Aug. 22d.—Foster's home run in the ninth, scoring Dungan, enabled Washington to beat Milwaukee, 4 to 3.

Aug. 30th.—McAllister's home run in the eighth, bringing in a man ahead of him, was the cause of Detroit's 6-to-4 victory over Boston in the first game of the double-header.

SEPTEMBER.

Sept. 5th.—Boston defeated Milwaukee 4 to 2. The Somersets did all their scoring in the eighth, a home run by Stahl being responsible for three tallies.

Sept. 7th.—Seybold's homer in the ninth inning of the Cleveland-Athletic contest, sending in two men ahead of him, won the game for the latter, 7 to 4.

Sept. 8th.—Keister's three hits—a double and two triples—brought in four of the Orioles five runs in a game with Detroit.

Sept. 9th.—A drive for the circuit by Foster in the eighth inning of the Boston-Chicago game gave the White Socks victory, 4 to 3.

WASHINGTON AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM OF 1901.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 BASE-RUNNING.

THE American League teams of 1901 were particularly showy in base running, in which department they excelled the rival National League by a total of 1,465 stolen bases to 1,390. The champion Chicagos were the American League leaders in base stealing, and to their swift and heady work on the paths the White Socks owed a large percentage of their victories. Comiskey's men pilfered more cushions than any other team in the American League, viz., 268. Baltimore was the second best base stealing team. Following are the team records of stolen bases:

Of the above list of base stealers Chicago, Milwaukee and Athletic had 16 men each, Detroit, Baltimore and Cleveland 15 each, Washington 14, and Baltimore 11. Twenty-one players, taking part in 15 or more games, failed to steal even one base. The list is:

Wiltse, Plank and Bernhard, Athletics; Nops and Foutz, Baltimore; Winters, Cuppy, Lewis and Mitchell, Boston; Hart, Hoffer and Scott, Cleveland; Platt, Athletics and Chicago; Dowling, Milwaukee and Cleveland; Sparks, Hawley, Garvin, Hustling and Bruyette, of Milwaukee, and Patten and Carrick, of Washington.

All but two of the above men (Foutz and Bruyette) are pitchers.

CLUB SACRIFICE-HIT RECORD.

During the American League 1901 campaign there were 797 sacrifice hits; Chicago making 130, Detroit 124, Milwaukee 112, Boston 97, Athletics 89, Baltimore 88, Cleveland 79 and Washington 78. The first division clubs used the sacrifice on 440 occasions, while the second divisioners utilized the play 357 times. Western teams 445 and Eastern teams 352 represent the sectional records. This compilation will show the sacrifice hits made by the outfielders, infielders and battery men of each team:

The American League's best sacrifice batting team would be: Pitcher Dunn, of Baltimore; catcher, Sullivan, of Chicago; first base, Isbell, of Chicago; second base, Mertes, of Chicago; third base, Burke, of Milwaukee; shortstop, Parent, of Boston; outfielders, Nance, of Detroit, Fultz, of Philadelphia and Jones, of Chicago.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 PITCHING.

DESPITE the fact that the American League teams of 1901 excelled in batting, the pitchers held up their end very well, and some of them made phenomenal records. As a corps the Chicago pitchers excelled all others—one, Griffith, led all the pitchers in percentage of victories; another, Callahan, ranked fourth; and another, Patterson, stood eleventh in a large field; Katoll also won a majority of his games. Philadelphia comes next with four pitchers who won more games than they lost, its corps consisting of Wiltse, Bernhard, Fraser and Plank. Boston had three such pitchers—Young, Lewis and Winters—and Baltimore three in McGinnity, Foreman and Nops. Detroit shows up at the finish with three winners in Miller, Yeager and Sievers. Washington had two in Patten and Lee; Cleveland had one in Moore and Milwaukee had not any. Following is the complete 1901 record of the American League pitchers:

RUNS SCORED OFF PITCHERS.

The record of 1901 shows that in the 548 games played from April 24 to September 28, inclusive, the American League batsmen made 5,857 runs and 10,481 base hits, an average per contest of the first commodity of 5.34 and of the second of 9.56, these figures representing each club's share, of course. The Boston club pitchers were the leading corps, for in addition to ranking first in accuracy and strike outs they stand at the top in runs and hits made off their deliveries. Young and his assistants were scored on 608 times, 24 less tallies than were marked up against Griffith, Callahan & Co. The average of runs scored on the Bostons' opponents per game was 4.40 and by the Chicagos' 4.61. Then follow, in the order named, Detroit (5.04), Athletics (5.54), Baltimore (5.57), Washington (5.58), Milwaukee, (5.95) and Cleveland (6.02). This table shows the number of times the pitchers of each team were found for from one to 23 tallies, not forgetting their 55 shut outs:

SUMMARY.

Single-figure games, Boston, 128; Chicago, 125; Milwaukee, 119; Washington, 119; Athletics, 118; Detroit, 118; Baltimore, 115; Cleveland, 114. Double-figure games, Boston, 10; Chicago, 12; Detroit, 17; Athletics, 19; Baltimore, 19; Washington, 19; Milwaukee, 20; Cleveland, 24.

RUNS SCORED BY CLUBS.

In the matter of runs scored by clubs one finds that the Chicagos captured the most—viz., 821, or an average of 5.99 per game. Some idea of the ability of the White Socks in successfully steering themselves around the bases may be gained when it is stated that they tallied their 821 runs on 1,297 hits, while the Athletics, who are credited with 1,404 safe drives, only secured 804 counts and the Bostons, with 1,342 bingles, but 750. It may be remarked that in the difference of runs per game between each club and its opponents, the teams stand exactly as they did at the close of the pennant race. The figures:

WORK OF EACH PITCHING CORPS.

The following table shows the work of each club's pitching corps in the matter of hits per game. Based on the average of hits per game the Boston pitching corps again leads, with Chicago second, Detroit third, Athletics fourth, Cleveland fifth, Baltimore sixth, Milwaukee seventh, and Washington last:

THE YEAR'S PITCHING PERFORMANCES.

The full crop of pitching feats was reaped during the season of 1901, there being 143 instances of teams making less than 6 hits, a decrease of 18 compared with the preceding year. Not a pitcher last season succeeded in shutting out an opposing team without hit or run. There were four 1-hit feats, eleven 2-hit feats and sixteen 3-hit feats. Following is the complete record:

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 SHUT-OUTS.

DURING the American League race of 1901 there were 55 shut-out games, a decrease of 23 from the 1900 season. There was not one 0-0 game. The Chicago team shut out most teams and Milwaukee the least. The Chicago record was remarkable from the fact that of its 11 shut-out games, 4 were inflicted on the hard-hitting Athletics. Detroit was a clever second, with 9, and the Tigers claimed as victims every club but Chicago. The Milwaukeees could only shut out their opponents 3 times, and on 13 occasions their run column presented unbroken naughts. Following is the complete shut-out record:

PITCHERS' SHUT-OUT RECORD.

The above tabulated 55 shut-outs were apportioned between 28 twirlers, the two veterans—Griffith and Young—each having 5. Moore, Patten and Patterson, each with 4, and Miller and Yeager, each with 3, are other pitchers who ranked well up in "Chicago" victories. The Southpaws did exceptionally well, capturing 16 goose-egg events. The following men were credited with two white-wash victories over the same team: Griffith against Athletics; Young against Washington; Patten against Cleveland and Milwaukee; Patterson against Athletics; Dowling against Milwaukee; Lee against Boston, and Wiltse against Washington. Following is the record:

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1901 RACE INCIDENTS.

FOLLOWING is a review of some of the more important or remarkable incidents of the American League 1901 race, as gleaned from an exhaustive review compiled by Ernest J. Lanigan, the well-known Montreal statistician. The list of championship games marked by remarkable ninth-inning finishes was as follows:

APRIL.

- April 25th.—Detroit, 14; Milwaukee, 12; 10 runs.
 April 26th.—Detroit, 6; Milwaukee, 5; 2 runs.
 April 28th.—Detroit, 12; Milwaukee, 11; 4 runs.

MAY.

- May 2d.—Detroit, 7; Chicago, 5; 5 runs. (Game awarded to Detroit by score of 9 to 0 on account of Chicago's dilatory tactics.)
 May 2d.—Milwaukee, 9; Cleveland, 7; 4 runs.
 May 9th.—Milwaukee, 7; Detroit, 6; 3 runs.
 May 10th.—Chicago, 5; Cleveland, 4; 1 run.
 May 13th.—Detroit, 8; Chicago, 7; 1 run.
 May 16th.—Baltimore, 8; Boston, 7; 1 run.
 May 17th.—Chicago, 7; Milwaukee, 6; 1 run.
 May 17th.—Washington, 8; Athletics, 7; 2 runs.
 May 20th.—Washington, 5; Athletics, 4; 3 runs.
 May 22d.—Boston, 9; Detroit, 5; 4 runs.
 May 23d.—Cleveland, 14; Washington, 13; 9 runs.
 May 25th.—Chicago, 6; Athletics, 5; 1 run.
 May 28th.—Athletics, 4; Milwaukee, 3; 1 run.

JUNE.

- June 2d.—Washington, 7; Chicago, 5; 2 runs.
 June 11th.—Cleveland, 8; Baltimore, 5; 4 runs.
 June 20th.—Washington, 8; Detroit, 7; 2 runs.
 June 20th.—Boston, 4; Chicago, 3; 2 runs.
 June 26th.—Milwaukee, 8; Cleveland, 5; 4 runs.
 June 26th.—Washington, 5; Athletics, 4; 4 runs.
 June 27th.—Detroit, 4; Milwaukee, 3; 1 run.

JULY.

- July 4th.—Cleveland, 6; Chicago, 5; 1 run.
 July 5th.—Chicago, 8; Detroit, 4; 4 runs.
 July 13th.—Milwaukee, 3; Chicago, 2; 1 run.
 July 16th.—Boston, 10; Cleveland, 8; 5 runs.
 July 27th.—Detroit, 1; Baltimore, 0; 1 run.

 Sept. 24th.—Athletics, 5; Milwaukee, 4; 1 run.
 Sept. 26th.—Boston, 3; Chicago, 2; 1 run.
 Sept. 26th.—Baltimore, 10; Cleveland, 9; 2 runs.

TWIRLED FOR THE DEFEATED TEAMS.

Thirty-one men did the twirling for the defeated teams in the above list of games decided in the ninth. "Zaza" Harvey and Wiley Piatt each let four contests escape at the eleventh hour. Garvin dropped three and so did Pete Dowling. Here are the boxmen against whom ninth-inning victories were secured:

Bracken, Cleveland	1	Patten, Washington	1
Braggins, Cleveland	1	Plank, Athletics	1
Carrick, Washington	1	Reidy, Milwaukee	1
Cronin, Detroit	1	Cristall, Cleveland	2
Fraser, Athletics	1	Griffith, Chicago	2
Gear, Washington	1	Hart, Cleveland	2
Husting, Milwaukee	1	Howell, Baltimore	2
Katoll, Chicago	1	McGinnity, Baltimore	2
Lewis, Boston	1	Sievers, Detroit	2
McNeal, Cleveland	1	Sparks, Milwaukee	2
Miller, Detroit	1	Young, Boston	2
Milligan, Athletics	1	Dowling, Milwaukee	3
Moore, Cleveland	1	Garvin, Milwaukee	3
Nops, Baltimore	1	Harvey, Chicago	4
Owen, Detroit	1	Piatt, Athletics-Chicago	4

GAMES WON AND LOST BY A RUN.

There were 119 games in which the winning team's margin was one run, as against 149 such contests in 1900 and 134 in 1899. There were games of such variety in every series, the Milwaukee-Detroit contests being most productive of these narrow margin affairs. The Detroit's won five contests in this series by one run and the Brewers corralled four. Detroit took the lead in one-run victories and Milwaukee was most often defeated in this manner. The season's record:

Clubs.	Detroit.	Chicago.	Baltimore.	Athletics.	Boston.	Milwaukee.	Washington.	Cleveland.	Victories.	Percentage.
Detroit.....	..	3	1	3	3	5	1	3	19	.558

NINTH INNING VICTORIES AND DEFEATS.

In 1900 an even half century of games were decided in the ninth, and in 1901 49 contests were marked by eye-lash finishes, being snatched as brands from the burning in the last regularly scheduled round. Of 49 games, one tally decided 22 contests. In 14 games two runs reversed the result: 4 were lost by three runs; 10 by four runs; 2 by five runs; 1 by nine runs and 1 by the margin of ten runs. This last number was marked up by the Detroit in their first game of the season, April 25th, while on May 23th the Cleveland sent nine men over the pan in their wind-up with the Washingtons, the rally coming after two men were out. Detroit won the most games of this character, though Washingtons had the superior percentage, while the Chicagos and the Milwaukeees were least successful in contests of this variety, each dropping 10 at the terminal.

Milwaukee's percentage was, however, lower than Chicago's. The club record of these games:

Clubs.	Washington.	Detroit.	Boston.	Athletics.	Baltimore.	Chicago.	Cleveland.	Milwaukee.	Victories.	Percentage.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RELEASES OF 1901.

DURING the season of 1901 there were many releases of players in the two major leagues. The decapitations were about even, the National League Clubs freeing 59 men and the American League Clubs 57. Of the managers who were most active in distributing 10-day notices, the three Macs—McGillicuddy, McAleer and McPhee—take the cake and all the rest of the bakery. Connie and Jimmie each chased 14 wonders to the tall timbers, while “King” Bid parted with 13 world-beaters, including that rising young twirler, Aggie Weyhing. Jack Dunn, Morris Steelman, George Yeager, “Dummy” Leitchner, Joe Dolan, “Truck” Eagan, Fred Ely, Lew Wiltse, Billy Hallman, “Jiggs” Donahue and Gus Weyhing saw service in both camps, and the last named youngster had the proud distinction of being one of the two players who got it where Kittie wore the beads from the American and National Leagues. Eagan, who went to California, shared honors with the Louisvillian in this respect.

THE MILWAUKEE AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM OF 1901.

EXTRA-INNING GAMES OF 1901.

THE first major league campaign of the American League was marked by many remarkable games, a résumé of which is herewith given. There was quite a decrease in the extra-inning games as compared with 1900. In 1901 there were 32 overtime events, as against 51 drawn-out battles in 1900. Last season's longest game (16 innings, July 3d, between Detroit and Milwaukee) failed to equal by one round the 1900 banner battle, when the Brewers bested the White Socks 3 to 2, and "Rube" Waddell covered himself with glory by pitching 22 consecutive innings, being on the slab in a five-round contest started immediately at the close of the first event. All but two of last year's extra-inning games were decided, Baltimore and Milwaukee playing an 11-inning draw (5 to 5) on August 27th, and Boston and Washington indulging in a 10-round tie (6 to 6) on September 12th.

NOTEWORTHY CONTESTS.

Comiskey's superb team earned honors in extra-inning games by capturing eight out of twelve, three of their victories being over Cleveland. They scored a notable triumph at Philadelphia on June 24th, when they defeated the Athletics 7 to 5 in 14 rounds, after Mack's Minions had chased four runners over the pan in the first inning.

Boston ranked second in capturing lengthy contests, taking five and giving away three, and playing one draw. The Collinsites' first win of the season came after 10 innings of play with the Athletics on April 30th, while their red-letter triumph put in an appearance on August 27th, when they scalped the Wolverines, 2 to 1, in 15 rounds.

Baltimore broke even in extra-inning struggles, while Detroit took four and dropped five. Detroit got the decision in the longest game of the year, over Milwaukee on July 3d, Miller outpitching Garvin, who weakened in the sixteenth and allowed the first three men to bat out singles and win the game, after having shut them out the previous nine innings. Milwaukee took four out of nine lengthy inning games; Washington, three out of seven; Cleveland, two out of five, and the Athletics, three out of eight, two of their three wins being over the champions. Eleven extra-inning games were played in July, seven in June, seven in August, three in May, three in September and one in April. A record showing the over-time events won and lost by each club is given below:

AMERICAN LEAGUE'S LONGEST GAMES.

In the history of the American League, from its minor league start to the present time, no game has been played of a greater length than 17 innings. There have been three such contests and four that ran into 16 rounds. These were:

July 3d, 1887, Northwestern League—Milwaukee defeated Oshkosh, 4 to 3, in 17 innings. For 15 successive innings neither side scored.

September 7th, 1896, Western League—Grand Rapids defeated Kansas City, 10 to 9, in 16 innings.

May 8th, 1899, Western League—St. Paul defeated Milwaukee, 5 to 4, in 17 innings. Roger Denzer retired the Brewers with six hits.

September 4th, 1899, Western League—St. Paul defeated Indianapolis, 3 to 2, in 16 innings. Roy Patterson held the Hoosiers down to eight hits.

July 22d, 1900, American League—Chicago and Cleveland played a 16-inning draw, each team scoring 5 runs.

August 19th, 1900, American League—Milwaukee defeated Chicago, 3 to 2, in 17 innings.

THE PITCHERS' WORK.

Glancing at the pitchers who worked in the extra-inning games last season, Patten's name appeared most frequently. The Westport, N. Y., lad butted into half-a-dozen events that required extra-innings, winning two, letting three escape and getting one draw. Jack Katoll and Roscoe Miller each figured in five overtime contests and each won four. Jimmy Callahan brought home all his extra-inning games, while Cy Young broke even. The records of the twirlers in this respect follow:

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 TEAMS.

THE American League managers, encouraged by the amazing success of the first season of the American League as a major organization, bent all their energies last fall and winter toward still further strengthening their respective teams with the result that for 1902 the American League will present to its patrons the strongest and best balanced teams ever put into the field by any League. Following is a correct and official roster of the American League teams as they are alleged to enter the campaign of 1902:

CHICAGO—Manager, Clark Griffith. Pitchers—Griffith, Callahan, Garvin, Katoll, Skopec and Patterson. Catchers—McFarland and Sullivan. Infielders—Isbel, Tom Daly, George Davis and Strang. Outfielders—Jones, Mertes, McFarlan and Green.

ST. LOUIS—Manager, James McAleer. Pitchers—Powell, Sudhoff, Donahue, Husting, Reidy and Harper. Catchers—Douglas, Sugden and Malony. Infielders—Anderson, Padden, Wallace, McCormick and Friel. Outfielders—Burkett, Heidrick and D. Jones.

DETROIT—Manager, Frank Dwyer. Pitchers—Miller, Sievers, Yeager, Mercer, Cronin, Mullins and Crystal. Catchers—Buelow and McAllister. Infielders—Dillon, Gleason, Casey and Eberfeld. Outfielders—Harley, Barrett and Holmes.

CLEVELAND—Manager, W. A. Armour. Pitchers—Wright, Moore Vosbinder, L. Taylor, Kenna. Catchers—Wood, Bemis. Infielders—Schrecongost, Bonner, Bradley, Gochnaur, Nattress, Thoney, Shea. Outfielders—McCarthy, Pickering, Hemphill, Hoy, Harvey.

PHILADELPHIA—Manager, Connie Mack. Pitchers—Fraser, Bernhard, Plank, Wiltse and Duggleby. Catchers—Steelman and Powers. Infielders—Harry Davis, Lajoie, Lave Cross, Robinson and Monte Cross. Outfielders—Hartsell, Fultz, Seybold and Flick.

BOSTON—Manager, James Collins. Pitchers—Young, Winters, Dineen, Prentice and Mitchell. Catchers—Warner and Criger. Infielders—Lachance, Ferris, Collins and Parent. Outfielders—Hickman, Stahl, Dougherty and Freeman.

BALTIMORE—Manager, John McGraw. Pitchers—McGinnity, Howell, Hughes, Foreman and Nops. Catchers—Robinson, Bresnahan and Erickson. Infielders—McGann, Williams, McGraw and Gilbert. Outfielders—Selbach, Donlin, J. Kelly, Seymour.

WASHINGTON—Manager, Tom Loftus. Pitchers—Carrick, Lee, Orth, Patten and Townsend. Catchers—Donahue and Clark. Infielders—Carey, Wolverton, Keister, Coughlin and Ely. Outfielders—Delahanty, Ryan and Gettman.

The umpire corps will consist of Messrs. Robert Caruthers, Frank O'Loughlin, John Sheridan and Joseph Cantillon—the best corps of umpires President Johnson could possibly select.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PLAYERS USED.

DURING the season of 1901 the American League Clubs put into the field 301 players, many shifts being necessitated by injuries and ejections by the umpires. Seymour, Gleason, Hoy and Fielden Jones were the only players who played in every inning of every championship game. The following table shows the number of men used in each position of the eight American League Clubs:

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE 1901 SEASON.

THE 1901 season of the National League—the last under the twelve-club Indianapolis compact—was more successful than was hoped or expected, considering the state of war that prevailed, the inroads made by the American into the National League's territory and teams, and the heavy conflicts in dates that prevailed in the earlier and most remunerative part of the season; also considering that the race was good only in spots.

THE ATTENDANCE

was excellent in most of the cities and grew better as the season advanced, thus showing that after all was said and done the old organization, with the prestige and record of a quarter of a century clinging to it, still had a strong hold upon the public, and that it needed only decent management, liberal catering to the public and a friendlier attitude toward the press on part of the League magnates for the old organization to at least hold its own for the future. Age, prestige, previous good repute and past great achievements count for a good deal after all in this mundane sphere; and if the League magnates had always been as mindful of dignity and diplomacy as they were jealous of their prerogatives the old League would have escaped much abuse, loss and trouble.

THE FINANCIAL RESULT.

That the season was measurably successful financially is shown by the fact that the League clubs, in the aggregate, played to about 1,900,000 people, outdrawing the American League by nearly a quarter of a million—as they should have done, considering their more populous circuit. For this good result, in a state of war, the National League was indebted first, to rigid adherence of its policy of going along as though there were no war and no rival league; and second, to the splendid showing made by the St. Louis, New York and Pittsburg clubs, which enjoyed a monopoly of their productive territory. In fact, the League's drawing power was only affected in the three cities where were located, and there more largely owing to the incapacity of the teams than to American League opposition. Viewing the situation broadly it may be said that the war benefited rather than injured the sport from the standpoint of public interest and enthusiasm, although it undoubtedly had some effect upon club exchequers by reason of increased expenses. It is safe to say, however, that the St. Louis, New York and Pittsburg clubs made big money, that the Brooklyn and Cincinnati clubs also cleared enough to declare dividends, that the Philadelphia club broke about even, and that the Chicago and Boston clubs were the only losers.

A. G. SPALDING

NATIONAL LEAGUE REORGANIZATION.

THE season of 1901 of the National League was the final one under the twelve-arrangement, commonly known as the Indianapolis agreement. Regarding this there was a rather hazy conflict of opinion. Some magnates argued that with the end of the ten years' term the League itself dissolved and required entire reorganization; other magnates held that the League was perpetual and that only the twelve-club membership ended with the expiration of the ten years. This radical difference of opinion not only paralyzed all the energies of the National League during the conflict with the American League, and caused it to drift aimlessly and almost hopelessly, but produced such friction as to divide the League magnates into hostile and eventually irreconcilable factions.

REORGANIZATION SCHEMES.

During the summer of 1901 President Robison, of the St. Louis Club, opened correspondence with the various club presidents with a view to inducing Mr. A. G. Spalding to accept the National League presidency. Somewhat later Mr. Spalding endeavored to secure options on various clubs, with a view, as he afterward declared, of putting local backing into the Cincinnati and St. Louis Clubs and buying Mr. Freedman altogether out of the New York Club. Failing to secure the needed options Mr. Spalding abandoned his scheme. About the same time Mr. Brush evolved a scheme to make of the National League one large corporation on the lines of a trust; in which the club owners should be merely pro rata stockholders, and which should be administered by a Board of Control, which would govern managers and players thoroughly and apportion them at will by a system of licenses instead of contracts. For this plan Mr. Brush secured the coöperation of the New York, St. Louis and Boston Clubs, at a secret conference at Red Bank, N. J. Believing that the scheme would surely go through it was decided at this meeting to abrogate the old National Agreement and abolish the National Board of Arbitration on September 30, 1901, which was done on the appointed date, thereby causing the National League to abdicate its leadership in base ball and compelling the minor magnates to band themselves together as a National Association under their own National Agreement.

THE TRUST ISSUE.

A week before the National League meeting Mr. Brush visited Mr. Dreyfus, in Pittsburg, to secure his assent to the reorganization plan, which Mr. Dreyfus refused. On the day before the meeting several New York papers printed the Brush trust plan in full, thus giving the Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Chicago Clubs their first intimation of what was proposed. The scheme was killed on the first day of the meeting, December 10th, when, after a long debate, the League, by a vote of 5 to 3, adopted a resolution, by Col. Rogers, declaring that the League did not lapse with the expiration of the ten-year agreement, but was perpetual. As the Brush plan was predicated on the belief that the League would have to be reorganized after dissolution on December 10th, the League's declaration to the contrary settled the trust scheme of reorganization. At this session an attempt was made to elect Mr. Spalding president, out of the regular order of business, but this failed on a tie vote, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburg voting for and the remaining four clubs against Mr. Spalding. At this session Mr. Spalding appeared before the delegates and made a powerful speech in favor of preserving the old organization.

THE BRUSH PLAN REJECTED.

Three more days were spent in settling the National League's financial affairs and discussing the Brush trust plan, which was introduced in various informal ways for expression of opinion. On the night of Thursday, December 12th, after a long discussion, Mr. Brush handed the papers to Mr. Rogers for perusal, after adjournment, by himself and the other three clubs not in the combine. After going over the scheme carefully the Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Pittsburg and Chicago Clubs unanimously rejected it as impracticable as applied to the National game of base ball. Mr. Brush was notified to this effect, and he so reported to the League at Friday afternoon's session.

MR. SPALDING'S RADICAL MOVE.

While all this was going on within the League Mr. Spalding, irritated over the everlasting trust scheme discussion and the intentional staving off of the presidential election, on Thursday evening called the local and visiting reporters together in a room at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and exposed the true inwardness of the situation. He charged Messrs. Freedman and Brush with scheming to force the trust scheme on the League, and with intention to hold-up the League indefinitely until they could succeed. He also charged that the combine against him was due to his opposition to the trust scheme. In support of his statement he gave out a mass of interesting correspondence, all of which was subsequently published. Mr. Spalding also strongly denounced Mr. Freedman's course in base ball, and declared that if he were elected president Mr. Freedman would have to get out of base ball. Mr. Spalding also defied Mr. Soden, of Boston, to vote against him.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

On Friday evening, December 13th, after more wrangling over the trust scheme, the League at last reached the election of officers. Mr. Spalding was placed in nomination for president by Pittsburg, seconded by Philadelphia and Brooklyn. There being no other nomination a vote was taken. Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Chicago voted for Mr. Spalding, and St. Louis, Cincinnati, New York and Boston against him.

Chairman Soden then declared that Mr. Spalding not having received a majority of the votes cast had failed of election. Mr. Ebbetts held that Mr. Spalding had been elected, because the four "no" votes were blank votes, not having been cast for anybody, but Chairman Soden overruled him. Upon motion the election was then resumed, the voting being done by ballot, two tellers being appointed by the chair.

LOCKED AND UNLOCKED.

The voting was then resumed, and on the next ballot four clubs—Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Chicago—again voted for Mr. Spalding, while the remaining four clubs—New York, Boston, St. Louis and Cincinnati—voted for Mr. N. E. Young, thus causing a tie and no election. Twenty-five ballots, always with the same tie, had been taken, when near 1 o'clock, Saturday morning, Chairman Soden, tired out, resigned the chair to Mr. Young, and retired. Then Mr. Conant (who did the voting for Boston), Brush, Freedman and Robison, after a consultation with Young, left the room, one by one. When they had gone Mr. Rogers moved for another ballot. Chairman Young declared there was no quorum, and no business could be transacted. Mr. Rogers raised the point that under Congressional ruling, the eight clubs were all constructively present, their delegates having left the room without notice or permission, while the regular order of business was in progress and no recess had been taken. This view Chairman Young refused to entertain, and he, too, left the room.

THE BATTLE WON.

Colonel John I. Rogers was elected chairman pro tem., and Charles H. Ebbetts temporary secretary, by the clubs remaining. The official stenographer was then appointed teller in place of Mr. Knowles, who had left. The twenty-sixth ballot was ordered. Brooklyn, Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburg voted for Mr. Spalding. The other clubs were called, but did not vote, and no proxies were presented. Under Congressional precedent Colonel Rogers announced that the vote must count, four members being absent without leave they were constructively present, but declining to vote. Mr. Spalding was therefore declared unanimously elected. The meeting then adjourned until 2 o'clock, Saturday afternoon.

SPALDING IN OFFICE.

Early on Saturday morning, December 14th, Mr. Spalding, notified of his election, visited Mr. Young's room and on behalf of the League took possession of the records of the organization. When the League went into session at 2 P. M. Mr. Spalding assumed the chair. The bolting clubs were not represented, but as Secretary Knowles, of the New York Club, stood in the doorway Mr. Spalding declared the New York Club as present, thus yielding a quorum, though Mr. Knowles hurried away. Mr. Spalding then announced his policy of conducting the National League with the best interests and elevation of the National game always the main object. He also announced that he would be perfectly independent, serving all alike and taking orders from no one. He also reiterated his intention of driving Andrew Freedman out of base ball.

THE MEETING COMPLETED.

After that the League proceeded with the election of a Board of Directors, Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago and Pittsburg being declared elected directors for the year 1902. President Spalding then appointed the following committees:

Constitution—Rogers, Hart and Brush.

National Agreement—Brush, Hart and Rogers.

Playing Rules—Hart, Hanlon and Reach.

The Board of Arbitration was elected as follows: Spalding, Young, Soden, Hart, Rogers and Pulliam. The president received full power to prepare a playing schedule for the season of 1902. A motion was made and unanimously carried that duly accredited representatives of the press be invited to all subsequent meetings of the League. The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the president.

MR. SPALDING ENJOINED.

While all this was going on the bolting combine was not idle, and on Monday, December 16th, Mr. Spalding was served with papers in a suit brought by Andrew Freedman, on behalf of the Boston, New York, St.

Louis and Cincinnati Clubs, for a temporary injunction restraining Mr. Spalding from "exercising, or claiming, or pretending to exercise, any of the powers of president, secretary, treasurer or other officer of the National League, or from possessing or interfering with the books or records of the League; and that the pretended election of A. G. Spalding be declared null and void, and that a permanent injunction be granted to the same effect as the temporary injunction." The case came up before Judge Scott in the New York Supreme Court, December 20th. Without argument, Mr. Kiddle, counsel for Mr. Spalding, consented to have the temporary injunction stand pending trial, thus tying up both factions and putting it up to the plaintiff to bring the case to trial: Subsequently, Mr. Spalding returned the League records and papers to Mr. Young.

AN EPISTOLARY WAR.

Following this there was an epistolary war of several weeks duration, during which Mr. Spalding answered a number of attacks made upon him by Messrs. Brush, Robison and Freedman, and also published a lot of correspondence which shed much light on League affairs. The main contention was over the trust issue, which came to a head when Mr. Brush declared that the only trust scheme discussed in the League meeting had been the trust Mr. Spalding had attempted to create last summer. In answer to this Mr. Spalding called for the publication, at his expense, of the National League minutes, after which he left New York for a prolonged visit to Southern California. En route he stopped at Chicago, had a conference with President Ban Johnson, of the American League, and arranged for a joint meeting of the American League, National League and National Association Rules Committees, to agree upon a uniform code of playing rules. The meeting was subsequently held at Buffalo, February 10-11, 1902.

THE FACTIONS DEADLOCKED.

While Mr. Spalding was in California the factional deadlock in the National League continued, neither faction showing any disposition to break ground. Each side maintained stubbornly that it would never give in, even should it be necessary to play on a four-club basis. Occasionally, however, some member of the Freedman faction would break into print with a suggestion of a compromise president. Mr. John B. Day also made a suggestion that the League choose himself, Young and Spalding as an Executive Committee, to conduct the League for one year. This fell flat. After some weeks of delay the official minutes of the League were published in full by the Philadelphia Sporting Life, of February 8th, which showed that, while Mr. Spalding's option scheme was discussed, by far the greater portion of the League's time was taken up by Messrs. Freedman, Brush and Robison in discussing and urging Mr. Brush's reconstruction scheme, thus sustaining Mr. Spalding's contention that the real issue, which resulted in the bolt and the disruption of the National League, was the question of trust reorganization or continuance on the old lines.

BARNEY DREYFUS

President League Champion Pittsburg Club

RENEWED ALLEGIANCE.

On February 24th Mr. Spalding sent to Mr. Dreyfus a letter containing his resignation, to be accepted in case his supporting clubs should deem it best to give their votes to a new compromise candidate. A conference of the Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago and Pittsburg clubs was then held at Pittsburg, February 20th, at which the situation was fully discussed, after which a resolution was passed pledging unalterable support to Mr. Spalding until the court rendered a decision in the injunction suit.

THE INJUNCTION SUIT

dragged along all winter. In January counsel for the Freedman faction amended his bill to include the four Spalding clubs as well as Mr. Spalding. In February the Spalding clubs accepted service and filed demurrers. A hearing for the demurrers in the New York Supreme Court was set for March 4th, but at the request of the defendants' counsel it was postponed until March 6th. At that time it was again postponed until March 11th, this time at request of the plaintiff. As this "Guide" goes to press the case is down for a hearing, but the result cannot here be given. Each side professes itself confident of victory.

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1901 RACE.

THE twenty-sixth annual campaign of the old National League began April 18th and ended October 6th, with Pittsburg as the champion team.

This result was novel and pleasing for the reason that it was the first time since 1887 that the pennant went West; the first time since 1886 that a player-manager captured the championship; and the first time in ten years that the letter B coincidence, which always brought the pennant to a city whose name began with the second letter of the alphabet, was broken.

THE RACE

was a fairly good one, made so chiefly from the fact that the raid of the American League had partially destroyed the preponderance of the Eastern teams, particularly Brooklyn, and made Pittsburg and St. Louis championship possibilities. In this respect the raid was a blessing in disguise. The work of the teams was, on the whole, up to National League standard despite the inroads made by the American League. The particular feature of the campaign was the increased effectiveness of the pitchers, due, doubtless, to the foul-strike rule which somewhat affected the batting and reduced runs, but correspondingly helped the fielding. The chief purpose of the rule—to expedite the game—was not achieved, as there was but little time shortening, and that little was doubtless due to keeping the catcher continuously under the bat.

DISCIPLINE MAINTAINED.

A bright feature of the race was the decorum maintained by the players, there being fewer outbreaks of rowdiness on the field and less scandal off the field than in many years—in fact, in the matter of deportment the season of 1901 will stand as the best in a decade. The discipline maintained all around was admirable and remarkable, considering the state of war and the alleged managerial tampering with players for future services during the active season.

THE CHAMPION TEAM.

The Pittsburg team, which was the favorite at the start, won the pennant after a harder fight than was expected, owing to its inherent strength and its superior all-around equipment for the great battle, it having lost in the American League raid but one player of value—less than any other League team. The team was strong in every department, particularly in pitchers, was ably handled and won the pennant fairly on merit without fluke or scratch. It went into first place on June 12th, and after June 16th was never again headed, although New York, St. Louis, Brooklyn and Philadelphia all pushed the new champions from time to time and had to be shaken off in turn. The hardest rub given the Pirates was by Philadelphia, which clung to their flank from July 27th clear to the finish, except for two days in August, when Brooklyn made a brief rally. On the September Eastern trip of the Western teams Pittsburg made almost a clean sweep, shook off Philadelphia and thereafter cantered in an easy winner.

THE FIRST DIVISION.

Philadelphia won second place after a rather poor start, thanks to good pitching, hard hitting and steady fielding. The team was judiciously strengthened from time to time. The Brooklyn team, which finished third—the lowest position for a Hanlon team in eight years—never could get into the running, every spurt being succeeded by a corresponding fall-down. The club never was able to replace Cross, Jones and Jennings, and was, moreover, handicapped by an erratic pitching department. The St. Louis team, after occupying first, second and third places at various times, giving all comers a hard battle, and looking occasionally like pennant winners, had to be content with fourth place, owing to pitching weakness.

THE SECOND DIVISION.

Of the second division teams Boston made the poorest start and the best finish, coming up from next to last to fifth place. The team fielded finely and had one of the strongest pitching corps in the League, but the American League had stripped it of batting strength. The New York team went the whole gamut, from first place to last place, and finally finished in seventh place. The team played beyond its speed from the start, and this, aided by the phenomenal pitching of Matthewson and the surprisingly effective work of the other pitchers, carried the team along and kept it at or near the top for a long time. Two Western clubs, Chicago and Cincinnati, had an interesting struggle pulling each other down, the Chicagos finally managing to crowd into sixth place ahead of New York and Cincinnati. The Chicago team was weak all around, particularly in batting. To Cincinnati falls the ignomy of the tail end—its failure made doubly conspicuous by the fact that the team suffered little from raiding and at one time led the League—namely, for three days in April and for the better part of May. On May 23d New York dislodged the Reds from first place. After one week's fight to recover the Reds quit cold, and by successive stages fell to the tail end, where they finished. The complete record for the season of 1901 is as follows:

PITTSBURG TEAM, NATIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONS FOR 1902.

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1901 AVERAGES.

 OUTFIELDER Jesse Burkett, of the St. Louis team, during the season of 1901 supplanted Wagner as the National League champion batsman. Burkett easily led in number of runs scored and in batting, with the splendid average of .382, followed by Delahanty, with .357. Little Keeler, of Brooklyn, was next to the big Philadelphia outfielder, with .355. The first ten men were all outfielders, of which Philadelphia had two, St. Louis two, Brooklyn two and Pittsburg, New York, Chicago and Cincinnati each one. Wagner, 1900's champion batsman, last year ranked fifth.

HOW DISTRIBUTED.

Of the twenty-four men having a batting average of 300 and over, every club had one or more men among the number. The Phillies had five, they being in the order of their percentages, as follows: Delahanty, Flick, Douglass, Wolverton and Thomas. Brooklyn also had five, although one, McCreary, was a substitute for more than half the season. St. Louis, Pittsburg and Cincinnati each had three, while New York and Chicago had two and Boston one. Ten men made 100 or more runs, and 47 men made 100 or more base hits. Only two men—Burkett and Keeler—made over 200 hits. Despite the operation of the foul strike rule, 36 National Leaguers the past season made larger batting percentages than in 1900. Seven of these men were pitchers, Waddell and Nichols passing their 1900 records by .095 and .092 respectively.

NATIONAL LEAGUE EXTRA-HITTING.

DURING 1901 the National League clubs were credited with 1,405 doubles, 562 triples and 225 home runs, a decrease, as compared with the previous year, of 7 doubles, 23 triples and 26 home runs. In 1900 Pittsburg led in the long hit count, Brooklyn second, while last season the leading club was St. Louis, with the Superbas again next to the top. Following is the team record of extra-base hits:

Clubs.	2-Base Hits.	3-Base Hits.	Home Runs.	Extra Bases.
St. Louis	202	98	39	854
Brooklyn	198	97	32	815

New York	159	46	19	532
Boston	138	40	28	508

INDIVIDUAL EXTRA HITS.

In 1900 Hans Wagner stood No. 1 in extra base hitting, with 169 (45 doubles, 21 triples and 4 homers). The leader in 1901 was Jimmy Sheckard, who fell two points short of the Pittsburger's previous season's performance. Brooklyn's left fielder banged out 30 doubles, 21 triples and 11 home runs, leading all in the second respect. Wagner and Beckley divided honors in doubles, each with 39, Delahanty being but 1 behind and Daly but 2. In home runs no one could compare with "Wahoo Sam" Crawford, who had 16, few of which, by the way, aided the Reds to victories. Sheckard made 11, Burkett 10 and Delahanty, Flick and Beaumont, 8. Thirteen men were over the century mark, as against 7 in 1900. Following is the individual record:

EXCEPTIONAL SCORES.

Twenty-six hits for a total of 37 bases were made by the Brooklyns at Cincinnati on September 24th. This was the second hardest-hitting game of the 1901 season. On June 9th the New Yorks made 31 hits for a total of 40 bases in a game with the Cincinnati.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BATTING FEATS.

DURING the National League campaign of 1901 there was considerable doing in the way of remarkable batting feats and exciting finishes. In 15 games pitchers were pounded for a score or more hits, and in four of these contests 20 or more runners registered at the plate. The Pittsburgs performed a unique feat July 24th, when they scored a run in every inning in a game with Cincinnati. These were the heavy hitting games of 1901:

June 9th.—New York, 25 runs and 31 hits, for a total of 39 bases, off Phillips, Rusie and McFadden, of Cincinnati.

June 21st.—Brooklyn, 21 runs and 26 hits, for a total of 33 bases, off Parker, of Cincinnati.

June 22d.—Chicago, 16 runs and 20 hits, for a total of 24 bases, off McJames and Donovan, of Brooklyn.

June 24th.—Philadelphia, 19 runs and 22 hits, for a total of 31 bases, off Phillips, of Cincinnati.

June 26th.—Brooklyn, 16 runs and 20 hits, for a total of 32 bases off Tannehill and Wiltse, of Pittsburg.

June 27th.—Philadelphia, 16 runs and 21 hits, for a total of 28 bases, off Eason, of Chicago.

July 5th.—Brooklyn, 12 runs and 20 hits, for a total of 26 bases, off Hughes, of Chicago.

Aug. 5th.—St. Louis, 20 runs and 21 hits, for a total of 30 bases, off Chesbro and Doheny, of Pittsburg. The Cardinals made 11 runs in the eighth inning.

Aug. 20th.—Pittsburg, 14 runs and 22 hits, for a total of 25 bases, off Murphy and Wicker, of St. Louis.

Sept. 5th.—Pittsburg, 15 runs and 21 hits, for a total of 30 bases, off Maul, of New York.

Sept. 6th.—Pittsburg, 15 runs and 24 hits, for a total of 31 bases, off Hickman and Livingstone, of New York.

Sept. 22d.—Pittsburg, 15 runs and 21 hits, for a total of 25 bases, off Taylor, of Chicago.

Sept. 23d.—Brooklyn, 25 runs and 26 hits, for a total of 37 bases, off Stimmel and Sutthoff, of Cincinnati. The Superbas scored 11 runs in the fifth inning and 7 in the second.

Sept. 24th.—Brooklyn, 26 runs and 21 hits, for a total of 31 bases, off Phillips, of Cincinnati.

Sept. 30th.—St. Louis, 12 runs and 21 hits, for a total of 25 bases, off G. Smith, of New York.

A REMARKABLE DAY'S WORK.

On September 13th, 1901, an exceptional record for one day's play in the National League was made, inasmuch as eight games were played, with the surprising result of a grand total of one hundred and eighteen innings being played in the eight games without a run being scored. Then, too, all of the eight games were won by single figure scores, the highest total score made being eight only, while three of the eight victories were marked by "Chicago" scores. Four victories were won by a single run; three others were won by two runs only, and two of the games were marked by extra innings, one of fourteen and the other of eleven. Another remarkable feature of the day's exceptional record was the fact that in the Boston-Chicago games, the home team at Boston won their two games by only three runs scored, and these were only made after twenty innings; while the visiting Chicagos could only score a single run in their twenty innings play.

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1901 BASE RUNNING.

IN the National League during the past season a total of 1,390 bases were stolen. Chicago excelled as a team, with Brooklyn second and Philadelphia third. The champion Pittsburg only ranked fourth in total of stolen bases, but excelled all others in the matter of judgment. Following is the team record:

Clubs.	Pitchers.	Catchers.	First Basemen.	Second Basemen.	Third Basemen.	Shortstops.	Left Fielders.	Center Fielders.	Right Fielders.	Totals.
Chicago	9	36	34	8	18	12	40	37	10	204

CLUB SACRIFICE-HIT RECORD.

During the National League 1901 race 712 sacrifice hits were recorded; 85 less than the American League. Boston was the only club to use the sacrifice hit to any extent, the others utilizing the hit-and-run game. The Bostons made 134 sacrifice hits, the Phillies 111, the Pittsburgs 102, the St. Louis 94, the Cincinnati 78, the Chicagos 69, the Brooklyns 65 and the New Yorks 59. The first division teams made 372, those of the second division 340, while the sectional results were: Eastern clubs, 369; Western, 343. The record:

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1901 PITCHING.

IN the National League race of 1901 pitcher Leever carried off the honors as the star winning pitcher, closely followed by Chesbro. It will be observed that Pittsburgs corps contained four men among the first ten pitchers who participated in ten or more games. Following is the complete pitching record of the National League, every man who pitched a full game being credited:

THE TEAM SHUT-OUT RECORD.

During the season there were played 70 shut-out games, as against 67 in 1900. Pittsburg and Philadelphia each gave away zeros in 15 games and the Quakers had the additional honor of blanking all their opponents. Chicago is credited with the fewest shut-out wins, while New York had 15 defeats of this character marked up against her, every club indulging in its whitewashing proclivities when facing the Giants. Pittsburg presented Boston with an even half-dozen basket of duck eggs (three in one series in Pittsburg), while the Bostons took their revenge on the unfortunate Chicagos, whom they "Chicagoed" a quintette of times. Three of the Phillies' five shut-outs came at the hands of St. Louis. The club record:

PITCHERS' SHUT-OUT RECORD.

Twenty-seven pitchers took a hand in the 70 whitewashing jobs, Chesbro, Orth and Willis proving the best decorators. Each of the trio secured six shut-outs, the Bostonian getting two-thirds of his from Chicago, to whom he was an unfathomable mystery. Duggleby, Kitson and Mathewson constituted another effective trio, each man featuring goose eggs in his repertoire on five occasions. Mathewson's record in blanking three of the leaders—Philadelphia, St. Louis and Brooklyn—was not equaled by any other League boxman. Nichols, Tannehill and Luther Taylor each worked in four shut-out victories, and there were seven men who did the trick twice. The right-handers far excelled their left-handed rivals, getting 61 out of the 70 games. Willis was the only pitcher who scored four triumphs over one club. Tannehill and Luther Taylor both blanked the Reds three times and the following men scored a couple of "Chicago" victories over the same clubs: Chesbro against Boston; Orth against Boston; Duggleby against Cincinnati and New York; Kitson against Boston and New York; Nichols against New York; Leever against New York. Following is the record of "Chicago" victories by pitchers:

THE PITCHING FEATS OF 1901.

Mathewson's performance of July 15th, when he retired St. Louis without a hit or run, was, of course, the banner pitching feat of the National League season of 1901. There were two one-hit games. Frank Kitson twirled one of them against New York on July 25th, and Victor Willis officiated in the other, on September 13th, against the Chicagos. A tabulated list of the pitching performances of 1901 follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE MISCELLANEOUS RECORDS.

IN the National League during the race of 1901 there were 52 extra-inning games, as against 46 in 1900; 64 in 1899; 52 in 1898; 36 in 1897, and 25 in 1896. Of the 52 excess-round affairs of 1901 all but four were decided, 19 being of 10 innings; 16 of 11; 11 of 12; 1 of 13; 4 of 14, and 1 of 17. This last named contest was played September 21 between the Boston and Chicago clubs, and won by the latter, 1 to 0. The Bostons took part in, and won, the most extra-inning games, participating in 18, of which 10 were victories and 2 were without result. Cincinnati had the best percentage for additional-round wins, while New York secured the poorest figures. Following is the club record:

ERRORLESS GAMES.

Philadelphia played 29 games without error, Boston 28, Brooklyn and St. Louis 19 each, Pittsburg, Chicago and Cincinnati 15 each, and New York 13. Boston played 9 errorless games against St. Louis and Philadelphia 8 against Cincinnati.

In 14 games neither side made an error. Of these, Brooklyn and Philadelphia played 3, Boston and Philadelphia 2, Chicago and Pittsburg 2, Chicago and New York, St. Louis and Boston, St. Louis and Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Boston, Pittsburg and New York, Pittsburg and Philadelphia, and Boston and New York, 1 each.

The greatest number of errors made in one series was 70, made by Cincinnati against St. Louis, and the least in any full series was 29 by Boston against New York.

OTHER RECORDS.

In the National League 1901 campaign there were two forfeits: Brooklyn to New York, May 13th, and Cincinnati nati to New York, June 9th. Seven tie games were also played. Fifty-one games were won and lost in the ninth inning.

THE NO-HIT, NO-RUN RECORD.

IN the two major leagues last season but one pitcher succeeded in shutting out an opposing team without a hit or run, pitcher Hahn, of Cincinnati, performing the wonderful feat against the hard-hitting Phillies, on July 12 last. In the 25 years of the National League's existence the feat of retiring a club without a hit or run has been accomplished just 23 times, Larry Corcoran turning the trick twice, Jimmy Galvin twice. No other pitcher turned the trick more than once. Only twice have clubs, beside failing to make a hit or run, been unable to get a player to first base, Richmond and John Ward being the star performers in these rare instances, and Cleveland and Buffalo their victims. A list of the no-hit and no-run games in the major league annals follows:

NO-HIT AND NO-RUN GAMES.

June 12th, 1880.—Cleveland, by Richmond, of Worcester. In this game not a Cleveland player reached first base.

June 17th, 1880.—Buffalo, by Ward, of Providence. No Buffalo man got to first base in this game.

July 12th, 1900.—Philadelphia, by Hahn, of Cincinnati.

PATRICK T. POWERS

President National Association

THE NEW NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

DURING the summer of 1901 President John T. Brush, of the Cincinnati Club, conceived a scheme to reorganize the National League on a trust basis. That institution was to be syndicated and then to be run by a Board of Regents with absolute power over clubs, officials, managers and players. At a secret meeting at Red Bank, N. J., between Messrs. Brush, of Cincinnati; Freedman, of New York; Soden, of Boston, and Robison, of St. Louis, Mr. Brush's measure was discussed and accepted, and plans were laid to bring the entire National League in line. As it was designed to gradually embrace all other leagues in the country it was decided to abolish the National Agreement, of whose Arbitration Board the above named furnished a majority. Accordingly, President Young was directed to promulgate notice of the indefinite suspension of the National Agreement on and after September 30th, 1901, which Mr. Young did.

AN INDEPENDENT ORGANIZATION.

The various minor league presidents, after considerable correspondence on the subject of forming an independent union of all minor leagues, met at the Leland Hotel, Chicago, September 5th, for the purpose of organizing. President Thos. J. Hickey, of the Western League, presided at the meeting, at which the Eastern League, Western League, Pacific Northwest League, I.-I.-I. League, Western Association, New England League and New York League were represented in person, and the Southern League, Connecticut League and California League by proxy. A permanent organization was effected of the National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues, with P. T. Powers, of the Eastern League, as president, and J. H. Farrell, of the New York League, as secretary-treasurer. A new National Agreement, similar to the old one used by the National League, was adopted with changes to conform to the new condition of the minor leagues. The draft system, classification of leagues, salary limit and reserve system were retained and amplified. All leagues were instructed to send in their reserve lists of players to Secretary Farrell. A Board of Arbitration was elected, consisting of Messrs. T. J. Hickey, M. H. Sexton, Wm. Meyer, Jr., W. H.

Lucas and T. H. Murnane, after which the National Association adjourned to meet again in New York on October 24th.

THE ORGANIZATION PERFECTED.

At the New York meeting, October 24th-25th, the minutes of the Chicago meeting were approved. Mr. Henry Chadwick was elected an honorary member of the Association. Letters were received and read from various major league magnates expressing approval of the object of the new Association. Mr. Meyer was removed from the National Board and Mr. O'Rourke, of Connecticut, substituted. The secretary-treasurer's salary was fixed at $1,200 and he was required to give a $5,000 bond. President Powers resolutely refused to accept any salary whatever. The membership of the National Association was fixed at ten years. The new National Agreement was amended as to classification and salary limit of the various leagues, and penalties for violation of salary limits were provided for. A system of fines for players violating was also established, the fines grading according to the salary limit of the offending player's league from $1,000 for Class A jumpers to $300 for Class D deserters. A Playing Rules Committee was appointed, consisting of J. H. O'Rourke, T. H. Murnane, W. H. Lucas, C. N. Barnard and Henry Chadwick. A rule was also adopted prohibiting the farming of players by any club to a lower-class league. A rule was also adopted permitting each league for one year to select its own official ball. A uniform contract was adopted, and it was also decided that the Association publish its own Guide, through a committee consisting of Messrs. Barnard, Murnane and Farrell. The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

THE RESERVE RULE

A BANQUET.

On the evening of October 24th, President Powers tendered the visiting delegates and newspaper men a banquet at the Victoria Hotel, at which over fifty guests sat at table. Able speeches were made, in the interest of the National Association as organized, by President Powers, the various minor league presidents and by Mr. A. G. Spalding, John M. Ward, Editor Richter, of "Sporting Life;" editor John B. Foster, representing the metropolitan press, and President Ebbetts, of Brooklyn, on behalf of the National League. The last named speaker created a sensation by intimating that Mr. A. G. Spalding would be the next National League President. Mr. Spalding, in his speech, strongly denounced the abrogation of the National Agreement by a faction of the National League.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION ROSTER.

One month after this meeting President Hickey, of the Western League, was expelled from the National Association for organizing an independent league called the American Association, invading Western League territory in Kansas City, Omaha, St. Paul and Minneapolis, and Western Association territory in Toledo and Columbus. The new Western League president, Mr. James Whitfield, took Mr. Hickey's place on the National Board, of which Mr. Sexton became chairman, vice Mr. Hickey. Following is the complete roster of the National Association up to the time of going to press:

THE EASTERN LEAGUE.

THE tenth annual campaign of the Eastern League, which began April 25, 1901, ended September 21st with Rochester as the champion team after a hard race with Providence and Toronto. These three teams had the battle to themselves from start to finish, the five remaining teams being never dangerous and being practically merely fillers-in. Providence, the 1900 champion team, led for a long time, and Toronto also had a short season of glory at the top, but finally Manager Buckenberger's well-handled Rochester team reached the apex and was never again headed. Toronto finished second and the 1900 Providence champions had to be content with third place. Hartford, Worcester, Montreal, Syracuse and Buffalo wound up in the order named; thus showing just about the same speed as in 1900. Buffalo, the new-comer, found the Eastern League even less easy than the old American League and finished a peg lower last year; in fact as low as it could get—at the foot. Financially, the season was not successful, owing to the failure of the Buffalo, Syracuse, Hartford, Worcester and Montreal teams to come up to the expectations of their local publics, and President Powers again had his great executive ability taxed to keep things going to the official finish. The Syracuse team was transferred to Brockton July 25th, and on September 10th the Hartford club disbanded. The complete 1901 record is as follows:

PORTLAND TEAM, NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE CHAMPIONS FOR 1922.

NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE.

AFTER a rest of several seasons New England tried League ball again in 1901. This time a success was scored. The championship season which began on May 15th with eight clubs, ended September 2d with six clubs. During the season the Bangor and Augusta teams were transferred to Lynn and Brockton, but failed to succeed in their new quarters and disbanded July 5th, after which date the League ran without further mishaps to the finish as a six-club organization. Financially the season was unexpectedly successful, the Lewiston club being probably the only financial loser on the season. Artistically also, the season was a capital one, as good ball was played on an average and some fine players were developed. The Portland club won the championship by obtaining a long lead at the start which could not be reduced after the teams became better equalized, although in the last few weeks Manchester, which finished second, made things hot for the leader. Of the other clubs Lowell finished third, Haverhill fourth, Nashua fifth and Lewiston last. The full season record follows:

Clubs.	Lynn	Brockton.	Haverhill.	Lowell.	Lewiston.	Manchester.	Nashua	Portland.	Won.	Percent.

NASHVILLE TEAM, SOUTHERN LEAGUE CHAMPIONS FOR 1902.

THE SOUTHERN LEAGUE.

THE Southern League was another one of the new organizations of 1901. The campaign which began May 2d, ended September 25th with the pennant in dispute between Little Rock and Nashville. The Board of Directors of the League finally awarded the pennant to Nashville. The campaign was close and exciting. Indeed, so hot was the fight that a disgraceful row marred the final series between the two leading teams. The race was a fine one from the beginning to the end, the only team outclassed from the start being New Orleans, which, however, in the latter half of the season made a great fight, and rose by degrees from the tail end to a place in the first division. Financially the season was an unprecedented success, five of the eight clubs making handsome profits on the season. For the first time also a Southern League went through an entire season without a break in the circuit. The only change of importance during the season was the deposition of President Kent, whose administration was unsatisfactory, and the substitution of President John B. Nicklin, an experienced base ball man of ability and integrity. Following is the complete record of the season of 1901:

THE ALBANY TEAM, CHAMPIONS NEW YORK LEAGUE FOR 1902.

THE NEW YORK LEAGUE.

THE 1901 campaign of the New York League—the fourth consecutive of that organization—which began May 8th, ended September 7th with Albany as the champion team after a hard and close race. Schenectady at one time had a seeming walk-over, but for the last two months it was a steadily alternating battle between Albany, Utica and Binghamton, with Schenectady practically out of it for the last month. The season was a fairly successful one financially for at least half of the clubs. Only one change in the circuit was made during the season, the Courtland team being transferred to Waverly July 11th. Following is the complete record of the campaign:

	Albany.	Binghamton.	Waverly.	Ilion.	Rome.	Schenectady.	Troy.	Utica.	Won	Percentage
Albany.....	..	7	10	9	9	14	13	10	72	.626

INDIANA-ILLINOIS-IOWA LEAGUE.

THE 1901 championship season of the Indiana-Illinois-Iowa League, popularly known as the "Three-Eyed League," which began May 2d, closed September 8th with Terre Haute as the champion team. This campaign was remarkable from the fact that not a change in circuit was made during the season, and every club finished financially ahead. The champion club also derived special satisfaction from the rare fact that no player was fined by an umpire nor ordered to the bench, and no player was fined by the club management. President M. H. Sexton distinguished himself by a vigorous administration of affairs. The full season record is appended:

Clubs	Terre Haute.	Bloomington.	Cedar Rapids.	Rockford.	Davenport.	Evansville.	Rock Island.	Decatur.	Games Won.	Percentage.

BRISTOL TEAM, CONNECTICUT LEAGUE CHAMPIONS.

CONNECTICUT LEAGUE.

THE 1901 championship campaign of the Connecticut League, which began May 6th, ended September 7th with Bristol as the champion club by a very narrow margin over Bridgeport. The other clubs finished in the following order: Norwich, Meriden, New Haven, Waterbury, New London and Derby. This was one of the hottest races in the country, Bristol, Bridgeport, Norwich and New Haven alternating at the top all season. The close race made the season fairly profitable, only one club being in the hole financially. It is a remarkable fact that in the five consecutive campaigns no club has twice won the pennant, the winners being Meriden, Waterbury, New Haven, Norwich and now Bristol. The completed record of the campaign follows:

PORTLAND (ORE.) TEAM, PACIFIC NORTHWEST LEAGUE CHAMPIONS FOR 1902.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST LEAGUE.

THE Pacific Northwest League was one of the new organizations of 1901. The championship race began May 1st, and ended October 13th with Portland as the champion team. Tacoma finished second, Seattle third, and Spokane last. The season was a successful one financially despite Portland's preponderance of team strength from start to finish; in fact, the season was the most prosperous one on record in that section, all of the clubs ending with a balance on the right side of the ledger. The organization was ably handled by President W. H. Lucas, who has been re-elected for another term. The complete record for the season of 1901 is as follows:

Clubs.	Portland.	Tacoma.	Seattle.	Spokane.	Won.	Percentage Victories.
Portland	22	26	25	73	.675
Tacoma	14	..	20	23	57	.530
Seattle	10	16	..	19	45	.417
Spokane	11	13	17	..	41	.379

THE CALIFORNIA LEAGUE.

THE California League's 1901 championship season, which began March 31st, ended December 1st with San Francisco as the championship team. The high-priced Los Angeles team was never really dangerous, and finished second. Sacramento also had trouble in getting started right, and for the whole season ran third. Oakland, despite occasional flashes of brilliance, was a consistent tail-ender from start to finish. The full season record is as follows:

Clubs.	San Francisco.	Los Angeles.	Sacramento.	Oakland.	Games won.	Percentage.
San Francisco.....	..	29	35	31	95	.573

THE WESTERN LEAGUE.

THE second campaign of the expanded Western League, which began May 3, 1901, ended September 21st with Kansas City as the champion team by a large margin. This team assumed the lead at the start, was never headed, and outclassed the others so much that interest and attendance were considerably affected, there being nothing to fight for except second place, for which St. Paul, St. Joseph, Denver, Omaha, and at one time Minneapolis, made a pretty fight. St. Paul finally landed the plum, the other teams finishing in the order named. The Minneapolis team was the biggest disappointment of the season. Des Moines and Colorado Springs were never in the race and finished at the bottom. The expansion movement was not so successful as was hoped, as the discarded American League cities—Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis—did not patronize the sport as well as was expected, but, nevertheless, they proved far superior to the eliminated small towns and thus correspondingly strengthened the Western League for the future. The League ended the season with the circuit with which it began, and at no time was there danger of a break; in fact, most of the clubs finished with a balance on the right side of the ledger. The completed record of the season of 1901 is as follows:

	Colo. Springs.	Denver.	Des Moines.	Kansas City.	Minneapolis.	Omaha.	St. Paul.	St. Joseph.	Won.	Percent.

THE OFFICIAL AVERAGES.

No averages for this League have been given out up to the time of going to press, by ex-President Thomas J. Hickey, now the head of the new American Association.

KANSAS CITY TEAM, WESTERN LEAGUE CHAMPIONS FOR 1902.

THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION.

THE first championship campaign of the Western Association, which began April 25, 1901, ended September 22d, after a hard and trying season. The Association was handicapped at the start by being pieced together in a hurry in the spring out of the wreck of the old Inter-State League and the leavings of the American League. Then came a row with Mr. Ellis, owner of the Grand Rapids club, which resulted in his team and franchise being transferred to Wheeling. Meantime, Indianapolis made such a runaway race that interest in the battle died out. The attendance in Indianapolis and Louisville became so poor that on July 13th the Indianapolis club dropped out, the team being transferred to Matthews, Ind. Previously, on June 30th, the Louisville team had been transferred to Grand Rapids. Thereafter the season was finished without further shifting, the smaller towns holding up their ends exceedingly well. After these transfers had been made the teams became better equalized and a good race for the flag ensued between Dayton, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Wheeling and Fort Wayne, which left the final result in doubt until the very last day, when Dayton beat Grand Rapids by a nose, with Toledo a good third, Wheeling fourth, Fort Wayne fifth, Matthews sixth, Columbus seventh and Marion last. The complete record of the season of 1901 is as follows:

Clubs.	Columbus.	Dayton.	Ft. Wayne.	Wheeling.	Matthews.	Grand Rapids.	Marion.	Toledo.	Won.	Percentage.

* Matthews, Ind., took Indianapolis' place July 12th.

UNOFFICIAL AVERAGES.

Following are the unofficial averages of the Western Association for 1901, the official figures never having been compiled by the President, Wm. F. Myer, who was deposed in the last month of the season for neglect of duty:

THE VIRGINIA-NORTH CAROLINA LEAGUE.

THE attempt to keep a Virginia League afloat during 1901 ended in a complete failure. The League started the season with clubs located in Wilmington and Raleigh in North Carolina, and Norfolk, Newport News, Portsmouth and Richmond in Virginia. In about a month the Portsmouth and Newport News teams were transferred to other North Carolina towns. Even this did not pay, so on June 28th the League was disbanded and the season was finished by the North Carolina teams among themselves. Following was the record when the Virginia-North Carolina League disbanded.

Name.	Wilmington.	Norfolk.	Newport N.-H.	Raleigh.	Portsmouth.	Richmond.	Won.	Percentage.
Wilmington.....	..	6	6	8	8	8	36	.600
Norfolk	6	..	3	9	6	9	33	.569

*Newport News-Hampton transferred to Tarboro.

†Portsmouth transferred to Charlotte.

THE UTAH LEAGUE.

THIS was one of the new leagues of 1901. It was in the nature of an experiment and proved to be fairly successful. Following was the championship record for the season:

Clubs.	Ogden.	Salt Lake.	Lagoon.	Park City.	Games won.	Percentage.
Ogden.....	..	10	9	12	31	.756
Salt Lake.....	3	..	9	14	26	.634
Lagoon.....	5	5	..	13	23	.548
Park City.....	2	0	1	..	3	.071
Games lost.....	10	15	19	39	83

Above includes games forfeited by Park City, as follows: To Ogden 6; Salt Lake, 6, and Lagoon, 7.

COLLEGE 1901 SEASON.

DURING the base ball season of 1901 there was unusual activity displayed in the collegiate arena. Princeton won the largest percentage of victories over worthy antagonists and is therefore entitled to the honor of having been the champion team, in so far as a team without a set schedule with opponents can win a championship. Harvard was a good second, as will be seen from the following complete record of all college teams for 1901:

UNIFORM PLAYING RULES.

DURING the winter, as the result of a conference between President Ban Johnson, of the American League, and Mr. A. G. Spalding, at that time enjoined from acting as president of the National League, a joint meeting of the Rule Committees of the two major leagues and the National Association of Professional Leagues was arranged to draw up a uniform code of playing rules. This at the Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, February 10th and 11th. The American League was represented by J. F. Kilfoyl, Frank Dwyer and Connie Mack; the National League by James A. Hart, A. J. Reach and Henry Chadwick, the latter representing Edward Hanlon; the National Association by T. H. Murnane, M. H. Sexton and J. H. Farrell. The independent American Association was also represented by Wm. H. Watkins and Harry D. Quin, but had no vote. The meeting was called to order by National Association President P. T. Powers. Mr. Kilfoyl was chosen as chairman of the meeting, Mr. Jas. A. Hart as secretary and Mr. J. H. Farrell as assistant secretary.

MEETING WAS HELD

AGREEMENT AS TO CHANGES.

The meeting was entirely harmonious and each faction made certain concessions as a result of which a uniform code was endorsed. The principal change was a radical alteration of the foul strike rule in use in the National League in 1901. The changes agreed upon are summarized as follows:

HENRY CHADWICK

"Father of the National Game"

The text of Sections 3 and 4 of Rule 44, defining a strike, as finally adopted:

"Section 3. A foul hit ball not caught on the fly, unless two strikes have been already called, which falls or settles on foul ground inside or on the line of the territory described by lines drawn from first and third bases at right angles with an imaginary line drawn from home to second base, and extending on each side to the limit of the playing field.

"Section 4. Any intention or effort to hit the ball to foul ground outside of the lines of the territory described by lines drawn from first and third bases at right angles with an imaginary line drawn from home to second base, and extending on each side to the limit of the playing field."

A change in Rule 17, adopted on the first day, it was found, would prevent the catcher going for foul balls, and consequently the words "and at all times during the game," at the end of the section, were ordered stricken out.

Section 2 of Rule 32 was also corrected by adding the words "to a baseman," so that it now reads:

"The umpire shall call a ball on the pitcher each time he delays the game by failing to deliver the ball to the batsman when in position for a longer period than twenty seconds, excepting that, in the case of the first batsman in each inning, the pitcher may occupy not more than one minute in delivering not to exceed five balls to a baseman."

Rule 68 was eliminated. It prohibited the use during a game by manager, captain or player of indecent or improper language directed to a spectator, umpire, manager, club official or a player.

One of the rules defining when a batsman becomes a base runner was modified as follows:

"If while he be a baseman without making any attempt to strike at the ball his person or clothing be hit with a ball from the pitcher, unless in the opinion of the umpire he plainly avoids making any effort to get out of the way of the ball from the pitcher and thereby permits himself to be so hit."

It was decided that the changes should be final and binding upon all leagues represented at this meeting. Mr. Chadwick was instructed to codify the rules and print them for newspaper use. The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of Chairman Kilfoyl. All of the above changes were adopted by the American League at its spring meeting except the foul-strike rule, which was stricken out entirely, the old rule on the subject being retained.

PLAYING RULES OF PROFESSIONAL BASE BALL CLUBS

AS ADOPTED BY THE AMERICAN LEAGUE.

1902.

THE BALL GROUND.

RULE 1. The Ground must be an inclosed field, sufficient in size to enable each player to play in his position as required by these rules.

RULE 2. To lay off the lines governing the positions and the play of the game known as Base Ball, proceed as follows:

From a point A, within the grounds project a right line out into the field, and at a point B 154 feet from point A lay off lines B C and B D at right angles to the line A B; then with B as center and 63.63945 feet as radius describe arcs cutting the lines B A at F, and B C at G; B D at H, and B E at I. Draw lines F G, G E, E H and H F, and said lines will be the containing lines of the Diamond or Infield.

THE CATCHER'S LINES.

RULE 3. With F as center, and 10 feet radius, an arc cutting line F A at L, and draw lines L M and L O at right angles to F A, and continue same out from F A not less than 10 feet.

THE FOUL LINES.

RULE 4. From the intersection point F continue the straight lines F G and F H until they intersect with the lines L M and L O, and then from the points G and H in the opposite direction until they reach the boundary lines of the grounds.

THE PLAYERS' LINES.

RULE 5. With F as center, and 50 feet radius, describe arcs cutting lines F O and F M at P and Q; then with F as center again, and 75 feet radius, describe arcs cutting F G and F H at R and S; then from the points P Q R and S draw lines at right angles to the lines F O, F M, F G and F H, and continue same until they intersect at the points T and W.

THE CAPTAIN AND COACHER'S LINE.

RULE 6. With R and S as centers, and 15 feet radius, describe arcs cutting lines R W and S T at X and Y, and from the points X and Y draw lines parallel with lines F H and F G, and continue same out to the boundary lines of the ground.

THE THREE-FOOT LINE.

RULE 7. With F as center, and 45 feet radius, describe an arc cutting line F G at I, and from I, out to the distance of 3 feet, draw a line at right angles to F G and marked point 2; then from point 2, draw a line parallel with line F G to a point 3 feet beyond the point G and marked 3; then from the point 3 draw a line at right angle to line 2, 3, back to and intersecting with line F G, and from thence back along line G F to point I.

THE PITCHER'S PLATE.

RULE 8. With point F as center, and 60.5 feet as radius, describe an arc cutting the line F B at point 4, and draw a line 5, 6, passing through point 4 and extending 12 inches on either side of line F B; then with line 5, 6, as a side describe a parallelogram 24 inches by 6 inches.

THE BASES.

RULE 9. Within the angle F describe a five-sided figure, two of the sides of which shall coincide with the lines F G and F H to the extent of 12 inches each, thence parallel with the line F B $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches to the points X and T, a straight line between which, 17 inches, will form the front of the plate.

THE BATSMAN'S LINE.

RULE 10. On either side of the line A F B, and 12 inches distant therefrom, construct two rectangles each 6 feet long and 4 feet wide (marked 8 and 9), their longer sides being parallel with the line A F B, and their longitudinal centres being on a line drawn through the centre of the square lying in the angle F.

RULE 11. The Home Base at F and the Pitcher's Plate at 4 must be of whitened rubber, and so fixed in the ground as to be even with the surface.

RULE 12. The First Base at G, the Second Base at E, and the Third Base at H must be of white canvas bags filled with soft material and securely fastened in their positions described in Rule 9.

RULE 13. The lines described in Rules 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 10 must be marked with lime, chalk or other suitable material, so as to be distinctly seen by the Umpire.

THE BALL.

RULE 14. The Ball.

Sec. 1. Must not weigh less than five nor more than five and one-quarter ounces avoirdupois, and it must measure not less than nine nor more than nine and one-quarter inches in circumference. The Spalding League Ball or the Reach American Association Ball must be used in all games played under these rules.

Sec. 2. For each championship game two regulation balls shall be furnished by the Home Club to the Umpire for use. When the ball in play is batted to foul ground and out of sight of the Umpire, the other ball shall be immediately brought into play. As often as one of the two in use shall be lost, a new one must be substituted, so that the Umpire shall at all times, after the game begins, have two balls in his possession and ready for use. The moment the Umpire delivers an alternate ball to the Pitcher it comes into play, and shall not be exchanged until it, in turn, passes out of sight to Foul Ground. At no time shall the ball be intentionally discolored by rubbing it with the soil or otherwise. In the event of a new ball being intentionally discolored or otherwise injured by a player, the Umpire shall, upon appeal from the Captain of the opposite side, forthwith demand the return of that ball and shall substitute another new ball and impose a fine of $5 upon the offending player.

Sec. 3. In all games the balls played with shall be furnished by the Home Club, and the last ball in play shall become the property of the winning club. Each ball to be used in championship games shall be examined, measured and weighed by the Secretary of the League, inclosed in a paper box and sealed with the seal of the Secretary, which seal shall not be broken except by the Umpire, in the presence of the Captains of the two contesting nines after play has been called. The Home Club shall have at least a dozen regulation balls on the field ready for use on the call of the Umpire during each championship game.

Sec. 4. Should the ball become cut or ripped so as to expose the interior, or in any way so injured as to be—in the opinion of the Umpire—unfit for fair use, he shall, upon appeal by either Captain, at once put the alternate ball into play and call for a new ball.

THE BAT.

RULE 15. The Bat must be made entirely of hard wood, except that the handle may be wound with twine or a granulated substance applied, not to exceed eighteen inches from the end. It must be round, and it must not exceed two and three-fourths inches in diameter in the thickest part nor exceed forty-two inches in length.

THE PLAYERS AND THEIR POSITIONS.

RULE 16. The players of each club in a game shall be nine in number, one of whom shall act as Captain, and in no case shall less than nine men be allowed to play on each side.

RULE 17. The Players' positions shall be such as may be assigned them by their Captain, except that the Pitcher, while in the act of delivering the ball to the bat, must take his position as defined in Rules 8 and 29; and the catcher must stand within the lines of his position as defined in Rule 3, whenever the pitcher delivers the ball to the bat, and within 10 feet of the home base.

RULE 18. Players in uniform shall not be permitted to occupy seats on the stands, or to stand among the spectators.

RULE 19. Sec. 1. Every club shall adopt uniforms for its Players, and the suits of each team shall conform in color and style. No Player who shall attach anything to the sole or heel of his shoes, other than the ordinary base ball shoe plate, or who shall appear in a uniform not conforming to the suits of the other members of his team, shall be permitted to take part in the game.

Sec. 2. The Catcher and First Baseman are permitted to wear a glove or mitt of any size, shape or weight. All other Players are restricted to the use of a glove or mitt weighing not over ten ounces, and measuring in circumference around the palm of the hand not over fourteen inches.

PLAYERS' BENCHES.

RULE 20. Sec. 1. The Players' Benches must be furnished by the Home Club, and placed upon a portion of the ground not less than twenty-five (25) feet outside of the Players' Lines; one such bench shall be for the exclusive use of the Visiting Club, and one for the exclusive use of the Home Club. The benches must be covered by a roof and closed at the back and each end; a space, however, not more than six (6) inches wide may be left just under the roof for ventilation. All Players of the side at bat must be seated on their bench, except such as are legally assigned to coach base runners, and also the Batsman, except when called to the bat by the Umpire; and under no circumstances shall the Umpire permit any person, except Managers and Players in uniform, to occupy seats on the benches.

Sec. 2. To enforce this rule the Captain of the other side may call the attention of the Umpire to a violation, whereupon the Umpire shall immediately order such player or players to be seated; if the order is not obeyed within one minute, the offending player or players shall be fined $5 each by the Umpire. If the order is not then obeyed within one minute, the offending player or players shall be debarred from further participation in the game and shall be obliged to leave the playing field forthwith.

THE GAME.

RULE 21. Sec. 1. Every championship game must be commenced not later than two hours before sunset.

Sec. 2. A game shall consist of nine innings to each contesting nine, except that,

(a) If the side first at bat scores less runs in nine innings than the other side has scored in eight innings, the game shall then terminate.

(b) If the side last at the bat in the ninth inning scores the winning run before the third man is out, the game shall terminate.

A TIE GAME.

RULE 22. If the score be a tie at the end of nine innings, play shall be continued until one side has scored more runs than the other in an equal number of innings, provided that if the side last at bat scores the winning run before the third man is out the game shall terminate.

A DRAWN GAME.

RULE 23. A Drawn Game shall be declared by the Umpire when he terminates a game on account of darkness or rain, after five equal innings have been played, if the score at the time is equal on the last even innings played; except when the side that went second to bat is then at the bat, and has scored the same number of runs as the other side, in which case the Umpire shall declare the game drawn without regard to the score of the last equal innings.

A CALLED GAME.

RULE 24. If the Umpire calls "Game" on account of darkness or rain at any time after five innings have been completed, the score shall be that of the last equal innings played; but if the side second at bat shall have scored in an unequal number of innings, or before the completion of its unfinished inning, one or more runs than the side first at bat, the score of the game shall be the total number of runs made.

A FORFEITED GAME.

RULE 25. A Forfeited Game shall be declared by the Umpire in favor of the club not in fault, at the request of such club, in the following cases:

Sec. 1. If the nine of a club fail to appear upon the field, or being upon the field, fail to begin the game within five minutes after the Umpire has called "Play," at the hour appointed for the beginning of the game, unless such delay in appearing or in commencing the game be unavoidable.

Sec. 2. If, after the game has begun, one side refuses or fails to continue playing, unless such game has been suspended or terminated by the Umpire.

Sec. 3. If, after play has been suspended by the Umpire, one side fails to resume playing within one minute after the Umpire has called "Play."

Sec. 4. If a team resort to dilatory movements to delay the game.

Sec. 5. If, in the opinion of the Umpire, any one of the rules of the game is wilfully violated.

Sec. 6. If, after ordering the removal of a Player, as authorized by Rules 20, 52 and 61, said order is not obeyed within one minute.

Sec. 7. If, because of removal of players from the game by the Umpire, there be less than nine players in either team.

Sec. 8. If, when two games are scheduled to be played on the same afternoon, the second game is not commenced within ten minutes of the time of completion of the first game. The Umpire of the first game shall be the time-keeper.

Sec. 9. In case the Umpire declares a game forfeited he shall transmit a written notice thereof to the President of the League within twenty-four hours thereafter. However a failure on the part of the Umpire to so notify the President shall not affect his decision declaring the game forfeited.

NO GAME.

RULE 26. "No Game" shall be declared by the Umpire if he shall terminate play on account of rain or darkness, before five innings on each side are completed, except in a case when the game is called, and the club second at bat shall have more runs at the end of its fourth inning than the club first at bat has made in its five completed innings, in such case the Umpire shall award the game to the club having made the greatest number of runs, and it shall be a legal game and be so counted in the championship record.

SUBSTITUTES.

RULE 27. Sec. 1. In any championship game each side shall be required to have present on the field, in uniform conforming to the suits worn by their team mates, a sufficient number of substitute players to carry out the provision which requires that not less than nine players shall occupy the field in any innings of a game.

Sec. 2. Any such Player may be substituted at any time by either club, but a Player thereby retired shall not thereafter participate in the game.

Sec. 3. The Base Runner shall not have a substitute run for him, except by the consent of the Captains of the contesting teams.

CHOICE OF INNINGS—CONDITION OF GROUND.

RULE 28. The choice of innings shall be given to the Captain of the Home Club, who shall also be the sole judge of the fitness of the ground for beginning a game after rain, but after play has been called by the Umpire, he alone shall be the judge as to the fitness of the ground for resuming play after the game has been suspended on account of rain.

THE PITCHER'S POSITION.

RULE 29. The Pitcher shall take his position facing the Batsman, with both feet square on the ground, and in front of the Pitcher's plate, but in the act of delivering the ball to the bat one foot must be in contact with the Pitcher's plate, defined in Rule 8. He shall not raise either foot, unless in the act of delivering the ball to the bat, nor make more than one step in such delivery.

A FAIRLY DELIVERED BALL.

RULE 30. A Fairly Delivered Ball to the bat is a ball pitched or thrown to the bat by the Pitcher while standing in his position and facing the Batsman ; the ball so delivered to pass over any portion of the Home Base, not lower than the Batsman's knee, nor higher than his shoulder, in which case the Umpire shall call one strike.

AN UNFAIRLY DELIVERED BALL.

RULE 31. An Unfairly Delivered Ball is a ball delivered by the Pitcher, as in Rule 30, except that the ball does not pass over any portion of the Home Base, or does pass over the Home Base above the Batsman's shoulder, or below the line of his knee, in which case the Umpire shall call one ball.

DELAYING THE GAME.

RULE 32. Sec. 1. If the ball is thrown by the Pitcher to any Player other than the Catcher (except to retire a Base Runner), after the Batsman is standing in his proper position ready to strike at a pitched ball, each ball so delivered shall be called a ball.

Sec. 2. The Umpire shall call a ball on the Pitcher each time he delays the game by failing to deliver the ball to the Batsman for a longer period than 20 seconds, excepting that in the case of the first Batsman in each inning, the Pitcher may not occupy more than one minute in delivering not to exceed five balls to the Batsman.

BALKING.

RULE 33. A Balk shall be :

Sec. 1. Any motion made by the Pitcher to deliver the ball to the bat or to First Base without delivering it.

Sec. 2. The throwing of a ball by the Pitcher to any base to catch the Base Runner without first stepping directly toward said base immediately before throwing the ball.

Sec. 3. Any delivery of the ball to the bat by the Pitcher while his (pivot) foot is not in contact with the Pitcher's plate and he is not facing the batsman as defined in Rule 29.

Sec. 4. Any motion in delivering the ball to the bat by the Pitcher while not in the position defined in Rule 29.

Sec. 5. Standing in position and making any motion to pitch without having the ball in his possession.

Sec. 6. The making of any motion the Pitcher habitually makes in his method of delivery, without his immediately delivering the ball to the bat.

Sec. 7. If the Pitcher delivers the ball to the bat when the Catcher is standing outside the lines of the Catcher's position as defined in Rule 3.

If the pitcher fails to comply with the requirements of any Section of this Rule the umpire must call "A Balk."

DEAD BALLS.

RULE 34. A Dead Ball is a ball delivered to the bat by the Pitcher that touches any part of the Batsman's person or clothing while standing in his position without being struck at; or that touches any part of the Umpire's person or clothing while he is standing on Foul Ground, without first passing the Catcher.

RULE 35. In case of a Foul Strike, Foul Hit Ball not legally caught out, Dead Ball, or Base Runner put out for being struck by a Fair Hit Ball, the ball shall not be considered in play until it is held by the Pitcher standing in his position, and the Umpire shall have called play.

BLOCK BALLS.

RULE 36. Sec. 1. A Block is a batted or thrown ball that is touched, stopped or handled by any person not engaged in the game.

Sec. 2. Whenever a Block occurs the Umpire shall declare it, and the Base Runners may run the bases, without being put out, until the ball has been returned to and held by the Pitcher standing in his position.

Sec. 3. In the case of a Block, if the person not engaged in the game should retain possession of the ball, or throw or kick it beyond the reach of the Fielders, the Umpire should call "Time," and require each Base Runner to stop at the last base touched by him until the ball be returned to the Pitcher standing in his position, and the Umpire shall have called "Play."

THE BATSMEN'S POSITION—ORDER OF BATTING.

RULE 37. The Batsmen must take their positions within the Batsman's Lines, as defined in Rule 10, in the order in which they are named in the batting order, which batting order must be submitted by the Captains of the opposing teams to the Umpire before the game, and this batting order must be followed, except in the case of a Substitute Player, in which case the Substitute must take the place of the original player in the batting order. After the first inning the first striker in each inning shall be the Batsman whose name follows that of the last man who has completed his turn—time at bat—in the preceding inning.

RULE 38. Sec. 1. When their side goes to the bat the Players must immediately return to the Players' Bench, as defined in Rule 20, and remain there until the side is put out, except when called to the bat or they become Coachers or substitute Base Runners; provided that the Captain or one player only, except that if two or more Base Runners are occupying the bases, then the Captain and one player or two players may occupy the space between the Players' Lines and the Captain's Lines to coach Base Runners.

Sec. 2. No Player of the side "at bat," except when Batsman, shall occupy any portion of the space within the Catcher's Lines, as defined in Rule 3. The triangular space behind the Home Base is reserved for the exclusive use of the Umpire, Catcher, and Batsman, and the Umpire must prohibit any Player of the side "at bat" from crossing the same at any time while the ball is in the hands of, or passing between the Pitcher and Catcher while standing in their positions.

Sec. 3. The Players of the side "at bat" must occupy the portion of the field allotted them, but must speedily vacate any portion thereof that may be in the way of the ball or any Fielder attempting to catch or field it.

THE BATTING RULES.

RULE 39. Sec. 1. A Fair Hit is a ball batted by the batsman while he is standing within the lines of his position that first touches "fair" ground, or the person of a player, or the Umpire, while standing on fair ground, and then settles on fair ground before passing the line of First or Third Base.

Sec. 2. A Foul Hit is a similarly batted ball that first touches "foul" ground or the person of a player, or the Umpire while standing on "foul" ground.

Sec. 3. Should such "Fair Hit" ball bound or roll to foul ground before passing the line of First or Third Base, and settle on foul ground, it shall be declared by the Umpire a "Foul Ball."

Sec. 4. Should such "Foul Hit" ball bound or roll to fair ground and settle there before passing the line of First or Third Base, it shall be declared by the Umpire a "Fair Ball."

RULE 40. A Foul Tip is a ball batted by the Batsman while standing within the lines of his position that goes foul sharp from the bat to the Catcher's hands.

RULE 41. A Bunt Hit is a ball delivered by the Pitcher to the Batsman, who, while standing within the lines of his position, makes a deliberate attempt to hit the ball so slowly within the infield that it cannot be fielded in time to retire the Batsman. If such a "Bunt Hit" goes to foul ground a strike shall be called by the Umpire.

BALLS BATTED OUTSIDE THE GROUNDS.

RULE 42. When a batted ball passes outside the grounds the Umpire shall decide it Fair should it disappear within, or Foul should it disappear outside of the range of the Foul Lines, and Rule 38 is to be construed accordingly.

RULE 43. A Fair batted ball that goes over the fence shall entitle the Batsman to a home run, except that should it go over the fence at a less distance than 235 feet from the Home Base, when he shall be entitled to two bases only, and a distinctive line shall be marked on the fence at this point.

STRIKES.

RULE 44. A Strike is :

Sec. 1. A ball struck at by the Batsman without its touching his bat ; or

Sec. 2. A Fair Ball legally delivered by the Pitcher, but not struck at by the Batsman.

Sec. 3. A bunt hit which sends the ball to foul ground, either directly or by bounding or rolling from fair ground to foul ground, and which settles on foul ground.

Sec. 4. A ball struck at, if the ball touches any part of the Batsman's person.

Sec. 5. A foul tip by the Batsman, caught by the Catcher while standing within the lines of his position.

RULE 45. A Foul Strike is a ball batted by the Batsman when any part of his person is upon ground outside the lines of the Batsman's position.

THE BATSMAN IS OUT.

RULE 46. The Batsman is out :

Sec. 1. If he fails to take his position at the bat in his order of batting, unless the error be discovered and the proper Batsman takes his position before a time "at bat" is recorded ; and in such case the balls and strikes called must be counted in the time "at bat" of the proper Batsman, and only the proper Batsman shall be declared out :

and no runs shall be scored or bases run because of any act of the improper Batsman ; Provided, this rule shall not take effect unless the out is declared before the ball is delivered to the succeeding Batsman. Should Batsman be declared out by this rule be sufficient to retire the side, the proper Batsman the next inning is the player who would have come to bat had the players been out by ordinary play.

Sec. 2. If he fails to take his position within one minute after the Umpire has called for the Batsman.

Sec. 3. If he makes a Foul Hit, other than a Foul Tip as defined in Rule 40, and the ball be momentarily held by a Fielder before touching the ground ; Provided, it be not caught in a Fielder's hat or cap, or touched by some object other than a Fielder before being caught.

Sec. 4. If he makes a Foul Strike.

Sec. 5. If he attempts to hinder the Catcher from fielding or throwing the ball, by stepping outside the lines of his position, or otherwise obstructing or interfering with the player.

Sec. 6. If, while the First Base be occupied by a Base Runner, three strikes be called on him by the Umpire, except when two men are already out.

Sec. 7. If, while attempting a Third Strike, the ball touches any part of the Batsman's person, in which case Base Runners occupying bases shall return, as prescribed in Rule 50, Section 5.

Sec. 8. If he hits a fly ball that can be handled by an Infielder while first and second bases are occupied, or first, second and third, unless two hands are out. In such case the Umpire shall, as soon as the ball is hit, declare infield or outfield hit.

Sec. 9. If the Third Strike is called in accordance with Section 4, Rule 44.

Sec. 10. The moment a Batsman is declared out by the Umpire he (the Umpire) shall call for the Batsman next in order to leave his seat on the bench and take his position at the bat, and such player of the batting side shall not leave his seat on the bench until so called to bat, except as provided by Rule 37, Section 1 and Rule 52.

BASE RUNNING RULES.

WHEN THE BATSMAN BECOMES A BASE RUNNER.

RULE 47. The Batsman becomes a Base Runner :

Sec. 1. Instantly after he makes a Fair Hit.

Sec. 2. Instantly after four balls have been called by the Umpire.

Sec. 3. Instantly after three strikes have been declared by the Umpire.

Sec. 4. If while he be a Batsman, without making any attempt to strike at the ball, his person or clothing be hit by a ball from the Pitcher, unless in the opinion of the Umpire he plainly avoids making any effort to get out of the way of the ball from the Pitcher and thereby permits himself to be so hit.

Sec. 5. If while he be a Batsman the Catcher interferes with him, preventing him from striking the ball.

BASES TO BE TOUCHED.

RULE 48. The Base Runner must touch each base in regular order, viz. : First, Second, Third and Home Bases ; and when obliged to return (except on a Foul Hit) must retouch the base or bases in reverse order. He shall only be considered as holding a base after touching it, and shall then be entitled to hold such base until he has legally touched the next base in order, or has been legally forced to vacate it for a succeeding Base Runner. However, no Base Runner shall score a run to count in the game until the Base Runner preceeding him in the batting list (provided there has been such a Base Runner who has not been put out in that inning) shall have first touched Home Base without being put out.

ENTITLED TO BASES.

RULE 49. The Base Runner shall be entitled, without being put out, to take the Base in the following cases :

Sec. 1. If while he was Batsman, the Umpire called four balls.

Sec. 2. If the Umpire awards a succeeding Batsman a base on four balls, and the Base Runner is thereby forced to vacate the base held by him.

Sec. 3. If the Umpire calls a "balk."

Sec. 4. If a ball delivered by the Pitcher pass the Catcher and touch the Umpire or any fence or building within ninety feet of the Home Base.

Sec. 5. If upon a fair hit the ball strikes the person or clothing of the Umpire on Fair Ground.

Sec. 6. If he be prevented from making a base by the obstruction of an adversary, unless the latter be a Fielder having the ball in his hand ready to meet the base runner.

Sec. 7. If the Fielder stops or catches a batted ball with his hat or any part of his uniform, except his gloved hand.

RETURNING TO BASES.

RULE 50. The Base Runner shall return to his base, and shall be entitled to so return without being put out :

Sec. 1. If the Umpire declares a Foul Tip (as defined in Rule 39) or any other Foul Hit not legally caught by a Fielder.

Sec. 2. If the Umpire declares a Foul Strike.

Sec. 3. If the Umpire declares a Dead Ball, unless it be also the fourth Unfair Ball, and he be thereby forced to take the next base, as provided in Rule 48, Sec. 2.

Sec. 4. If the person or clothing of the Umpire interferes with the Catcher, or he is struck by a ball thrown by the Catcher to intercept a Base Runner.

Sec. 5. The Base Runner shall return to his base if, while attempting a strike, the ball touches any part of the Batsman's person.

WHEN BASE RUNNERS ARE OUT.

RULE 51. The Base Runner is out :

Sec. 1. If, after Three Strikes have been declared against him while Batsman, and the Catcher fails to catch the third strike ball, he plainly attempts to hinder the Catcher from fielding the ball.

Sec. 2. If, having made a Fair Hit while Batsman, such fair-hit ball be momentarily held by a Fielder, before touching the ground or any object other than a Fielder ; Provided, it be not caught in a Fielder's hat or cap.

Sec. 3. If, when the Umpire has declared three strikes on him while Batsman, the third-strike ball be momentarily held by a Fielder before touching the ground ; Provided, it be not caught in a Fielder's hat or cap, or touch some object other than a Fielder before being caught.

Sec. 4. If, after Three Strikes or a Fair Hit, he be touched with the ball in the hand of a Fielder before he shall have touched First Base.

Sec. 5. If, after Three Strikes or a Fair Hit, the ball be securely held by a Fielder while touching First Base, with any part of his person, before such Base Runner touches First Base.

Sec. 6. If, in running the last half of the distance from Home Base to First Base, while the ball is being fielded to First Base, he runs outside the Three-foot Lines, as defined in Rule 7, unless to avoid a Fielder attempting to field a batted ball.

Sec. 7. If, in running from First to Second Base, from Second to Third Base, or from Third to Home Base, he runs more than three feet from a direct line between such bases to avoid being touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder; but in case a Fielder be occupying the Base Runner's proper path, in attempting to field a batted ball, then the Base Runner shall run out of the path and behind said Fielder, and shall not be declared out for so doing.

Sec. 8. If he fails to avoid a Fielder attempting to field a batted ball, in the manner described in Sections 6 and 7 of this Rule; or if he, in any way, obstructs a Fielder, attempting to field a batted ball, or intentionally interferes with a thrown ball; Provided, that if two or more Fielders attempt to field a batted ball, and the Base Runner comes in contact with one or more of them, the Umpire shall determine which Fielder is entitled to the benefit of this Rule, and shall not decide the Base Runner out for coming in contact with any other Fielder.

Sec. 9. If, at any time while the ball is in play, he be touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder, unless some part of his person is touching a base he is entitled to occupy; Provided, the ball be held by the Fielder after touching him.

Sec. 10. The Base Runner in running to first base may overrun said base without being put out for being off said base, after first touching it, provided he returns at once and retouches the base, after which he may be put out as at any other base. If, in overrunning First Base, he also attempts to run to Second Base, or, after passing the base, he turns to his left from the Foul Line, he shall forfeit such exemption from being put out.

Sec. 11. If, when a Fair or Foul Hit ball (other than a Foul Tip, as referred to in Rule 39) is legally caught by a Fielder, such ball is legally held by a Fielder on the base occupied by the Base Runner when such ball was struck (or the Base Runner be touched with the ball in the hands of a Fielder), before he retouches said base after such Fair or Foul Hit ball was so caught; Provided, that the Base Runner shall not be out in such case, if, after the ball was legally caught as above, it be delivered to the bat by the Pitcher, before the Fielder holds it on said base, or touches the Base Runner with it; but if the Base Runner, in attempting to reach a base, detaches it before being touched or forced out, he shall be declared safe.

Sec. 12. If, when a Batsman becomes a Base Runner, the First Base, or the First and Second Bases, or the First, Second and Third Bases be occupied, any Base Runner so occupying a base shall cease to be entitled to hold it, until any following Base Runner is put out and may be put out at the next base, or by being touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder, in the same manner as in running to First Base, at any time before any following Base Runner is put out.

Sec. 13. If a Fair Hit ball strikes him before touching the Fielder, and in such case no base shall be run unless forced by the Batsman becoming a Base Runner, and no run shall be scored, or any other Base Runner put out.

Sec. 14. If, when running to a base or forced to return to a base, he fails to touch the intervening base or bases, if any, in the order prescribed in Rule 47, he may be put out at the base he fails to touch, or being touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder, in the same manner as in running to First Base; Provided, that the Base Runner shall not be out in such case if the ball be delivered to the bat by the Pitcher before the Fielder holds it on said base or touches the Base Runner with it.

Sec. 15. If, when the Umpire calls "Play," after any suspension of a game, he fails to return to and touch the base he occupied when "Time" was called before touching the next base; Provided, the Base Runner shall not be out in such case if the ball be delivered to the bat by the Pitcher before the Fielder holds it on said base or touches the Base Runner with it.

WHEN BATSMAN OR BASE RUNNER IS OUT.

RULE 52. The Umpire shall declare the Batsman or Base Runner out, without waiting for an appeal for such decision, in all cases where such player is put out in accordance with these Rules, except as provided in Rule 50, Sections 10 and 14.

COACHING RULES.

RULE 53. The Coacher shall be restricted to coaching the Base Runner only, and shall not be allowed to address any remarks except to the Base Runner, and then only in words of necessary direction ; and shall not, by words or signs, incite or try to incite the spectators to demonstrations; and shall not use language which will in any manner refer to or reflect upon a player of the opposite club, the Umpire or the spectators, and not more than one Coacher, who may be a player participating in the game or any other player under contract to and in the uniform of either club, shall be allowed at any one time, except that if base runners are occupying two or more of the bases, then the Captain and one player, or two players under contract to and in the uniform of either club may occupy the space between the Players' lines and the Captain's lines to coach base runners. To enforce the above, the Captain of the opposite side may call the attention of the Umpire to the offence, and thereupon the Umpire must order the illegal Coacher or Coachers to the bench, and if his order is not obeyed within one minute, the Umpire shall assess a fine of $5 each against the offending player or players, and upon a repetition of the offence, the offending player or players shall be debarred from further participation in the game, and shall leave the playing field forthwith.

THE SCORING OF RUNS.

RULE 54. One run shall be scored every time a Base Runner, after having legally touched the first three bases, shall touch the Home Base before three men are put out. (Exception.) If the third man is forced out, or is put out before reaching First Base, a run shall not be scored.

THE UMPIRE OR UMPIRES AND THEIR RESPECTIVE DUTIES.

RULE 55. No Umpire shall be changed during the progress of a championship game, except by reason of personal illness or injury incapacitating him for the discharge of his duties.

RULE 56. The Umpire is the representative of the League, and as such shall have power to enforce every section of the code of playing rules of the game ; and he shall have power to order any Player, or Captain, or Manager to do or to omit to do any action that he may deem necessary to give force and effect to the laws of the game.

RULE 57. There shall be no appeal from any legal decision of the Umpire.

RULE 58. Under no circumstances shall any Player be allowed to dispute a decision by the Umpire in which only an error of judgment is involved ; and no decision rendered by him shall be reversed, except it be plainly shown by the code of rules to have been illegal; and in such case the Captain alone shall be allowed to make the appeal for reversal.

RULE 59. Sec. 1. In all cases of violation of these Rules, by either a Player or Manager, the penalty for the first offence shall be a fine by the Umpire of $5, and for a second offence a prompt removal of the offender from the game or ground, followed by such period of suspension from actual service in the club as the President of the League may elect.

Sec. 2. The Umpire shall, within twelve hours after fining or removing a Player from the game, forward to the President a report of the action and the causes therefor.

Sec. 3. Immediately upon notification by the Umpire that a fine has been imposed upon any Manager, Captain or Player, the President shall notify the person so fined and also the club of which he is a member, and, in the event of the failure of the person so fined to pay to the Secretary of the League the amount of said fine within five days of notice, he shall be debarred from participating in any championship game or from sitting on a player's bench during the progress of a championship game, until such fine is paid.

Sec. 4. When the offence of the player debarred from the game is of a flagrant nature, such as the use of obscene language, or an assault upon a Player or Umpire, the Umpire shall, within four hours thereafter, notify the President of the League, giving full particulars.

Sec. 5. He shall also notify both Captains, before the game, and in the presence of each other, that all the playing rules will be impartially enforced, and that their failure to co-operate in such enforcement will result in their being fined and, perhaps, their removal from the game.

RULE 60. Before the commencement of a game the Umpire shall see that the Rules governing all the materials of the game are strictly observed. He shall ask the Captain of the Home Club whether there are any special ground rules to be enforced, and if there are, he shall see that they are duly enforced; Provided, they do not conflict with any of these rules.

RULE 61. The Umpire shall not only call "play" at the hour appointed for the beginning of the game, but also announce "game called" at its legal conclusion.

RULE 62. The Umpire shall suspend play for the following causes: First, if rain is falling so heavily as to oblige the spectators on the open field and open stands to seek shelter ; in which case he shall note the time of suspension ; and should rain fall continuously for thirty minutes thereafter, he shall terminate the game.

RULE 63. The Umpire shall suspend play in case of an accident to himself, or to a Player, which incapacitates him or them from service in the field ; or in order to remove from the grounds any Player or spectator who has violated the rules.

RULE 64. In suspending play from any legal cause, the Umpire shall call "Time ;" when he calls "Time" the play shall be suspended until he calls "Play" again, and during the interim no Player shall be put out, base be run or run be scored. "Time" shall not be called by the Umpire until the ball is held by the Pitcher standing in his position.

RULE 65. The Umpire shall call and count as "a ball" any unfair ball delivered by the Pitcher to the Batsman, but not before such ball has passed the line of the Home Base. He shall also call and count as a "strike" any fairly delivered ball which passes over any portion of the Home Base, and within the Batsman's legal range as defined in Rule 43, which is not struck at by the Batsman, or a foul tip which is caught by the Catcher, standing within the lines of his position, or which, after being struck at and not hit, strikes the person of the Batsman ; or when the ball is purposely hit foul by the Batsman, or when the ball is bunted foul by the Batsman.

RULE 66. If but one Umpire is assigned, his duties and powers shall be that of both the Umpire and the Assistant Umpire, and he shall be permitted to occupy such positions on the field as will best enable him to discharge his duties.

FIELD RULES.

RULE 67. No person shall be allowed upon any part of the field during the progress of a game, in addition to the Players in uniform, the Manager of each side and the Umpire ; except such officers of the law as may be present in uniform, and such officials of the Home Club as may be necessary to preserve the peace.

RULE 68. No Manager, Captain or Player shall address the spectators during the progress of a game, except in case of necessary explanation.

RULE 69. Every Club shall furnish sufficient police force upon its own grounds to preserve order, and in the event of a crowd entering the field during the progress of a game, and interfering with the play in any manner, the Visiting Club may refuse to play further until the field be cleared. If the ground be not cleared within fifteen minutes thereafter, the Visiting Club may claim and shall be entitled to the game, by a score of nine runs to none (no matter what number of innings has been played).

GENERAL DEFINITIONS.

RULE 70. "Play" is the order of the Umpire to begin the game, or to resume play after its suspension.

RULE 71. "Time" is the order of the Umpire to suspend play. Such suspension must not extend beyond the day of the game.

RULE 72. "Game" is the announcement by the Umpire that the game is terminated.

RULE 73. "An Inning" is the term at bat of the nine Players representing a Club in a game, and is completed when three of such Players have been put out, as provided in these Rules.

RULE 74. "A Time at Bat" is the term at bat of a Batsman. It begins when he takes his position, and continues until he is put out or becomes a Base Runner; except when, because of being hit by a pitched ball, or in case of an illegal delivery by the Pitcher, or in case of a sacrifice hit purposely made to the infield which, not being a base hit, advances a Base Runner without resulting in a put-out, except to the Batsman, as in Rule 45.

RULE 75. "Legal" or "Legally" signifies as required by these Rules.

SCORING.

RULE 76. In order to promote Uniformity in Scoring Championship Games the following instructions, suggestions, and definitions are made for the benefit of scorers, and they are required to make all scores in accordance therewith.

BATTING.

Sec. 1. The first item in the tabulated score after the Player's name and position shall be the number of times he has been at bat during the game. No time at bat shall be scored if the Batsman be hit by a pitched ball while standing in his position, and after trying to avoid being so hit—or in case of the Pitcher's illegal delivery of the ball to the bat, which gives the Batsman his base, or when he intentionally hits the ball to the field, purposely to be put out, or if he is given First Base on called balls.

Sec. 2. In the second column should be set down the runs made by each Player.

Sec. 3. In the third column should be placed the First Base hits made by each Player. A base hit should be scored in the following cases :

When the ball from the bat strikes the ground within the foul lines and out of reach of the Fielders.

When a hit ball is partially or wholly stopped by a Fielder in motion, but such Player cannot recover himself in time to handle the ball before the striker reaches First Base.

When a ball is hit with such force to an Infielder that he cannot handle it in time to put out the Batsman. (In case of doubt over this class of hits, score a base hit, and exempt the Fielder from the charge of an error.)

When a ball is hit so slowly toward a Fielder that he cannot handle it in time to put out the Batsman.

That in all cases where a Base Runner is retired by being hit by a batted ball, the Batsman should be credited with a base hit.

When a batted ball hits the person or clothing of the Umpire, as defined in Rule 48, Sec. 5. In no case shall a base hit be scored when a Base Runner has been forced out by the play.

Sec. 4. In the fourth column shall be placed the Sacrifice Hits, which shall be credited to the Batsman, who, when no one is out, or when but one man is out, advances a Runner a base by a Bunt Hit, which results in putting out the Batsman, or would so result if the ball was handled without error.

FIELDING.

Sec. 5. The number of opponents put out by each Player shall be set down in the fifth column. Where a Batsman is given out by the Umpire for a foul strike, or where the Batsman fails to bat in proper order, the put-out shall be scored to the Catcher. In all cases of out for interference, running out of line, or infield fly dropped, the "out" should be credited to the Player who would have made the play, but for the action of the Base Runner or Batsman.

Sec. 6. The number of times the Player assists shall be set down in the sixth column. An assist should be given to each Player who handles the ball in assisting a run-out or other play of the kind.

An assist should be given to a Player who makes a play in time to put a Runner out, even if the Player who could complete the play fails, through no fault of the Player assisting.

And generally an assist should be given to each Player who handles or assists in any manner in handling the ball from the time it leaves the bat until it reaches the Player who makes the put-out, or in case of a thrown ball, to each Player who throws or handles it cleanly, and in such a way that a put-out results, or would result if no error were made by the receiver.

Assists should be credited to every Player who handles the ball in the play which results in a Base Runner being called "out" for interference or for running out of line.

ERRORS.

Sec. 7. An error shall be given in the seventh column for each misplay which allows the Striker or Base Runner to make one or more bases when perfect play would have insured his being put out, except that "wild pitches," "bases on balls," bases on the Batsman being struck by a "pitched ball," or in case of illegal pitched balls, balks and passed balls, all of which comprised battery errors, shall not be included in said column. In scoring errors of batted balls see Section 3 of this Rule.

An error shall not be scored against the Catcher for a wild throw to prevent a stolen base, unless the Base Runner advances an extra base because of the error.

No error shall be scored against an Infielder who attempts to complete a double play,, unless the throw is so wild that an additional base is gained.

STOLEN BASES.

Sec. 8. A stolen base shall be credited to the Base Runner whenever he reaches the base he attempts to steal unaided by a fielding or by a battery error, or a hit by the Batsman.

THE SUMMARY.

RULE 77. The Summary shall contain :

Sec. 1. The score made in each inning of the game.

Sec. 2. The number of bases stolen by each Player.

Sec. 3. The number of two-base hits made by each Player.

Sec. 4. The number of three-base hits made by each Player.

Sec. 5. The number of home runs made by each Player.

Sec. 6. The number of double and triple plays made by each side, and the names of the Players assisting in the same.

Sec. 7. The number of innings each Pitcher pitched in.

Sec. 8. The number of base hits made off each Pitcher.

Sec. 9. The number of times the Pitcher strikes out the opposing Batsmen.

Sec. 10. The number of times the Pitcher gives bases on ba'ls.

Sec. 11. The number of wild pitches charged to the Pitcher.

Sec. 12. The number of times the Pitcher hits Batsman with pitched ball.

Sec. 13. The number of passed balls by each Catcher.

Sec. 14. The time of the game.

Sec. 15. The name of the Umpire.

REACH'S AMERICAN LEAGUE GUIDE.

PREFACE.

THE twenty-first annual issue of the Reach Official American League Base Ball Guide, which is herewith presented to the base ball loving public at the opening of the season of 1903, marks the ushering in of a new era in the base ball world.

After a hard and costly two-years' battle the American League had made its calling and election to major league status so sure that the National League deemed it wise to seek a truce to war, and affiliation with the new league for mutual protection to the vast property interests involved. As a result a peace treaty has been entered into which completely, and let us hope permanently, establishes the two-league principle, and which will enable base ball to be played under conditions conducive to order, decency, prosperity and permanence.

As the Official Guide of the American League the Reach Guide contains in completed form everything of interest—both official and unofficial—concerning the doings, records and averages of that organization. Nothing has been left unrecorded and everything has been so exhaustively narrated as to warrant the complete satisfaction of the magnates, managers, players and patrons of the new major league.

But, while the Reach Guide is distinctly an official Guide for the American League, it has not discarded any of the features which have made it hitherto a valuable general guide. It still covers the entire base ball field, doing ample justice to the National League and the various minor leagues, all of whose official records and averages are given in full.

Under the circumstances we believe we can safely claim for the Reach Official American League Guide for 1903 unexampled excellence in this field of base ball literature—a broad claim truly, but one that we are confident will be amply sustained by both critics and public.

THE A. J. REACH COMPANY.

THE BASE BALL SEASON OF 1902.

THE great success of the base ball season of 1901, which marked the entrance of the American League into the major league field, was even excelled in 1902 in all sections of the country, thus proving again that the advent of the American League as a rival of the formerly dominant National League had a healthy and stimulating effect upon the National game everywhere, despite a state of active war and more or less inevitable laxity of discipline.

THE MAJOR LEAGUE PATRONAGE.

The division of patronage necessitated by the American League's advent in 1901 was, of course, maintained, and even increased in 1902, owing to the invasion of St. Louis by the American League. To counterbalance this the gross attendance of each major league in 1902 was increased, except in two cities where the National League teams fell so far short of public expectation that the League's share of the patronage became almost nil. There were also fewer schedule conflicts, as the National League made its schedule last and dodged all possible conflicts. In the country at large the stimulus of the American League's expansion, so marked in 1901, was even more pronounced in 1902.

THE MAJOR LEAGUES' SEASON were both successful on the whole, although the American League enjoyed the larger patronage by far and made itself solidly secure in the great cities it had invaded in 1901. In St. Louis, too, a new field, the American League secured a firm foothold. The National League was handicapped by a lopsided pennant race and a collapse of the Philadelphia team, but nevertheless had a fairly successful season, thanks largely to the absence of opposition in New York, which for half the season practically carried the old League, with the aid of Pittsburgh and Chicago.

THE MINOR LEAGUES

enjoyed the most successful season in the annals of the sport, despite largely increased expenses all along the line, due to the war between the National Association leagues and the outlawed American Association and California League. For the first time in the history of the game every one of the established minor leagues finished the season without changes in circuit; in fact, without even so much as a shift of any team. This was due largely to the existence of the National Association of Minor Leagues, which managed things so well as to give club owners everywhere a sense of protection and security for investment sufficient to warrant them in holding on, despite adverse conditions, for a more promising future under National Association protection.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

started the season with the following league members: Eastern League, Western League, New York League, I.-I.-I. League, Southern League, Pacific Northwest League, Connecticut League, New England League, Texas League, Cotton States League, Iowa-South Dakota League, Missouri Valley League, North Carolina League and Pennsylvania League—14 leagues all told. All survived the season with membership intact except the two last named leagues, which closed gates during the season. Of the two the Pennsylvania League was not really an Association league, never having qualified.

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION, which started and finished the season as an outlaw organization, nevertheless scored such a great success and established itself so firmly that friends of the game exerted themselves to heal the breach between the American Association and the Western League, and bring the Association within the National Association fold. Through the efforts of Editor Richter, of Philadelphia "Sporting Life," and Manager Barrow, of Toronto, the American Association was induced to make application for admission, and at two sessions of the National Board—at New York October 27th to 29th, and Chicago November 16th to 19th—the differences between the warring American Association and Western League were adjusted by a compromise suggested by President P. T. Powers, and the American Association was admitted to the National Association.

ANOTHER BREACH HEALED.

The National body during the past winter also composed a serious quarrel in the Southern League, which threatened to end in the establishment of a new outlaw league in the South. This quarrel grew out of the employment by the Memphis Club of St. Vrain, an ineligible player. For this the Memphis Club was expelled from the National Association, and in revenge sought to organize a new league—an effort that would probably have succeeded but for the timely settlement of the quarrel and reinstatement of the Memphis Club in the Southern League. The National Association also made an attempt to get the California League into line but failed, owing to that League's determination to expand into Pacific Northwest League territory.

BAN B. JOHNSON,
President of the American League.

CHRONOLOGY OF 1902.

THE past year was a most eventful one in base ball, and much serious history was made. Following is a brief record of the most important events and happenings, both in the major and minor league world during the memorable year 1902:

- 27th.—Napoleon Lajoie prostrated, with severe attack of pleurisy which for a time threatened fatal results.
- 28th.—Rumors of Washington franchise transfer to Pittsburg officially denied by President Fred. Postal.

NECROLOGY OF 1902.

DURING the year 1902 death claimed many men noted in the annals of base ball—some as magnates, some as writers, and others as managers and players. Here is a complete list of the departed:

- At Circleville, O.—Harry M. Weldon, journalist.
 At Kansas City—James Whitfield, journalist.
 At Jersey City—Thomas E. Burns, manager.
 At Denver—Fred. Jevne, ex-player and umpire.
 At New Orleans—Luther Freeland, pitcher.
 At Wilmington, Del.—George P. Prentiss, pitcher.
 At Syracuse—George Schultz, manager.
 At Pittsburg—James Galvin, ex-pitcher.
 At Brockton—Timothy Donahue, catcher.
 At Philadelphia—Fred. Dunlap, ex-player.
 At Philadelphia—William Sharsig, ex-manager.
 At Detroit—George W. Burnham, ex-umpire.
 At Buffalo—David Egger, ex-player.
 At Canton, O.—James ("Kid") Monroe, player.
 At Easton, Pa.—Frank King, player.
 At Winneconne, Wis.—Matt. Killilea, magnate.

Since the opening of the year 1903 the death of three notabilities has occurred: George E. Stackhouse, a veteran base ball writer, died in New York of acute gastritis; in San Francisco the famous Detroit pitcher, George B. Mercer, committed suicide by inhaling gas on January 12th; in Philadelphia, February 6th, the veteran ex-pitcher and ex-umpire, Hardie Henderson, was killed by a trolley car.

The 1902 death of greatest moment to the American League was that of Matthew B. Killilea, who, in his 45th year, succumbed to consumption at Winneconne, Wis., July 27th. The deceased was a lawyer by profession, but his fame was earned in base ball. He first became interested in base ball in 1894 when he joined the stock company formed to conduct the Milwaukee Club in the old Western League. He was elected president and acted in that capacity until the team was transferred to St. Louis in the spring of 1902. Mr. Killilea was a lover of clean sport, a staunch supporter of Ban Johnson, and one of the brainiest men in the American League, for which he, in conjunction with his brother, Henry Killilea, acted as legal advisers. It was at the time of his death one of his chief sources of joy that he had lived to see the American League, with which he had so long been identified, become the premier organization of the country, and his chief regret was that he was not allowed to see the even greater success for which he firmly believed that organization was destined. As a type of the true sportsman Matthew Killilea was one of the few men to whom the national pastime to-day owes its hold upon the hearts of the people, and one of the fewer whom it will be found next to impossible to replace. The lamented ex-magnate is now at rest in the cemetery at Poygan, Wis.

LONGEST RUN OF DEFEATS.

The worst series of defeats ever sustained by a club in a championship season was by the American Association Club of Louisville in 1889, when on June 22d that club was defeated for the twenty-sixth consecutive time.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 SEASON.

THE season of 1902 witnessed the crowning triumph of the American League in its short, sharp and decisive battle for expansion to major league status.

Whereas the first-year fight of 1901 brought the new American League abreast of the venerable and long-established National League, the 1902 battle sent the old League to the rear defeated at all points and compelled to sue for peace or invite annihilation in the third round of the contest. Never before in the history of the sport had the National League been decisively defeated. That it should be beaten at all was amazing alike to itself and the lookers-on, and that that should happen in two seasons, at the hands of a former rival minor league, was simply marvelous.

PROBLEMS TO SOLVE.

When the campaign of 1902 opened the American League had several serious problems to solve. The 1901 battle had revealed the need of strengthening both circuit and teams. The first necessitated the transfer of the Milwaukee franchise to St. Louis, thus adding another conflict to the list and presenting for solution the problem whether a poor city undivided were better than a large city divided. The weakness of certain teams and the invasion of St. Louis also necessitated a fresh infusion of star talent, which could only be secured by a second raid on the National League. This was successfully accomplished, about fifty-six players being taken from the senior League. This naturally gave salaries a further boost, and when the season opened the American League clubs were loaded down with high-priced star teams which only extraordinary patronage could support.

A GREAT CITY WON.

Public and press rallied to the support of the American League, and the necessary extraordinary patronage was forthcoming at all points, thus assuring the triumph of expansion and the stability of the new major league. In the new city—St. Louis—the American club at first had a hard row to hoe, but it played magnificent ball after the middle of the season, gradually won its way into the hearts of St. Louisans, and at the close of the campaign had won over the hearty support of press and public and made St. Louis an American League stronghold, for which most thanks are due to Treasurer Hedges' fortitude in adversity and Manager McAleer's fine handling of his team.

TRIUMPHS SCORED EVERYWHERE.

In the field at large the American League everywhere improved on its 1901 showing, outdrew the old League wherever it came in contact with it, and reversed the total attendance figures of 1901 by largely overtopping the National League's gross attendance in 1902, as will be gleaned from the attendance figures printed hereafter. In St. Louis, as before stated, the local American League club firmly established itself. In Chicago Comiskey's club received larger patronage than the preceding season, although the team proved a disappointment. In Boston there was again nothing to be seen or heard but the American League club. In Philadelphia the Athletics fairly wiped up the floor with the Phillies, and broke all sorts of records for attendance. Cleveland made a phenomenal showing, and Washington also excelled itself. Detroit alone showed a marked falling off, a result due entirely to the complete fall-down of a team that finished in the first division the previous season. Thus at all critical points was American League judgment vindicated and nerve rewarded.

A LEGAL BLOW.

But all was not smooth sailing, as the American League was compelled to face several critical situations. The first hard blow came right at the opening of the season. On April 21st the Pennsylvania Supreme Court handed down a decision affirming the validity of the option clause in the Philadelphia Club's contracts, and reversing the Philadelphia lower court's decision refusing injunctions against Lajoie, Bernhard and Fraser, the three players on whom the Philadelphia Club had made a fight. This stunning decision riddled the Athletic Club and threw the American League upon its beam ends. At a special meeting of this organization at Cleveland, April 30th, it was decided, by advice of counsel, to ask for a new trial in the Pennsylvania courts, and to fight the decision on the validity of the option clause wherever suit was brought, it being believed that no courts outside of Pennsylvania would accept the Pennsylvania decision. It was also decided to hold and protect all of the Philadelphia Club's men except those who had re-signed with the Athletic Club.

AMERICAN LEAGUE VICTORIES.

When the Philadelphia lower court, in obedience to the Supreme Court's mandate, had made the injunction against Lajoie, Fraser and Bernhard permanent, an appeal for a rehearing in Supreme Court was taken; but the judge refused to permit the men to play with the Athletics pending the appeal. In the meantime several League magnates, counting on the Pennsylvania decision, tried the law in other States and were beaten in each case. In St. Louis President Robison entered suit for injunction against Harper, Wallace and Hendrick in Circuit Court No. 5, before Judges Talty and Fisher. On May 6th Judge Fisher handed down a decision refusing the injunctions, on the ground that the National League contract lacked mutuality and was against public policy because of its abrogation of personal liberty. The St. Louis Club at once appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, where it still rests, a motion last June to advance it on the calendar having been refused. On June 2d the Brooklyn Club brought suit in the United States Court at Philadelphia to restrain Catcher McGuire from playing with Detroit. The case was argued June 25th, when Judge Dallas refused to enjoin McGuire and scored the League contract as non-mutual and unenforceable.

GOOD OUT OF EVIL.

The Philadelphia players who had signed with Washington and St. Louis remained loyal to those clubs. Meanwhile the Athletic team had been without the services of the enjoined players, who had begun negotiations to return to the Philadelphia team. Fraser and Duggleby went back on May 17th. Flick could not come to terms, and jumped to the Cleveland Club. Subsequently, Lajoie and Bernhard, after several weeks of fruitless dickering with the Philadelphia Club, also signed three-year contracts with the Cleveland Club, on May 22d; and the Philadelphia Club thus practically lost all the fruits of its great legal victory. It also acted as a boomerang, inasmuch as the Athletics, relieved of a heavy financial burden, nevertheless managed to strengthen sufficiently to win the championship, while the Phillies remained hopelessly weak, finished low in the race and forfeited nearly all of their patronage to the Athletic Club. The acquisition of Flick, Lajoie and Bernhard incidentally also made the Cleveland team and converted Cleveland from a loser into one of the best paying towns in the circuit. After the desertion of the three players mentioned, the Philadelphia Club secured attachments against them for contempt of court in Philadelphia Common Pleas Court. Col. Rogers then carried his case to the Federal Court at Cleveland, but Judge Wing dismissed it for lack of jurisdiction. Mr. Rogers next began injunction proceedings against Flick and Lajoie in the Cleveland Common Pleas, and was again defeated on the now familiar ground of non-mutuality, which ended all further effort on his part to reclaim the players by law.

TREACHERY IN CAMP.

By far the most serious situation that faced the American League during the campaign was a mid-season sell-out of the Baltimore Club to the National League by the club's controlling stockholders, McGraw, Kelley and the latter's father-in-law, Samuel Mahon. All season long Manager McGraw and Captain Kelley had clashed with the umpires, which resulted in frequent suspensions of the pair by President Johnson. On July 8th McGraw resigned as manager of the Baltimore Club, exchanged his interest in "The Diamond" saloon for his partner Robinson's club stock, sold the latter to Kelley and Mahon, and then signed as manager of the New York League Club. This surprising move was followed on July 16th by the announcement that the controlling interest in the Baltimore Club had been sold by Mahon and Kelley to John T. Brush, chairman of the National League Executive, for $15,000, for which all League clubs were assessed pro rata.

BENJAMIN F. SHIBE,
President of the Champion (American League) Athletic Club.

FAILURE OF THE COUP.

As the controlling interest carried with it the control of the American League Baltimore franchise and the team, the American League would have been in a frightful predicament, had Chairman Brush not blundered so egregiously that his coup became a boomerang. Six of the star Baltimore players were at once released—McGinnity, Cronin, McGann and Bresnahan to New York, and Kelley and Seymour to Cincinnati. It was designed to peddle the other players out and to put a phony team into Baltimore to represent the American League. But the remaining players and minority stockholders refused to lend themselves to the scheme. Moreover, fortunately, the lease of the ball park had been assigned to President Johnson. The latter was in Washington when the blow fell. He at once went to Baltimore, assumed possession of the ball park, and arranged with the minority stockholders to run the club for the American League. The conspirators also blundered in not leaving enough players to make up a team to play a scheduled championship game with the visiting St. Louis team. The latter presented itself at the ball park on July 17th, was awarded the game by default, no complete Baltimore team appearing, and the franchise was thereupon legally forfeited, according to the constitution, by President Johnson. The latter then arranged to run the Baltimore team for the rest of the season at American League expense, and the various clubs contributed enough players to make up a team. Under this arrangement Baltimore played out the season without the loss of a dollar to the American League, which thus cheaply got rid of a disturbing element and had the way opened for the invasion of New York. At a special meeting of the American League held in Chicago, December 22d, the Baltimore Club was officially declared out of the American League, the franchise being formally transferred to New York.

THE FINANCIAL RESULTS of the 1902 season were quite satisfactory to the American League magnates. The gross attendance far exceeded that of the 1901 campaign, and it is safe to say that every club, with the exception of Detroit and Baltimore, made more or less money. For Baltimore it is claimed that the club lost nothing after passing into American League possession—thus leaving to Detroit the unenviable distinction of being the only absolute financial failure of the 1902 season. In Philadelphia and Boston the attendance was phenomenal, and in Cleveland there was an extraordinary popular revival after the acquisition of Lajoie, Flick, Bernhard and Hickman—a move that converted a probable cemetery into a blooming financial garden. In Chicago and St. Louis also good money is said to have been made; and Washington, despite a big star team, is declared to have come out more than even. Under the circumstances, the American League president and magnates have ample cause for self-congratulation upon the all-round good results of the memorable 1902 season.

THE ATTENDANCE OF 1902.

DURING the season of 1902 the American League gained so greatly on the National League over 1901 as to place the senior organization in second place as regards attendance as well as team strength. In 1901 the National League outdrew the American League by a total of 236,447; but 1902 more than reversed these figures, giving the younger league a total excess of 523,445—a result not surprising, considering the wonderful race of the American League and the processional character of the National League race. In every city where there was a conflict, the American League outdrew its rival. New York, the National League tail-ender, leads the organization in paid admissions, and the Phillies are last. The figures follow:

National.		American.
New York.....	302,875	Athletics....	420,078

AMERICAN CHAMPIONS POPULAR.

The Athletics far surpassed all the clubs of the American and National Leagues in drawing power. Sixty-five days of play on the Athletic grounds brought 420,078, an average of 6,462 per day. The largest attendance was 23,897, the smallest 1,051. On thirty-three occasions the crowd numbered more than 5,000; on twelve it passed 10,000; three times it was more than 15,000, and twice it went over 20,000. Away from home the Athletics played to 273,555, bringing their total to 684,844. Boston drew the banner crowds in Philadelphia, and the Athletics found their largest receipts at the Hub. Excepting to Detroit, the Athletics paid out more money to the visiting teams than they received. These figures show the attendance in every series:

At home.		Abroad.
With Boston	78,594	At Boston.....	53,026
With St. Louis	72,383	At St. Louis.....	52,200
With Cleveland	62,873	At Chicago	47,384

Grand total		693,631

In Philadelphia there were ten conflicts, and in each encounter the champions had the better of the financial argument, outdrawing the Phillies 59,367 to 6,928. The greatest differences in the assemblages at the two parks was on September 10th, when the Athletics drew 17,291 spectators to the Phillies' 172, the tail-end Baltimores and the champion Pittsburgs being the attractions. On June 3d, with the White Sox at Thirtieth and Oxford and the Pirates at Broad and Huntingdon, there was almost a draw, the Americans winning by 212. These were the attendance figures on the conflicting dates:

	Athletics.	Phillies.
June 3	1,810	1,598

LEAGUE CHAMPIONS ALSO ATTRACT.

The Pittsburg team was, next to the Athletics, the best drawing team in the country, especially on the road. More than 600,000 people in various sections of the base ball map paid to see Pittsburg's two-time champions perform during the past season. Here is the record:

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1903 EXPANSION.

THE sell-out of the controlling stockholders of the Baltimore American League Club to the National League in July, 1902, and the subsequent forfeiture of the franchise to the American League, compelled the American League to cast about for another and better city to supplant Baltimore. It also opened the way for the long-cherished invasion of New York, the metropolis of the country, which was the only thing needed to place the American League on territorial equality with the National League and crown its expansion career with fullest measure of unexampled success.

NEW YORK'S INVASION

was fully decided upon at a conference of leading American League magnates in July last, and work was at once begun on the scheme. Agents were sent out to secure additional National League players, regardless of cost, to make up an all-star team for New York. How successful this raid was will be seen by a glance at the personnel of the New York team, in the "American League 1903 Roster," given elsewhere in this GUIDE. Meantime, New York had been looked over for the most available site for a ball park, and options were secured on several sites, both on Manhattan Island and in the Bronx. The American League leaders then for the first time announced their intention of invading New York.

THE COMMITTEE AT WORK.

When this became public, a New York promoter, Mr. James Kennedy, who claimed to have a ground and local political backing with a capital of $300,000, made a claim for the franchise. This was denied him, whereupon he announced that no foreigners would be permitted to secure a ball park, on Manhattan Island, at least. Undaunted, the American League went ahead with its plans, and after some weeks of hard labor, Messrs. Johnson, Somers and Kilfoyl, the committee entrusted with the work of financing and locating the new club, announced in print that they had secured a ground on Manhattan Island by purchase, on which a magnificent base ball plant would be erected, but for prudential reasons the exact location of the site was withheld until the American League's annual meeting in New York the first week in February.

THE FIRST SITE SELECTED.

This announcement, made during the National League's annual meeting in New York, had a potent influence in the matter of inducing the National League to make the overtures for peace which a few weeks later resulted in the Cincinnati joint conference, at which a peace treaty was formulated. So confident was the American League of its New York position that it consented to the clause in the peace treaty shutting it out of Pittsburg and Baltimore and confining it to New York for its needed eighth club. This confidence was due to the fact that a deal had been arranged with August Belmont, at that gentleman's suggestion, for the American League to buy the Curtis estate on Lenox avenue between 142d and 143d streets, Mr. Belmont to buy the strip from 143d street to 144th street and lease it to the American League, and to secure from the Rapid Transit Company another strip of necessary land at 143d street, thus making a fine site for a great ball park available, at the same time providing the Rapid Transit Company with a new source of income.

A TEMPORARY THROW-DOWN.

This deal was considered practically closed, when suddenly the Rapid Transit Company, of which Mr. Freedman was a director, along with Mr. Belmont, refused to lease the needed strip of ground. Mr. Belmont then withdrew altogether from a proposition of his seeking and making. This temporarily threw the American League upon its beam ends, but with his usual courage and resourcefulness President Johnson quickly recovered from the shock, and hustled to such advantage that in a short time a new site was secured and leased, although some valuable time was lost by reason of Mr. Johnson's being confined to his bed for several weeks by grip and an injured knee. In order, however, to avoid any further hold-ups or throw-downs, Mr. Johnson decided to give out nothing whatever regarding the new park until the American League meeting to be held in New York on call of the chair.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING.

held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York City, from March 5th to 12th, inclusive, the American League completed all arrangements for the new New York Club and ground. It also adopted the 1903 champion schedule (printed elsewhere); adopted a uniform code of playing rules, including the obnoxious foul-strike rule; elected Ban B. Johnson president, Charles W. Somers vice-president, and Postal, Hedges, Comiskey and Killilea as League directors. The New York Club was formally admitted to membership, after which the American League adjourned sine die.

THE NEW BALL PARK,

leased for ten years, is 780 by 620 feet, and is located on Manhattan Island, between 165th and 168th streets, Eleventh avenue and Fort Washington avenue. The new New York Club will have for president Joseph W. Gordon, a builder and coal and wood dealer, a member of the Tammany Hall and of the New York Athletic, Democratic and Tilden Clubs. Associated with him will be John B. Day, the old base ball man, once president of the New York National League Club.

INTER-LEAGUE GAMES OF 1902.

THE only Inter-League series of the season of 1902 was an exchange of post-season games between the champion Pittsburg team of the National League and a picked team of American League stars, composed of Young, Joss and Bernhard, pitchers; Sullivan, catcher; Harry Davis, first base; Lajoie, second base; Wallace and Monte Cross, shortstop; Bradley, third base; Hartzell, Jones and Harley, outfielders. The first game played at Pittsburg, October 7th, under National League rules, was won by Pittsburg 4 to 3, Leever and Young pitching. The second game, played at Pittsburg October 8th, Pittsburg also won 2 to 0, Phillippi and Joss pitching. The third game, played at Cleveland October 10th, Bernhard and Leever pitching, was a draw, neither side scoring in eleven innings. The fourth and last game, played at Cleveland October 11th, resulted in an All-American victory by 1 to 0, Young pitching against Phillippi. The players played these games on the coöperative basis, and divided quite a large sum, the four games being well attended.

CONNIE MACK,
Manager of the American League's Champion Athletic Club.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 RACE.

THE second campaign of the American League as a major league began April 19th and ended September 29th, 1902, with the Athletics, of Philadelphia, as the champion team. The race was from beginning to end one of the most remarkable recorded in major league history. Every team was in it at some stage, four teams had for nearly two months a nerve-straining race clear to the wire, and a dark horse won out by as sensational and well-sustained a burst of speed as was ever witnessed. The final victory of the Athletic team, which for half of the season appeared to have no chance, was not only popular at home and abroad, thus adding vastly to the financial success of the season and the permanence of the American League, but it was well deserved.

THE ATHLETIC TEAM

was the best in the League in all the essentials that go to make up a pennant winner—even balance, harmony, lack of individual ambition, self-sacrifice for team success and skillful team work in all departments. In the matter of “inside” work, negotiating the bases and acquiring runs, the Athletic team excelled all of its competitors, and to this it owes its great success. It was also fortunate in the matter of immunity from serious accidents to players.

THE ST. LOUIS TEAM, which finished second, was, unlike the Athletics, a powerful star aggregation, and appeared to be a pennant probability from the start. That the team fell just short of complete success was due partly to accidents to players, partly to pitcher Harper's season-long failure to pitch up to his 1901 form and partly to unexpected weakness in the catching department.

THE BOSTON TEAM, which in 1901 finished second, last year had to be content with third place. Like St. Louis, the greatly strengthened Boston team was in the race all the time clear to the finish, but failed at critical times, owing partly to the lack of team work and partly to the illness of pitcher Winters and the occasional disability of such players as Stahl, Dougherty and Collins.

THE CHAMPION CHICAGOS, supposedly strengthened so much as to make a third championship almost sure, at one time held an apparently insurmountable lead, yet they could only finish fourth, after a hard struggle to keep out of the second division. The fall of the champions was largely due to the failure of their vaunted pitching corps, a season-long slump in batting and persistent neglect of the team play which in former years had made them as invincible as the Athletics became the latter part of last season.

THE CLEVELAND TEAM

headed the second division teams. This club enjoyed a remarkable season. Starting with bright prospects, the original team failed to make good and soon fell to last place, where it lingered for nine weeks. With the acquisition of Lajoie, Bernhard, Flick and Fraser the team soon rose from last to fifth place, and made a gallant fight for a place in the first division, which it barely failed to reach. In the latter half of the season the Cleveland team played such fast ball and was such a stumbling block to all competitors, that it may be accepted as an assured fact that the Blues will be in the race from the start this season.

THE WASHINGTON TEAM

proved a disappointment, as it was expected to finish better than sixth, considering the strong injection of star League talent it received. The comparative failure of the team was due to inconsistent pitching and erratic fielding, aggravated by constant injuries to players. The batting of this team was as surprisingly strong as its fielding was weak, thus just reversing expectations.

THE DETROIT TEAM

fell from third place last year to seventh place this season. A fall in position was expected, considering that Detroit strengthened less than any other team, but so low a place as seventh was hardly looked for. This painful result is attributed to light hitting, poor fielding, defective team work and lack of that dash and fire that distinguished the Tigers of 1901.

THE TAIL-ENDER, BALTIMORE, was a victim of circumstances. The all-star team gathered by McGraw and Kelly failed to make good, owing to lack of discipline and the constant rows of "John and Joe" with the umpires. The McGraw-Kelly sell-out in July robbed the team of important players, threw the club on the hands of the American League and compelled the playing of a makeshift team to play out the schedule as a matter of convenience simply. Under the circumstances the team's finish at the tail was inevitable, although the Orioles made a gallant struggle and kept Detroit on the anxious bench to the end.

THE PLAYERS, AS A WHOLE, are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts to please the public, to enrich their employers and to warrant the continuation of the high-salary system. They are furthermore to be commended upon their average good deportment on and off the field. The 1902 season was remarkable for the good behavior of the players on the diamond, the vast diminution of umpire baiting, and the entire absence of such disgraceful episodes as marred the season of 1901. President Johnson's unrelenting campaign against rowdy playing evidently had its effects last season, and we desire to congratulate him upon the success of his efforts for clean ball, coupled with the hope that he will never relax in the good work. During the past season every team had at least three postponed games. The Chicago team had six; Detroit, five; Athletics, St. Louis, Boston, Cleveland and Washington, four each, and Baltimore three. The full season record follows:

AT HOME AND ABROAD.

The records of the clubs at home and abroad show that each team found its own grounds and supporters to be large elements of success. Every team won more than half its games contested on resident diamonds, the Athletics making a particularly brilliant showing before their adherents, as they took from visiting teams 56 out of 73 games, winning 40 out of the last 48 played. On the road only one club, Boston, got better than even break, and their margin of superiority was just one game. Baltimore did not win a game at St. Louis, and Detroit couldn't capture a ball in Philadelphia. The record of the clubs at home and abroad is appended:

HOW THEY RAN DURING THE SEASON.

During the year every club but Baltimore and Cleveland occupied first position. Boston's last appearance as a pace-setter came on April 22d. Washington's, on April 27th; Detroit's, on May 25th; Chicago's, on August 12th, and St. Louis' on August 14th. The Athletics went to the fore on August 15th, and thereafter were never headed. The leaders during the year were:

April 19th to 22d—Boston.
 April 23d—Athletics, Chicago, St. Louis and Washington.
 April 24th—St. Louis.
 April 25th—St. Louis and Washington.
 April 26th to 27th—Washington.
 April 28th to 29th—Detroit.

THE SECTIONAL SERIES.

The 1902 sectional honors were earned by the Western clubs, which won 160 games from their Eastern rivals and lost 155. Cleveland excelled in work against its Eastern antagonists, with St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit following in the order named. For the East the Athletics were most successful, Boston next so, then Washington and Baltimore. In the East the Western teams won 58 games and lost an even century of contests, while the Eastern clubs' record in the West consisted of 55 victories and 102 defeats. Here are the figures:

WEST VS. EAST AND EAST VS. WEST.

THE ATHLETIC AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPIONS FOR 1903.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT WINNERS.

THE Philadelphia Athletic team of 1902, the new champions of the American League, deserve to be complimented upon their splendid achievement in the face of discouraging handicaps. When the Athletic team was at one swoop, through the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's decision, deprived of Lajoie, Bernhard, Fraser, Duggleby and Flick, it was left such a wreck that not even by the wildest imagination could it then be reckoned a pennant-winner the same season. Undaunted by misfortune, Manager Mack repaired his shattered forces as best he could; by degrees added pitchers Hustings and Waddell, and infielder Murphy to his team, and gradually licked the aggregation into such a harmonious, well-balanced and skillful whole that once the team got the lead on August 15th, it was never again headed and thenceforth was practically unbeatable.

THE ATHLETIC PLAYERS,

one and all, deserved their success, for the reason that each and every man had but one object in view, and to achieve which each man sunk his personality and aimed to work with the team as a unit, individual records having no bearing whatever with any of the boys. The element of luck cut no figure, except as regards weather and immunity from accidents—and the latter bit of luck was offset by the hole made in the team earlier in the season by the Supreme Court. The Athletic team was well balanced, harmonious, brainy and game. It played the game at all times on scientific principles, and never before did Philadelphia enjoy such a steady succession of brilliant work and thrilling victories as marked the

ATHLETICS' CAREER

in the latter part of the past season. The fine pitching of Hustings, Plank and Waddell was always backed up by accurate and steady fielding, consistent batting and superb team work at bat or on bases. In the matter of ignoring individual records, playing for runs and protecting the base runner, the Athletics excelled any team in either major league, and to this superb system of "inside" work they chiefly owe their magnificent run of victories once they got going.

SPLENDID DEPORTMENT.

What made the Athletic team's phenomenal success doubly gratifying was their unexceptionable deportment on and off the field. Never was there a team so free from scandal or shortcomings. Throughout the season the men kept themselves in good condition, and played clean ball, and not a man was removed from the game or fined by the umpires. Off the field the players always looked and behaved like gentlemen whom anyone would be glad to know and associate with. So, in all respects, the Athletic team was a credit to the profession and a deserving subject of pride to Philadelphia.

Individual Sketches.

The champion Athletic team was managed by Cornelius McGillicuddy (known to the whole country as Connie Mack). Mr. Benjamin F. Shibe was president of the club; John D. Shibe, business manager; Thomas Shibe, assistant business manager; Frank L. Hough, secretary, and Samuel Jones, assistant secretary. With Connie Mack, these gentlemen composed a business staff hard to equal for courtesy and energy. Following will be found brief biographical sketches of the president, manager and players of the club:

BENJAMIN F. SHIBE,

president of the Athletic Club, has been identified with base ball in various capacities for a quarter of a century. He was a supporter of the first Athletic Club and a stockholder in the second Athletic Club, organized by the late William Sharsig, in 1880. In the interregnum between the first and second Athletic Clubs he kept base ball alive in Philadelphia by maintaining for years the famous Shibe Club, from which many noted professional players graduated. When the Athletic Club became bankrupt, in 1890, Mr. Shibe lost his investment in that club, through no fault of his. When the American League invaded Philadelphia and the present Athletic Club was organized, Mr. Shibe at once connected himself with it as a matter of local pride, of sentiment for the name, and of principle as an old-time and consistent believer in the two-league principle. Mr. Shibe is a man of solid attainments and of wealth, being a member of the famous sporting goods manufacturing house, the A. J. Reach Co., of Philadelphia, of which city Mr. Shibe is a prominent and universally respected citizen.

CONNIE MACK,

manager of the Athletic team, is a famous figure in base ball, of eighteen years' active experience as player, captain and manager. He has scored many successes in base ball, but his greatest achievement was to mould the Athletic team into a pennant-winner after being deprived, through the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's ruling, of such great players as Lajoie, Bernhard, Fraser, Duggleby and Flick. Manager Mack was born at Brookfield, Mass., in 1862, and began his base ball career with the Meriden, Conn., Club, in 1884. The two following years found him playing for Hartford, Conn. The latter part of the season of 1886 he joined the Washington Club, playing in that city 1886-'87-'88 and '89. Buffalo found him in its base ball ranks in 1890. For the next six successive seasons he caught for Pittsburg, and was manager from August, 1894, until the end of August, 1896. The year following he assumed the management of the Milwaukee Western League Club, and remained in the West until the spring of 1901, when he transferred his Milwaukee franchise to Philadelphia. Under his managerial direction the Pittsburgs finished seventh in 1895, percentage .538; the Milwaukees fourth in 1897, percentage .625; the Milwaukees third in 1898, percentage .590; the Milwaukees sixth in 1899; percentage .447; the Milwaukees second in 1900, percentage .577; the Athletics fourth in 1901, percentage .544; the Athletics first in 1902, percentage .610.

LAFAYETTE N. CROSS,

captain and third baseman of the Athletic team, was the grand old veteran of the team. He was born in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1867, and at the age of 17 was a member of the Sandusky, Ohio, team. In 1886 he played for Altoona, Pa., and the two following years caught for Louisville. It was in 1889 that he joined the old Athletics, but threw his lot with the Brotherhood of Players in the fight against the National League, and played in Philadelphia in 1890. The next year found him back on the Athletics, and from 1892 to 1897 he wore the uniform of the Philadelphia National League Club. He went to St. Louis in 1898, and divided the next season with St. Louis and Cleveland. Manager Hanlon secured him in 1900, but he cast his lot with Connie Mack in 1901, and has since proved one of the most valued members of the team. He was formerly one of the cleverest catchers in base ball, but of late years he has covered third base with unqualified success. He is one of the best batters in the profession.

GEORGE EDWARD WADDELL,

the star pitcher of the Athletic team, known the country over as "Rube," made a wonderful record last season as a winning pitcher. He is unique in all things, and one of the characters of the base ball world, owing to his erratic disposition and singular ways. Born in Bradford, in 1876, he made his professional debut at Oil City, Pa., twenty years later. It was his appearance that won for him the cognomen of "Rube," which has stuck to him throughout his career. In 1897 he pitched for Volant College, and the latter part of the same season joined Louisville. He has had a kaleidoscopic experience. In 1898 he pitched for Detroit and Homestead; 1899, Columbus and Louisville; 1900, Pittsburg (N. L.) and Milwaukee; 1901, Chicago (N. L.) and Los Angeles, and 1902, Los Angeles and the Athletics. As a pitcher he holds more records than any of his contemporaries or predecessors.

EDWARD S. PLANK,

who shares with Waddell the star pitching honors of the Athletic team, has achieved a national reputation in a remarkably short space of time, as two years ago he was unknown in the professional world. He was born in 1875 at Gettysburg, Pa., and started out on his career at Gettysburg College in 1900. His work on the rubber attracted considerable attention, and Manager Mack gave him a trial in 1901. His work was little short of phenomenal, and during the month of May, 1901, it was thought he would rival the record of any pitcher in either League. He finished well up in the averages that year, but was out of form in the early part of last season. He recovered this, and for the last six weeks of the season pitched marvelous ball.

BERTHOLD J. HUSTINGS, another one of the pitchers of the Athletic team, is a Western product. He was born in the year 1878, at Mayville, Wis. As an amateur he gave promise of developing into a good pitcher, and in 1897 pitched for the Kewaunee and Fon-du-Lac Clubs, of Wisconsin. One year later he entered the University of Wisconsin, and was easily the best pitcher in the Western colleges. Milwaukee secured him in 1899, and also during the early part of the season of 1900. He joined the Pittsburg (N. L.) team in the same year, but the following year found him back in the Milwaukee American League Club. In 1902 he was transferred to Boston, from which city he came to Philadelphia.

HOWARD P. WILSON, who pitched some very clever games, was the youngest member of the team in point of age and service. He is a native of Philadelphia and a graduate of the Central High School. He started on his base ball career in Norwich, Conn., three years ago. After a season in the East, he returned to Pennsylvania, and in 1901 pitched for West Chester and also for Frankford. Later he became a member of the Wilmington Club, remaining with the Delaware organization until the early part of last season, when he was given a trial by Manager Mack. He was at once successful, was signed by the Athletics, and during the 1902 season fully sustained his reputation as a capable and reliable pitcher.

FREDERICK MITCHELL,

the fifth pitcher of the Athletics, hails from New England—a section most prolific of good base ball timber. The date of his birth is 1878, and the city, Allston, Mass. During his school days he gained considerable local reputation as a pitcher. He developed to such an extent he was given a regular position on the Concord (N. H.) team in 1897 and '98. One year later he was pitching for Lawrence, Mass., and in the next season he was a valued member of the St. John's (N. B.) Club. When the Boston American Club was organized he was one of the first players signed. Last season Boston released him to the Athletics, with which team he finished the season.

OSEE F. SCHRECONGOST, whose catching, batting and throwing was a great factor in the Athletics' success, was born at New Bethlehem, Pa., in 1875, and began his professional career at Williamsport, Pa., in 1895. The next year he gave his services to Fall River, Mass., and Augusta, Me., was his headquarters in 1897. He played for Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Youngstown, Ohio, and Cleveland, in 1898. St. Louis and Cleveland found positions for him in 1899; and the former club released him in 1900, when he signed with Buffalo. One year later he was engaged by the Boston American League Club, and last year came to the Athletics from Cleveland. His batting while with Manager Mack has been no less successful than his work behind the bat.

MAURICE R. POWERS,

for two seasons the Athletics' mainstay behind the bat, is another college-bred ball player. Pittsfield, Mass., claims him as a citizen, he having been born in that city in 1873. After graduating from Holy Cross College in 1896, where he played for three years on the team, he entered Notre Dame College, where he not only played base ball for two years, but earned his degree. He joined Louisville in 1898, and played in that city the early part of the following year, when he was transferred to Washington. In 1900 he played for Indianapolis, and has been a member of the Athletic team for the past two years.

HARRY DAVIS.

the Athletics' first baseman, is another local product, of whom Philadelphians are justly proud. Three years before the great Centennial Exhibition Davis first saw light. Twenty-one years later, or in 1894, he played for Providence, having been one of the best players on the Girard College nine. In 1895 he played for Pawtucket and New York. Pittsburg signed him the latter part of 1896, and for the two following years he drew salary from that club. A flattering offer was accepted by him from Providence, where he did excellent work during the seasons of 1899 and 1900. Connie Mack signed him in 1901, and since that time he has covered first base in a most acceptable manner.

DANIEL F. MURPHY,

the second baseman of the Athletic team, is another native of Philadelphia, where he was born in 1876. He was eighteen years old when he was given a trial by the Worcester, Mass., Club. In 1899 he was second baseman for North Attleboro, and Norwich secured him one year later. His playing attracted the attention of the New York management, and he played for that club the latter part of that season and the early part of 1901. In the spring of 1902 he again returned to Norwich, from which club Manager Mack purchased his release in July—a move which greatly strengthened the Athletic team in fielding and batting.

MONTFORD CROSS,

the famous short stop of the Athletic team, is also a Philadelphia boy, of good old Quaker stock. He is now thirty-three years old and first played professional ball with the "Solar Tips," of Philadelphia, in 1888. Since that time he played in the following cities: 1889, Milford, Del.; 1890, Lebanon, Pa.; 1891, Lebanon; 1892, Baltimore; 1893, Savannah; 1894, Detroit, Syracuse and Pittsburgh, and 1895, again in the Smoky City. The next two years found him on the St. Louis team, but in the fall of 1897 Colonel Rogers secured him in a trade for Philadelphia. In 1898, 1899, 1900 and 1901 he proved himself one of the best short stops in the National League. He left the Philadelphia Club in the fall of 1901 and signed with Connie Mack, by whom he is considered one of the best short stops on the diamond.

FREDERICK T. HARTZELL,

the clever left fielder of the Athletics, hails from the bounding West. He was born at Polk, Ohio, in the year 1876. Twenty-one years later he joined the Burlington, Ia., team. In 1898 he played successively for Montgomery, Salem, Grand Rapids and Louisville. During the early part of the following season he continued with Louisville, but was found on the Indianapolis Club when the season closed. In 1900 he divided his playing between Indianapolis and Cincinnati, and the next year he was one of the stars of the Chicago National League Club. It was his work on this club that induced Connie Mack to sign him for the Athletics last year.

DAVID L. FULTZ,

the fast and dashing outfielder of the Athletic team, has developed into one of the greatest players in the country. As a run-getter, a team and "inside" player, he has not his equal in either major league to-day—a fact that makes him of the greatest value to any team he is connected with. A Southerner by birth, Fultz first saw light in Staunton, Va., in 1876. He entered Brown University in 1895, and for four years was the star player of the base ball team. After graduating he signed with Philadelphia (N. L.) for 1898, and went to Baltimore in 1899. The next season he was under Connie Mack's management in Milwaukee, and was brought to Philadelphia when the American League franchise was transferred from Milwaukee. Fultz is not only a star base ball player, but also a clever foot ball expert, having learned both branches of sport in Brown University.

RALPH A. SEYBOLD,

the hard-hitting right fielder of the Athletic team, is a Western boy. He was born in 1874, at Washingtonville, Ohio, and started out in the year 1892 at Altoona; Johnstown, 1893; Franklin, 1894, and Lancaster, 1895-96-97, were his successive jumps. He went South to Richmond, Va., in 1898, and after playing a couple of months in that city, in 1899 he played for Cincinnati for the balance of the season. In 1900 he went to Indianapolis, and in 1901 joined the Athletics, with which club he has been for the past two seasons. His hard and timely hitting has made him a great local favorite.

LOUIS CASTRO,

the substitute infielder of the Athletic team, who played second base acceptably for the first half of the season after Lajoie was lost, is of Spanish descent—a nephew of President Castro of Venezuela—but thoroughly American by birth and training. He was born in the United States of Colombia in 1877. He began playing when he was 17 years old. For three years he played on the Manhattan College team, principally as pitcher. After graduating he played for Utica, in 1898; Atlantic City in 1900, and in 1901 in the Connecticut State League. He signed with Manager Mack early last season, and was retained as utility man, for which position he was eminently fitted.

EDWARD J. DELEHANTY,
Champion Batsman of the American League.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 BATTING.

THE batting averages of the American League players for 1902, as compiled by President Ban Johnson, are given below. The leader of the 1902 batsmen is Edward J. Delehanty, of the Washington team, who piled up the proud record of .376. The great Lajoie, of Cleveland, is a close second with .369. Third and fourth places also go to Cleveland players, Hickman and Bradley, while fifth place falls to Lave Cross, of the champion Athletics. This team, by the way, had six men in the select .300 class, leading all other teams in that respect. Baltimore had five .300 batsmen; Cleveland, Washington and Boston, each four; Detroit, three; Chicago and St. Louis, two each. Thirty men batted .300 or better. Forty-nine men made 100 or more single-base hits, Hickman leading with 194, L. Cross second with 189, Bradley third with 187 and Delehanty fourth with 178.

DELEHANTY'S GREAT RECORD.

Edward J. Delehanty, who led the American League in batting in 1902, led the National League stickers in 1899, and was but once lower than ninth place in ten years. Delehanty's batting record for the past eleven years follows:

A summary of the above games, in which batsmen secured four, five or six hits, shows that L. Cross, Dougherty and Hickman indulged oftenest in pitcher pounding. Each of the trio six times made four hits in a game and once five. Selbach was the only Johnsonite to twice bingle five times in a contest. Among the pitchers who swelled their batting averages by hitting for four and five hits in an afternoon were Callahan, Howell, Lee, Townsend and Wiltse. The summary:

TWO HITS IN AN INNING.

Thirteen instances are on record where batsmen made two hits in one inning, and three times the players accomplishing this feat added to the effectiveness of their feats by scoring two runs as well. Here is the record:

April 25th—Delehanty, a single and a double off Husting, of Boston, in sixth.

May 31st—W. Gleason, two singles off Winters, of Boston, in eighth.

July 7th—Bresnahan, two singles off Orth, of Washington, in second.

July 7th—Robinson, a single and a double off Orth, of Washington, in second.

July 8th—Hartzell, a single and a double off Adkins, of Boston, in sixth. Scored two runs as well.

July 8th—H. Davis, a single and a home run off Adkins, of Boston, in sixth. Scored two runs as well.

July 8th—Murphy, two singles off Adkins, of Boston, in sixth.

July 8th—L. Cross, two singles off Adkins, of Boston, in sixth.

July 28th—Ely, a single and a home run off Callahan, of Chicago, in fifth.

July 28th—W. Clarke, a single and a home run off Callahan, of Chicago, in fifth.

Aug. 1st—Wallace, a single and a double off Wilson, of Athletics, in sixth. Scored two runs as well.

Aug. 1st—McCormick, two singles off Wilson, of Athletics, in sixth.

Sept. 10th—Hickman, a single and a double off Piatt, of Chicago, in eighth.

TIMELY FOUR-BAGGERS.

Nine of the four-baggers made during 1902 arrived at the precise moment when they would do the most good, or the most harm, i. e., when all the bases were occupied. Dates of these destructive swats are given below:

May 1st—Seybold, off Orth, of Washington.

May 18th—McGuire, off Streit, of Cleveland.

June 24th—Lajoie, off Harper, of St. Louis.

July 8th—H. Davis, off Adkins, of Boston.

July 25th—Collins, off Harper, of St. Louis.

Aug. 23d—Wiltse, off Patterson, of Chicago.

Sept. 5th—Anderson, off Sparks, of Boston.

Sept. 5th—Seybold, off Bernhard, of Cleveland.

Sept. 10th—H. McFarland, off Mitchell, of Athletics.

In addition to the above, there were ten players who scored three runners on long hits—either doubles or triples—as follows: Anderson, Bradley, Criger, M. Cross, G. Davis, Dillon, Doyle, Isbell, Parent and Robinson.

THE TIMELY HITTERS.

In 87 American League games, viz., 38 extra-inning contests and 49 of the 51 battles that were decided in the ninth round, it is possible to discover what players batted in the winning runs. The list of the timely hitters of 1902, with the number of games their hits won, is as follows:

Freeman, Boston.....	8	Delehanty, Washington.....	1
Mertes, Chicago.....	5	Dillon, Detroit.....	1
M. Cross, Athletics.....	4	Dougherty, Boston.....	1
Anderson, St. Louis.....	3	Ely, Washington.....	1

HEAVY BATTING SERIES.

In three sets of games both contestants hit for .300 or better. These series were the Washington-Baltimore, the Baltimore-Cleveland and the Athletic-Cleveland, and the highest percentages were secured in the first named, the Senators batting for .327 and the Marylanders for .322. The highest and lowest batting percentages made by each team were:

Athletics—Against Cleveland, .300; against Boston, .263.
 Baltimore—Against Washington, .322; against Detroit, .263.
 Boston—Against Baltimore, .317; against Cleveland, .231.
 Chicago—Against Baltimore, .288; against Boston, .236.
 Cleveland—Against Baltimore, .347; against St. Louis, .246.
 Detroit—Against Washington, .284; against Chicago, .231.
 St. Louis—Against Baltimore, .313; against Cleveland, .199.
 Washington—Against Baltimore, .327; against Detroit, .258.

BIG SCORE GAMES.

The campaign was dotted with 38 slugging matches, i. e., games in which one or both sides scored 13 or more tallies. Cleveland led with 23 runs in a game against Baltimore. The record:

April 25th—Washington, 15; Boston, 4; Husting.

April 26th—Washington, 15; Boston, 7; Dineen and Delanger.

May 2d—Baltimore, 14; Boston, 6; Young and Prentiss.

 Sept. 23d—Boston, 14; Washington, 1; Carrick.

HEAVY BATTING GAMES.

An even dozen times during 1902 did teams find the key to pitchers' deliveries and bat out a score or more base hits. The banner day for safeties was July 8th, the Athletics then being credited with 27 marks in the third column. The record:

April 25th—Cleveland, 18 singles and 3 doubles, off Reidy, of St. Louis.
 May 11th—Detroit, 13 singles and 7 doubles, off Piatt and Patterson.

May 29th—Washington, 12 singles, 6 doubles, 2 triples and 1 home run, off Streit and Lundboom, of Cleveland.

Aug. 11th—Cleveland, 15 singles, 8 doubles and 1 triple, off Hale and Wiltse, of Baltimore.

Aug. 23d—Baltimore, 15 singles, 1 double, 3 triples and 1 home run, off Piatt and Patterson, of Chicago.

Aug. 25th—Baltimore, 17 singles, 4 doubles, 3 triples and 1 home run, off Griffith and Leitner, of Chicago.

Aug. 31st—Washington, 16 singles and 4 doubles, off Siever and J. Yeager, of Detroit.

Sept. 2d—Cleveland, 15 singles, 6 doubles, 1 triple and 1 home run, off Katoll, of Baltimore.

Sept. 12th—Washington, 17 singles, 2 doubles and 4 triples, off Katoll, of Baltimore.

Sept. 17th—Boston, 15 singles, 2 doubles and 3 triples, off Butler, of Baltimore.

MEMORABLE INNINGS OF 1902.

The big inning of the year was the sixth round of the Boston-Athletic game of July 8th. Then the Quakers tallied 12 times, jumping on Merle Adkins, the Wisconsin wonder, for 10 safe hits. The big-inning games of the season follow:

April 25th—Washington, 8 runs in sixth, off Husting, of Boston, on seven hits and two bases on balls, twelve men going to bat.

May 31st—Detroit, 8 runs in eighth, off Winters, of Boston, on seven hits, two bases on balls, two sacrifice hits and one error, twelve men going to bat.

June 2d—Baltimore, 9 runs in third, off Streit, of Cleveland, on five hits, one base on balls, six errors, one wild pitch and one passed ball, thirteen men going to bat.

July 4th (p.m.)—Athletics, 8 runs in the seventh, off Patten, of Washington, on seven hits, two bases on balls and one error, twelve men going to bat.

July 8th—Athletics, 12 runs in the sixth, off Adkins, of Boston, on ten hits, two passes and two errors, sixteen men going to bat.

July 28th—Washington, 10 runs in fifth, off Callahan, of Chicago, on seven hits, two passes, two errors and two stolen bases, thirteen men going to bat.

Aug. 1st—St. Louis, 8 runs in sixth, off Wilson, of Athletics, on seven hits, a pass and three errors, eleven men going to bat.

August 26th—Boston, 8 runs in second, off Powell, of St. Louis, on six hits, a pass and an error, eleven men going to bat.

Sept. 28th—Chicago, 8 runs in fourth, off Sudhoff, of St. Louis, on seven hits, a pass and two errors, eleven men going to bat.

ONE-RUN VICTORIES.

Of the 543 games played to a finish in 1902, almost a quarter—148—were decided by one run. In 1901 there were 119 such contests, in 1900 there were 149 and in 1899 there were 134. The 1902 record follows:

RUNS IN SERIES.

The clubs that scored 100 or more runs in series were: Athletics, against Cleveland, Detroit, Washington and Baltimore; Baltimore, against Cleveland and Washington; Boston, against Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and St. Louis; Chicago, against Baltimore, Athletics and Washington; Cleveland, against Baltimore, Athletics and Boston; Detroit, against Washington; St. Louis, against Baltimore and Washington; Washington, against Baltimore, Boston and Chicago.

In five American League games both sides reached double figures in runs. The Athletics and Cleveland had 10 or more tallies in 18 contests; the Chicagos, in 17; the Baltimores and Detroit, in 15; the Washingtons, in 14; the Bostons and St. Louis, in 9.

LAVE CROSS,
Captain of the Champton Athletic Club

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 FIELDING.

THE American League players during 1902 exhibited a high degree of fielding skill—a most creditable fact in view of the hard hitting the fielders were stacked up against. In team fielding the St. Louis led the League, with Baltimore last. Following is the season's record:

CLUB FIELDING.

Clubs.	Put Outs.	Assists.	Errors.	Passed Balls and Wild Pitches.	Percentage.
St. Louis	3609	1867	253	48	.949

Baltimore.....	3460	1820	358	44	.929

INDIVIDUAL FIELDING.

In individual fielding Howard Wilson, of the Athletics, led the pitchers; Warner, of Boston, led the catchers; Carey, of Washington, led the first basemen; Lajoie, of Cleveland, led the second basemen; Collins, of Boston, led the third basemen; Wallace of St. Louis, led the short stops; Lepine, of Detroit, led the right fielders; Jones, of Chicago, led the centre fielders, and Kelley, of Baltimore, led the left fielders. Following is the complete record:

TEAM WORK IN FIELDING.

The Boston team very nearly averaged 27 put-outs to a game, having figures of 26.9. The Collins aggregation was in many extra-inning games, and besides proved a good road team, the high average of put-outs resulting. Cleveland and Detroit had the greatest average of assists—13.8. These data show the average per game of put-outs, assists and errors by each team:

AMERICAN LEAGUE NO-HIT GAMES.

THE one no-hit game of the American League's 1902 season was pitched by Callahan, of Chicago, against Detroit, on September 20th. Callahan's feat was the sixth of its kind accomplished in the American League in the last four seasons. Four of these tricks were turned by southpaws, and the list is as follows:

May 8th, 1899—Gray, of Buffalo, against Indianapolis.
 June 9th, 1899—Newton, of Indianapolis, against Milwaukee.
 April 19th, 1900—Amole, of Buffalo, against Detroit.
 May 17th, 1900—Kellum, of Indianapolis, against Kansas City.
 July 28th, 1900—Dowling, of Milwaukee, against Cleveland.
 Sept. 20th, 1902—Callahan, of Chicago, against Detroit.

Newton was in the National League in 1902, Kellum in the American Association, Dowling in the Pacific Northwest and Gray and Amole in the Eastern.

WILLIAM BERNHARDT,
Leading 1902 Pitcher of the American League.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 PITCHING.

FOLLOWING are the official records of American League pitching for the season of 1902. The following table shows the number of victories and defeats scored by each pitcher; also, the number of times each man was taken out of the game. The leading winning pitcher was Bernhard, with .783; Waddell was second, with .766; Young third, with .727, and Husting fourth, with .714, these being the only pitchers with over 70 per cent. of victories. Following are the complete official figures:

RARE PITCHING FEATS OF 1902.

It was not very frequently that a pitcher was able to hold an opposing team down to three hits or less, but in 35 games of the past year that feat was accomplished. The months of May and September were the most prolific of these games; during the former there were seven and the latter eight. April and June had only four each, while July and August tied with six apiece. The list of games in which three hits or less were made follows:

NO-HIT GAME.

Sept. 20th—Callahan, of Chicago, against Detroit.

ONE-HIT GAMES.

April 26th—Joss, of Cleveland, against St. Louis.

May 16th—Piatt, of Chicago, against St. Louis.
Aug. 2d—Mercer, of Detroit, against Washington.

TWO-HIT GAMES.

April 24th—Siever, of Detroit, against Chicago.
April 25th—Wright, of Cleveland, against St. Louis.
April 30th—Harper, of St. Louis, against Detroit.
May 4th—Joss, of Cleveland, against Detroit.
May 8th—Powell, of St. Louis, against Detroit.
May 24th—Townsend, of Washington, against St. Louis.
June 3d—Patten, of Washington, against Detroit.
July 1st—Cronin, of Baltimore, against Athletics.
July 1st—Joss, of Cleveland, against Detroit.
July 31st—Mullin, of Detroit, against Washington.
Aug. 11th—Waddell, of Athletics, against Detroit.
Aug. 30th—Bernhard, of Cleveland, against Washington.
Sept. 10th—Joss, of Cleveland, against Chicago.
Sept. 12th—Lee, of Washington, against Baltimore.
Sept. 13th—Joss, of Cleveland, against St. Louis.
Sept. 17th—Sudhoff, of St. Louis, against Detroit.

THREE-HIT GAMES.

May 8th—Garvin, of Chicago, against Cleveland.
May 16th—Miller, of Detroit, against Cleveland.
May 17th—Moore, of Cleveland, against Detroit.
May 19th—Griffith, of Chicago, against Detroit.

THE 1902 STRIKE-OUT RECORD.

During the 1902 race Waddell, of the Athletics, had the largest number of strike-outs—210—and the highest average per game—6.36. The big fellow did slab duty in 279 innings, and fanned on an average three men in every four rounds of play. Waddell led the Athletics' pitchers in strike-outs; Young, Boston's; Joss, Cleveland's; Powell, St. Louis'; Piatt, Chicago's; T. Hughes, Baltimore's; Townsend, Washington's, and Mullin, Detroit's. The strike-out record of the American League twirlers follows:

Rank.	Pitcher and Club.	Full Games Pitched.	Parts of Games Pitched.	Total Games Participated In.	Strike-outs.	Average Strike- outs Per Game.

CLUB STRIKE-OUT RECORD.

For every two runs and every four hits, the pitchers exacted one strike-out, fanning 2,767 batsmen. The Athletic pitchers led in strike-outs, so disposing of 462 men, with Boston a good second. On the other hand, the Baltimore and Chicago batsmen struck out most, all of which will be gleaned from the following table:

PITCHING FEATS OF THE YEAR.

The American League's record of strike-outs for a nine-inning game, established in 1890 by Martin Duke, of Minneapolis, who fanned 18 of the Denver team, was not fractured during the year, Waddell approaching nearest to it by deceiving 13 of the Orioles on July 1st. Eight days later the Bostons hit the air 16 times in 17 rounds when facing the Reuben, who also in the campaign fanned 12 of the Clevelanders, 11 of the Chicagos and 10 of the Bostons, in each contest not more than nine innings being played. In three games nine men were struck out, Young turning the trick against the Orioles and Waddell performing the stunt against the Bostons and Chicagos. Of contests in which pitchers were credited with eight strike-outs there were 18, Powell doing the act four times, Waddell three times, Dineen, Plank and Piatt twice each and T. Hughes, Moore, Mullin, Patton and Young once each. The southpaws figured in 15 of the 26 memorable strike-out games, a list of which is presented below:

April 10th—Young, 9 of the Baltimores, in 9 innings.
May 2d—Plank, 8 of the Washingtons, in 9 innings.
May 16th—Piatt, 8 of the St. Louis, in 9 innings.
May 21st—T. Hughes, 8 of the Detroits, in 10 innings.
May 21st—Dineen, 8 of the Chicagos, in 10 innings.
June 17th (a.m.)—Moore, 8 of the Bostons, in 9 innings.
June 17th (p.m.)—Young, 8 of the Clevelanders, in 9 innings.
June 18th—Powell, 8 of the Baltimores, in 9 innings.
July 1st—Waddell, 13 of the Baltimores, in 9 innings.
July 2d—Powell, 8 of the Chicagos, in 9 innings.
July 5th—Piatt, 8 of the Clevelanders, in 8 innings.
July 9th—Waddell, 16 of the Bostons, in 17 innings. ~
July 12th—Waddell, 9 of the Bostons, in 9 innings.
July 15th—Waddell, 8 of the Chicagos, in 9 innings.
July 21st—Dineen, 8 of the Chicagos, in 9 innings.
July 22d—Mullin, 8 of the Baltimores, in 9 innings.
July 28th—Powell, 8 of the Athletics, in 9 innings.

Aug. 16th—Waddell, 11 of the Chicagos, in 9 innings.
Aug. 23d—Powell, 8 of the Bostons, in 10 innings.
Sept. 9th—Patten, 8 of the Bostons, in 9 innings.
Sept. 15th—Waddell, 10 of the Bostons, in 9 innings.
Sept. 22d—Waddell, 10 of the Bostons, in 9 innings.
Sept. 23d—Plank, 8 of the Baltimores, in 9 innings.

PITCHERS' SHUT-OUT RECORD.

Twenty-nine pitchers appeared during the season as whitewash artists, 16 of them doing more than one job. Joss was the leading shut-out pitcher, featuring goose-eggs in his repertory five times. Mercer, Moore and Siever each pitched four shut-out games and Bernhard, Griffith, Powell, Waddell and Young each three. Joss blanked the Detroits twice, as did Griffith and Waddell; Bernhard whitewashed the Bostons twice; Mercer held the Washingtons to zeros in two games, and Siever twice "Chicagoed" the Baltimores. Here is the pitchers' shut-out record:

CLUB SHUT-OUT RECORD.

The Clevelanders were the aggressors in "Chicago" contests, their pitchers doing 16 neat whitewash jobs, including four against the Bostons and four against the Detroiters. Every club but the Athletics paid tribute to the Blues, who drew ciphers four times—on three of these occasions, it may be added, before Lajoie joined them. The club record of the shut-out contests follows:

Clubs.	Cleveland.	Athletics.	Chicago.	St. Louis.	Boston.	Detroit.	Baltimore.	Washington.	Victories.	Percentage.

RECORD OF SUCCESSIVE VICTORIES.

To Bernhard is due credit for pitching the greatest number of successive victories in 1902. The Clevelander, between July 31st and September 21st, officiated in 11 consecutive victories, downing every club but Detroit, toppling over the Bostons three times and the St. Louis and Athletic teams each twice. In three games Bernhard "Chicagoed" his opponents and in five contests they scored only once, the total number of runs in the 11 battles being 21 (average, 1.90) and of hits 65 (average, 5.90). Cy Young was a prosperous individual from May 3d to June 8th, inclusive, in which time he pitched and won, in rapid succession, 10 games, trouncing every club in the American and administering two beatings to the St. Louis, Athletics and Washington. Twenty-two runs and 73 hits were secured off the rail-splitter in these contests. Hustling won eight games in a row, Waddell captured seven, and these men took six: Callahan, Donahue, Orth, Patterson, Plank and Waddell. Plank achieved fame by winning 14 out of his last 16 contests, and it is curious that his string of victories started after he had dropped five games, one after the other, and had twice been driven from the rubber.

STRINGS OF SUCCESSIVE DEFEATS.

Butler, of Baltimore, has the longest string of successive defeats, failing to land a winner from August 5th to September 20th. He dropped nine games between those dates and sandwiched in a tie. Jack Katoll, of Baltimore, was unfortunate from August 28th to September 16th, inclusive, when he lost seven successive games—one to each team in the American. Oscar Streit was chased up the alley of defeat all seven times he was on the rubber for Cleveland—May 7th to June 18th—and retired to the minors without pitching in a victory. Joe Yeager met with half a dozen reverses in order, and so did C. Roscoe Miller, of Detroit, before he jumped to New York.

PITCHING POINTERS.

From April 25th to 30th, in five games, the St. Louis team scored only five runs and made but 19 hits facing the pitching of Wright, Joss, Miller, Mercer and Siever. The Browns' batting average in these contests was .125, and they won one game—a 1-to-0 event.

Though Cy Young placed to his credit but three shut-outs, the big Bostonian on thirteen occasions disposed of his opponents for one lone tally. In the fifteen-inning game with Detroit, on June 21st, the Tigers sent but one man over the plate.

Powell, of St. Louis, gave a clever exhibition of relief work on June 5th, when he succeeded Billy Reidy against Baltimore in the ninth. None were out, men on first and second, and the Orioles two runs to the bat. Without preliminary warming up, he retired Williams on an infield out. Then Seymour singled and Kelley scored, Selbach taking third. Powell passed McGann and then fanned Gilbert and Bresnahan.

Two pitching duels of the year were the encounter between Piatt and Powell, on May 16th, and the battle between Waddell and Cronin, on July 1st, five hits being made in each game—one off the Chicagoan, two off the Athletic, three off the Baltimorean and four off the St. Louisan.

CLUB RECORD OF PITCHERS' ERRORS.

Taking up another phase of the pitchers' work, viz., accuracy of aim, one discovers that the American League pitchers passed 3,152 hitters to first, issuing 2,804 bases on balls and putting 348 spheres into different parts of the enemies' anatomies, and advanced 239 runners by miscues—226 on wild pitches and 13 on balks. The Boston pitchers proved steadiest, Washington's next so. The Eastern curvers displayed far better command than their Western brethren, as is evidenced by the club record given below:

Clubs.	Bases on Balls.	Hit Batsman.	Wild Pitches.	Balks.	Total Pitching Errors.	Ave. per Game.

FREDERICK HARTZELL,
Leading 1902 Base Runner of the American League

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 BASE RUNNING.

DURING the American League 1902 race five players scored 100 or more runs, Fultz leading with 110. The others were Strang, 109; Hartzell, 108; Bradley, 106, and Delehanty, 103. In base stealing Hartzell led with 54, followed by Fultz with 48, and Mertes third with 46. Ten other men stole 25 or more bases, namely: Isbell, 38; Gilbert, 37; Strang, 36; Green, 34; George Davis, 33; Harry Davis, 31; Coughlin, 32; Keister, 27; Barrett and Lave Cross, 26 each. The Chicago team led in base stealing in 1902 same as in 1901, with the Athletics ranking second instead of Baltimore. These two teams greatly outclassed all the others in base running. Following is the club stolen base record:

BIG DAYS ON THE BASES.

The banner day's work in the way of base stealing was accomplished on September 4th, at Detroit, by the Athletics, who negotiated 10 steals on Buelow. Other days when the runners were busy stealing bases were:

Aug. 18th, at Philadelphia—Athletics stole 8 bases on Sullivan, of Chicago.

Aug. 29th, at Chicago—Athletics stole 8 bases on E. Hughes, of Chicago.

Aug. 22d, at Washington—Chicagoans stole 7 bases on Drill, of Washington.

Sept. 1st (p.m.), at Cleveland—Clevelands stole 7 bases on Warner, of Boston.

Sept. 4th, at St. Louis—St. Louis stole 7 bases on W. Clarke and Doyle, of Washington.

Sept. 5th, at Chicago—Chicago stole 7 bases on Drill, of Washington.

BRILLIANT PERFORMANCES.

Fultz and Hartzell, of the Athletics, earn brackets for the most brilliant exhibitions of base running. Each player stole four bases in a game, Fultz purloining his at Cleveland, August 8th, on Bob Wood, and Hartzell duplicating his rival's feat at Chicago, three weeks later, on Ed. Hughes. Fultz's performance was the better of the two, for he stole his bases on a backstop who was not new to the American League and one who was not suffering from stage-fright, as was "Long Tom's" brother. Fultz's exhibition that day was spectacular, for he scored three of the Athletics' four runs, made two of their eight hits, stole second twice, stole third once and wound up by stealing home while Earl Moore was delivering the ball to the batter. The feat of stealing home while a pitcher was delivering the ball was also accomplished by Stahl, of the Bostons, on Siever, at Detroit, on June 19th, and by Mertes, of the Chicago, on Plank, in Chicago, on August 29th. These players were credited with stealing three bases in games during the year: Fultz, Stahl and Strang, each twice; Bay, L. Cross, H. Davis, Green, Hartzell, Isbell and F. Jones, each once.

BASE RUNNING POINTS.

The American League's leading base runners the past six seasons have been: 1902, Hartzell, Athletics, 54; 1901, Isbell, Chicago, 50; 1900, Anderson, Milwaukee, 63; 1899, Burke, St. Paul, 54; 1898, Campau, Kansas City, 60; 1897, Mertes, Columbus, 97. Carey, of the Washington, had but one stolen base in 120 games. His base running average of .008 was in decided contrast to his fielding and batting percentages. Of the 75 players who failed to steal a single base, no less than 57 were pitchers. There were 48 American League players, 37 of whom were pitchers, who failed to make a sacrifice hit and steal a base the past season. Twenty-five players made sacrifice hits, but did not steal bases. And, finally, 7 players stole bases, but didn't sacrifice.

BASES STOLEN ON CATCHERS.

William D. Sullivan, of the Chicagos, was, according to the records, the hardest man to steal on, base runners being successful in but 44 attempts in the 71 games he was behind the bat. Kahoe, Criger and Warner were the other good throwing catchers, and Bemis, Donohue and Aleck Smith proved easy propositions for the base stealers. The table below shows the bases stolen on each catcher during the past season and the average per game:

Sacrifice Hit Record.

Sacrifice hitting was more general in the American League last season than during the preceding year, the records revealing 907 sacrifice hits in 1902 to 797 in 1901. As in 1901, the Chicago team in 1902 showed the way in sacrificing, making 155 such hits. Fewer sacrifice hits were made against Boston than any other team, a fact which stamps with truth the statement that with Young pitching and Collins playing third, such hitting is almost an impossibility. Here is the club record of sacrifice hits for 1902:

FULTZ INDIVIDUAL LEADER.

In the individual record, Fultz, of the Athletics, leads in sacrifice hitting with 35 such hits. Those who made 20 or more sacrifices were Green 24, Isbell 23, M. Cross 22, F. Jones 20 and Gilbert 20. Parent, Elberfeld and McCormick played in most games—139 each. Freeman and LaChance played in 138 each, and L. Cross, M. Cross, Seybold, Burkett, Hartzell, Strang, Isbell and Daly played in 137 games each.

BASES ON BALLS.

Hartzell, of the Athletics, proved to be the hardest man to pitch to, he receiving more bases on balls than any other player in the American League. Barrett, of the Detroit, and Strang, of the Chicago, came next, followed by George Davis and Burkett. Following is the record of bases on balls received:

REMARKABLE CATCHING FEAT.

Charley Bennett, while catching Weidman, of the Detroit, September 26th, 1884, had twenty-three chances—twenty being put out on strikes—and he threw out the other three, an unprecedented fielding record. This record was made while the two men were playing in an amateur match, Bennett and Weidman being hired from the Detroit team.

AMERICAN LEAGUE EXTRA-INNING GAMES.

DURING the season of 1902, 44 extra-inning games were played in the American League, an increase of 12 over the previous season. In 38 of the 44 overtime events decisions were reached, the score being tied in a half dozen conflicts when darkness vetoed further proceedings. Twenty-eight games went but one round past regulation length, there being six contests of 11 innings, three of 12, three of 13, two of 15 and two of 17. For the most part, the additional round affairs were small scoring events, and in the two longest games of the campaign the final results were 2 to 2 and 4 to 2. August was the banner month for extra-inning affrays, 14 being then played. During July there were 11, during May 8, during June 7 and during September 4.

THE CLUB RECORDS.

The Cleavelands made the best showing in extra-inning games, winning 7, losing 3 and tying 1. Three of their victories were over Washington, and in each of the trio of contests played in Louisville, August 16th to 19th, between the Spiders and the Senators, an additional inning had to be played in order to break the existing tie. The Washingtons won as many games as the Cleavelands, but lost three more, the Athletics ranking second on a percentage basis. Three of the Quakers' four wins were at the expense of the Boston team, which stands third, Washington being fourth, Chicago fifth, Detroit sixth, Baltimore seventh and St. Louis eighth. The St. Louis team broke into 14 overtime events, winning 3, losing 7 and tying 4. Sectionally the honors went to the East, whose teams won 20 and lost 19 games, percentage .512. The Western clubs captured 18 out of 37, percentage .486. The division records were: Second, won 21, lost 20, percentage .512; first, won 17, lost 18, percentage .485. The club record follows:

Clubs.	Cleveland.	Athletics.	Boston.	Washington.	Chicago.	Detroit.	Baltimore.	St. Louis.	Victories.	Percentage.

Tie games—Athletics-St. Louis, Baltimore-St. Louis, Boston-Detroit, Chicago-St. Louis, Chicago-Washington, Cleveland-St. Louis.

THE PITCHERS' RECORDS.

Cy Young won the most extra-inning games—four—and was Boston's boxman in six of their overtime struggles. He lost a 10-inning contest to the Athletics and fought an 11-inning draw with Detroit. His side partner, Dineen, figured in five extra-round battles, and won only one—a 13-inning affair. His defeats included three 10-inning games and one 17-round contest. Orth split even in his extra-inning games, winning and losing three. Waddell landed two of his—one of 13 and one of 17 innings—and tied the other, a 10-round battle. The pitchers' records in the extra-inning games follow:

AMERICAN LEAGUE RECORDS.

The American League's most remarkable extra-inning games have been as follows:

July 3d, 1887, Northwestern League—Milwaukee defeated Oshkosh, 4 to 3, in 17 innings, neither side scoring for fifteen successive innings.

Sept. 7th, 1896, Western League—Grand Rapids won from Kansas City, 10 to 9, in 16 innings.

May 8th, 1899, Western League—St. Paul defeated Milwaukee, 5 to 4, in 17 innings. The Apostles' twirler, Roger Denzer, held the Brewers to six hits.

Sept. 4th, 1899, Western League—St. Paul won from Indianapolis, 3 to 2, in 16 innings.

July 22d, 1900, American League—Chicago and Cleveland played a 16-inning tie game; score, 5 to 5.

Aug. 9th, 1900, American League—Milwaukee defeated Chicago, 3 to 2, in 17 innings. Waddell pitched for the Brewers in this event, and occupied the box in a five-inning game started immediately upon its termination, thus twirling twenty-two successive innings, and thereby duplicating a feat performed May 16th, 1891, by Neil Donaghue in a contest between Tacoma and Seattle.

July 3d, 1901, American League—Detroit defeated Milwaukee, 7 to 5, in 16 innings.

May 18th, 1902, American League—Chicago and St. Louis played a 17-inning tie; score, 2 to 2.

July 9th, 1902, American League—The Athletics defeated Boston, 4 to 2, in 17 innings.

A REMINDER OF LAWYER WARD.

John M. Ward, once a world-famous player, now a successful lawyer in New York, while pitching for the Providence team, performed the most remarkable pitching feat on record, June 7th, 1880. He not only shut out Buffalo without a hit, but did not allow a batsman to reach first.

FRANK O'LOUGHLIN,
Leading American League Umpire.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1902 UMPIRING.

EVER since his advent as president of the American League, President Ban Johnson has consistently and unremittingly stood for clean ball, and in pursuance of that policy has rigidly sustained his umpires, with the result that the patrons of the American League have been able to enjoy games, on the whole, well umpired, cleanly conducted and speedily played—all of which contributed largely to the success of the organization. President Johnson's umpire staff in 1902 consisted of Frank H. O'Loughlin, John Sheridan, Thomas H. Connolly, James Johnstone and Robert L. Caruthers, and it must be said that they did their work well.

FORFEITED GAMES.

The umpires were called upon to decide two games forfeited and in only one of these was rowdyism the cause of the termination. These were the forfeited games of 1902:

June 28th—Boston, 9; Baltimore, 4; 7½ innings. Declared forfeited to Boston, 9 to 0, by Umpire Connolly, because McGraw refused to go to clubhouse after being ordered out of the game.

July 17th—St. Louis, 9; Baltimore, 0; no innings. Declared forfeited to St. Louis, 9 to 0, by Umpire Caruthers, because Baltimore was unable to put a team in the field. Franchise declared vacated by President Johnson.

SINGLE UMPIRE SYSTEM.

The single umpire system was in operation in 415 games, O'Loughlin giving the decisions unaided (except by grandstand and bleacher referees) in 113. Connolly in 106, Sheridan in 102, Johnstone in 55 and Caruthers in 39. In Boston and Philadelphia—cities where the writers spend little time in roasting the knights of the indicator—the single umpire system was most often tried. This table gives the information on the subject:

Umpires.	Baltimore.	Boston.	Chicago.	Cleveland.	Detroit.	Philadelphia.	St. Louis.	Washington.	Totals.
O'Loughlin.....	10	14	6	23	24	19	13	4	113
Connolly.....	15	21	0	18	11	24	13	4	106
Sheridan.....	2	21	16	8	8	17	9	21	102
Johnstone.....	11	8	4	2	15	7	0	8	55
Caruthers.....	0	3	19	2	0	0	10	5	39
Totals.....	38	67	45	53	58	67	45	42	415

DOUBLE UMPIRE SYSTEM.

Two umpires were used in 138 contests, St. Louis having 28 games refereed in this manner, Chicago 27, Washington 26, Baltimore 26, Cleveland 13, Detroit 8, Philadelphia 6 and Boston 4. Caruthers and Johnstone, the new members of the staff, were most often paired. Two umpires officiated in games as follows:

Caruthers and Johnstone, 51—17 at Washington, 12 at St. Louis, 8 at Baltimore, 5 at Chicago, 5 at Philadelphia and 4 at Boston.

Caruthers and Sheridan, 23—16 at Chicago, 4 at St. Louis, 3 at Detroit.

Connolly and Johnstone, 16—6 at Chicago, 5 at Baltimore, 5 at Detroit.

Caruthers and Connolly, 13—8 at Washington, 5 at Cleveland.

Caruthers and O'Loughlin, 11—11 at Baltimore.

Johnstone and Sheridan, 10—10 at St. Louis.

Johnstone and O'Loughlin, 8—8 at Cleveland.

O'Loughlin and Sheridan, 3—2 at Baltimore, 1 at Washington.

Connolly and Sheridan, 2—2 at St. Louis.

McAllister and Powers, 1—1 at Philadelphia.

REMOVED FROM GAMES.

Sixty-eight times during 1902 were umpires compelled to use their authority and banish players from the game and grounds. The great majority of the offenses were disputes over decisions, and there were, fortunately, no such exhibitions of rowdiness as occurred at Baltimore and Washington in 1901. Caruthers was responsible for 22 banishments, Sheridan for 14, O'Loughlin for 11, Johnstone for 11 and Connolly for 10. President Johnson followed up his umpires' work by handing out six short-time suspensions and three for indefinite periods. The atmosphere at St. Louis must have been impregnated with kicking microbes, for the Mound City was the scene of 18 removals from the game. Baltimore saw 10 removals, Boston 9, Detroit 8, Chicago 7, Cleveland 6, Washington 6 and Philadelphia 5.

PLAYERS DISCIPLINED.

Of the players disciplined by the umpires, 14 were of the Baltimore club, 13 of the Chicagos, 13 of the St. Louis, 10 of the Detroits, 8 of the Bostons, 6 of the Cleve-lands, 2 of the Athletics and 2 of the Washingtons. Indi-vidually, Griffith was the principal offender, but Padden and Burkett were almost his rivals as trouble makers. Of course, had Kelley and McGraw remained in the American all year, their kicking averages would have been much higher than those made by Griffith, Padden or Burkett. List of the kickers kicked out of games:

Griffith, Chicago	8	Criger, Boston	1
Padden, St. Louis	5	M. Cross, Athletics	1
Burkett, St. Louis	4	G. Davis, Chicago	1
Kelley, Baltimore	4	H. Davis, Athletics	1
McGraw, Baltimore	4	Delehanty, Washington	1
Collins, Boston	3	Dillon, Detroit	1
Gilbert, Baltimore	3	Dougherty, Boston	1
Bonner, Cleveland	2	Ferris, Boston	1
Bresnahan, Baltimore	2	W. Gleason, Detroit	1
Buelow, Detroit	2	Harper, St. Louis	1
Casey, Detroit	2	Hemphill, St. Louis	1
Elberfeld, Detroit	2	F. Jones, Chicago	1
Green, Chicago	2	Mertes, Chicago	1
Harley, Detroit	2	A. Smith, Baltimore	1
Lajoie, Cleveland	2	Sugden, St. Louis	1
Stahl, Boston	2	Wallace, St. Louis	1
Bemis, Cleveland	1	Wolverton, Washington	1
Bradley, Cleveland	1

Harper, Kelley and McGraw were indefinitely sus-pended by President Johnson, and Buelow, Collins, Fer-ris, Griffith, Harley and McGraw were not allowed to play for periods of three and five days.

AMERICAN LEAGUE 1903 TEAMS.

THE American League managers, during the season of 1902, not only re-signed nearly all of the players desired for another season, but made a new assault upon the National League ranks, capturing fully a score of the best remaining star talent in that organization. As a result, the teams which showed weakness last year will be strengthened, thus assuring another close and exciting race for 1903. Following is a correct and official roster of the American League teams as they will enter the race this year:

CHICAGO—Manager, James Callahan. Catchers—Sullivan and McFarland. Pitchers—Patterson, Callahan, White, Durham, Flaherty, Dunkle. Infielders—Isbell, Daley, Davis, Dundon, Tannehill. Outfielders—Green, F. Jones, E. Jones, Odwell, W. Hallman.

CLEVELAND—Manager, W. A. Armour. Catchers—Bemis and Abbott. Pitchers—Bernhard, Wright, Joss, Moore, Dornier, Hill, Hess, Hickey, Walker, Pounds, Stovall. Infielders—Hickman, Lajoie, Gochbauer, Bradley, Thoney. Outfielders—McCarthy, Bay, Flick, Weed.

DETROIT—Manager, E. Barrow. Catchers—McGuire and Bue-low. Pitchers—Donovan, Kitson, Mullin, Mercer, Yeager, Kissinger, Eason, Deering. Infielders—Turner, G. Smith, Elberfield, Carr. Outfielders—Crawford, Barrett, Clement, Schultz, McAllister.

BOSTON—Manager, James Collins. Catchers—Criger, Doran and Warner. Pitchers—Young, Dineen, Winters, Hughes, Altrock, Gibson. Infielders—Tom Jones, Ferris, Parent, Collins, LaChance, O'Brien. Outfielders—Dougherty, Stahl, Freeman, Wood, Stone.

ATHLETICS—Manager, Connie Mack. Catchers—Schreckengost and Powers. Pitchers—Plank, Waddell, Willson, Husting, Henley, Quinn, Rogers, Bender, Coakley. Infielders—H. Davis, Murphy, M. Cross, L. Cross. Outfielders—Hartzell, Pickering, Seybold, Hoffman.

NEW YORK—Manager, Clark Griffith. Catchers—O'Conner and Beville. Pitchers—Griffith, Chesbro, Tannehill, Wolfe, Wiltse, Howell, Owen, Adkins. Infielders—Ganzell, Williams, Long, Conroy. Outfielders—A. Davis, Fultz, Keeler, Courtney, H. McFarland.

ST. LOUIS—Manager, James McAleer. Catchers—Kahoe, Sugden. Pitchers—Sievers, Powell, Donahue, Sudhoff, Reidy. Infielders—Anderson, Padden, Wallace, McCormick. Outfielders—Hemphill, Heidrick, Friel, Burkett.

WASHINGTON—Manager, Tom Loftus. Catchers—W. Clarke, Drill. Pitchers—Orth, Townsend, Lee, Patten, Carrick. Infielders—Carey, Demontreville, C. Robinson, Moran, Coughlin. Outfielders—Delehanty, Ryan, Holmes, Selbach.

HARRY C. PULLIAM,
President of the National League.

THE AMERICAN-NATIONAL PEACE TREATY.

DURING the later stages of the American League campaign of 1902 that organization, having fully decided to replace Baltimore with New York, made another raid upon the National League's remaining star talent and succeeded in signing a practically all-star team for New York. In the raid a number of inroads were made upon the supposedly unapproachable Pittsburg team, and Brooklyn also suffered heavily. A diversion was also caused by the strenuous efforts of a Pittsburg syndicate to secure an American League franchise for Pittsburg. The National League was inclined to be skeptical regarding the American League's ability to secure a suitable ground in New York, and President Brush, of the New York Club, positively refused to be convinced to the contrary. When the National League met in New York for the annual meeting, December 9th, at the Victoria Hotel, Messrs. Johnson, Somers and Kilfoyl, of the American League, were quartered at the Criterion Hotel. The purpose of their visit at this time was to close a deal for a New York ground, and they threw a bombshell into the National League camp by publicly announcing the fact that they had secured a ground on Manhattan Island and giving out the all-star composition of the New York American League team.

PEACE OVERTURES MADE.

The subject of New York invasion was one of the principal topics of discussion throughout the National League's three-days' meeting, and opened the way to bring up the matter of making peace overtures to the now well-entrenched American League. Mr. Robison, of St. Louis, started the ball with a declaration in favor of making overtures, and was strongly seconded by Hart, of Chicago; Herrmann, of Cincinnati; Rogers, of Philadelphia, and Dreyfuss, of Pittsburg. Brooklyn and Boston were agreeable to the will of the majority. Mr. Brush, of New York, preferred war to peace, declared New York could not be invaded, and doubted the sincerity of the American League. To test the latter, however, he proposed a resolution to appoint a committee to ascertain from the American League representatives then in New York upon what basis a peaceful settlement of the war could be made. Messrs. Herrmann, Hart and Robison were appointed a committee, and they at once waited upon Messrs. Johnson, Kilfoyl and Somers with the above resolution and were cordially received. After twenty-four hours' consideration, the American Committee replied to the National Committee that the matter would be submitted to a special meeting of the American League, at which a committee would be appointed to meet the National League on or about January 5th.

THE QUESTION OF POWER.

Before adjournment, the National League continued Messrs. Herrmann, Robison and Hart as its Peace Committee without, however, giving it full power to act. The American League held a special meeting at Chicago December 22d, at which the matter of a peace treaty was considered in all its bearings, and a committee was appointed with full power, consisting of Messrs. Killilea, Somers, Comiskey and Johnson. The date for a joint conference with the League Committee was set for January 5th, but before that time a complication arose which nearly wrecked the peace movement. It leaked out that while the American League Committee had full power to act the National League Committee were not similarly endowed. It was supposed that the National Leaguers were hopeful of working out a twelve-club league consolidation scheme with the American, hence had feared to entrust their committee with full power. Mr. Johnson then advised Chairman Herrmann that consolidation would not be considered as a basis for negotiation, and that the League Committee must be endowed with powers similar to those of the American League. Mr. Herrmann endeavored by mail and wire to secure such power but failed, and it was only by dint of much persuasion and Mr. Herrmann's personal pledges that he would carry in the National League whatever committee agreement was reached, that the American Committee finally agreed to meet the National Committee in joint conference. Mr. Herrmann then requested the privilege of adding a fourth member to his committee. This was granted, and President Pulliam was added to the League Committee.

PEACE TREATY MADE.

The two committees met at the Grand Hotel in Cincinnati, on January 9th, and after two days' hard work and many mutual concessions, reached a basis of agreement. The National League men had a consolidation scheme which was promptly vetoed by the American. The territorial question proved a knotty one, but was finally settled by the American League entering New York but agreeing to keep out of Pittsburg. This settled, the player question was taken up. It was decided as a basis of procedure not to go behind the 1902 season, and that in all disputes over contracts for 1902 season priority of contracts should govern. After very full discussion of each of the disputed fifteen cases, a division was finally made by which the American League got Delehanty, Crawford, Davis, Elberfeld, Keeler, Conroy, Donovan, Lajoie and Fultz, and the National League received Willis, Leach, H. Smith, Hulswitt, Mertes, Bowerman and Matthewson. That much agreed on, everything else was easy. Each league then submitted a full list of its players which are to be considered reserved. It was also agreed that all money received by awarded players should be returned to the clubs losing them.

TEXT OF THE TREATY.

The rest of the session was spent in discussing the minor matters of non-conflicting schedule, uniform playing rules and interchange of exhibition games. The terms of a new National Agreement were also discussed and Messrs. Johnson and Pulliam were appointed a committee to formulate such an agreement with the assistance of President P. T. Powers, of the National Association of Professional Leagues. The work of the Joint Committee was then formulated into a joint and full agreement which was signed by all of the conferees. Following is the official text of the peace agreement entered into by the committees of the American League and National League:

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 10th.

At a prior date the National League and American Association of Professional Base Ball Clubs having appointed a committee, and the American League of Professional Base Ball Clubs having appointed a committee, the object and purpose being for said committees to meet, discuss and agree upon a policy to end any and all differences now existing between the said two leagues; and said committee of the National League, consisting of Harry C. Pulliam, August Herrmann, James A. Hart and Frank De Haas Robison, and said committee of said American League, consisting of B. B. Johnson, Charles A. Comiskey, Charles W. Somers and H. J. Killilea, and said committees, having met at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in the city of Cincinnati, on January 9th, 1903, and continued in session until this 10th day of January, 1903, and after fairly and fully discussing all complaints and matters of grievances and abuses growing out of the present base ball conditions, and having in mind the future welfare and preservation of the national game, have now unanimously agreed as follows:

1. Each and every contract hereafter entered into by the clubs of either League with players, managers or umpires shall be considered as valid and binding.

2. A reserve rule shall be recognized, by which each and every club may reserve players under contract, and that a uniform contract for the use of each League shall be adopted.

3. After a full consideration of all contract claims by each and every club, it is agreed that the list hereto attached marked exhibits "A" and "B" is the correct list of the players legally awarded to each club. Exhibit "A" being the list of American League players and exhibit "B" being the list of National League players.

4. It is agreed that any and all sums of money received by any player from any club other than the club to which he is awarded by the exhibit hereto attached shall be returned forthwith to the club so advancing said sums, and until all said sums of money so advanced are returned, said player shall not be permitted to play with any club in either League.

5. The circuits of each League shall consist of the following cities: American League—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. National League—Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati. Neither circuit shall be changed without the consent of the majority of the clubs of each League. It is further provided that there shall be no consolidation in any city where two clubs exist; nor shall any club transfer or release its players for the purpose of injuring or weakening the League of which it is a member.

6. On or before the first day of February of each year the president of each League shall appoint a Schedule Committee of three each, who shall be authorized to prepare a schedule of games to be played during the championship season by each in each League. This schedule shall be submitted by the committee within three weeks after their appointment to each League for their ratification and adoption. This committee shall be authorized, if they deem the same advisable, to provide for a series of championship games between all of the clubs of both Leagues.

7. On or before the first day of February of each year the president of each League shall appoint a Committee on Rules, of three each, who shall be authorized to prepare uniform playing rules. These shall be submitted by the committee within three weeks after their appointment, to each League, for their ratification and adoption.

8. It is further agreed that said two Leagues hereinbefore mentioned shall enter into a national agreement embodying the conditions and agreement hereinbefore set forth; and it is further agreed that Presidents B. B. Johnson and Harry C. Pulliam be, and they are hereby, appointed each a committee of one from each League for the purpose of making, preparing and formulating such national agreement; and it is further agreed that they invite President P. T. Powers, of the National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues, to confer and advise with them in the formulating of said national agreement.

9. It is hereby agreed that each member hereby bind himself and his respective League by signing this agreement this 10th day of January, 1903.

The Treaty Ratified.

Ratification of the above treaty by the American League was not necessary, the committee's full power binding the American League. As this was not the case with the National League's Committee, President Pulliam called a meeting of the National League for Cincinnati January 19th, to ratify the treaty. The clauses recognizing the American League's invasion of New York and relegating certain star players to the American League did not meet with unanimous approbation in League circles. New York and Brooklyn were bitterly opposed to the treaty. Philadelphia also objected to ratification and Boston was reported dissatisfied. The latter, however, soon fell into line for ratification, and Philadelphia's opposition was slight, owing to the fact that Mr. Dreyfuss was negotiating for the purchase of the club. This left New York and Brooklyn alone in opposition.

A TEMPORARY INJUNCTION.

On January 16th, three days before the League meeting, the New York Club, aided and abetted by Brooklyn, took a radical step. President Pulliam, of the League; Barney Dreyfuss, of Pittsburg (who were in Philadelphia closing up a deal for the purchase of the Philadelphia Club), and Col. Rogers, were served with a temporary injunction issued by Judge Davis, of Common Pleas Court No. 5, at the instance of the New York Club, to prevent the ratification of the Peace Treaty by the National League. All the other League presidents were also made defendants in this suit, the hearing for which was set for Wednesday, January 21st. President Pulliam left Friday night for Cincinnati to consult with Chairman Herrmann and Ohio counsel. Mr. Dreyfuss secured an extension of his option, and a comprehensive proxy from the Philadelphia Club and also departed for Cincinnati, where the meeting was held despite the injunction.

TAKING THE BULL BY THE HORNS.

To avoid legal entanglement the League went into session as a Committee of the Whole at the Grand Hotel, Cincinnati, on Monday, January 19th, and for four days thrashed matters out, the court hearing for January 21st being meantime postponed to January 23d by request of both parties to the suit. Brooklyn was steadily opposed to the transfer of Keeler, Donovan and Kitson to the American League. New York's objections to the loss of Delehanty, Davis and Elberfeld were gradually overcome, but Mr. Brush's opposition to the clause recognizing the American League's entrance to New York was implacable. To placate him, a resolution presented by Mr. Robison was adopted to the effect that the National League Committee's understanding was that the American League's claim to New York territory meant the borough of Manhattan only and not all of Greater New York. When all these matters had been threshed out without securing the coöperation of the New York and Brooklyn Clubs, it was decided that the League, acting as a Committee of the Whole, should present a majority and minority report to the National League, thus forcing to an issue the question of acceptance or rejection. Mr. Herrmann was delegated to draw up the majority report and Mr. Brush the minority report.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS ENDED.

The majority report was ready on Wednesday morning, but the minority report was delayed until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. During the afternoon Mr. Brush sent the following telegram:

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21st, 1903.

Nicol, Annibel & Lindsay, New York.

John G. Johnson. Philadelphia.

The New York Club desires that injunction proceedings against all defendants of the National League instituted in New York and Philadelphia should be discontinued and a restraining order be immediately vacated.

(Signed)

JOHN T. BRUSH.

In explanation of this sudden ending of litigation Mr. Brush said that he had resorted to law in order to enable him to fully present his case to the National League and secure a full and free discussion. That much having been accorded by the League, he had no further desire to proceed with the injunction case, and had ordered its discontinuance.

THE MAJORITY REPORT.

As soon as the National League went into session in annual meeting President August Herrmann, of the Cincinnati Club, presented the majority report, signed by himself, as Chairman: James A. Hart, Frank De Haas Robison and Barney Dreyfuss, the latter signing for both the Pittsburg and the Philadelphia Clubs, "subject to the decision of the courts of Pennsylvania." The majority report recited all the business of the two previous days, how the joint peace agreement had been considered section by section, together with the vote on each provision. After the statement of the vote on each of the nine sections, and after all motions and resolutions that were acted on, there appeared in the report these words: "Mr. Dreyfuss again stated that all votes cast by him for the Pittsburg and Philadelphia Clubs were subject to the decision of the Philadelphia Courts in the suit herein and heretofore referred to in this report." The majority report closed with a recommendation that the agreement adopted by the conference committees of the American and National Leagues on January 10th be ratified, with the fifth section construed to mean the borough of Manhattan, and not Greater New York, in the description of the American circuit.

THE MINORITY REPORT

was then presented to the National League by Mr. Brush, and on motion of Mr. Robison was given to the press. The report in full was as follows:

To the members of the National League.

The clubs of the National League and American Association of Professional Base Ball Clubs, representing the minority of the Committee of the Whole, having under consideration the report of the Conference Committee appointed by the League at its meeting in New York, December 10th, 1902, and which report is herewith submitted and marked exhibit "A," beg leave to submit the following changes in the proposed agreement between the Leagues a party thereto, after which we recommend the adoption of the agreement in its entirety and its ratification by the Leagues in interest:

1. There can be no stability to any enterprise where contractual obligations have no binding force or effect; therefore we recommend the adoption and ratification of Section 1 of the proposed agreement.

2. The reservation clause has been and will be the bulwark of the national game. With it, there can be no war. Without it, conflict and disaster ensue. Therefore we recommend the adoption and ratification of Section 2 of the proposed agreement.

3. The validity of contracts, where two or more exist with the same player, cannot be determined upon ex parte statements for evidence, and as no legal rights can be disturbed by any action of the League, and as the position of the Brooklyn Club differs from that of the New York Club in reference to an equitable disposition of this matter, we report that the New York Club recommends that all the contracts made with players of the New York Club whose names appear upon both lists of National and American Leagues, and shown upon exhibit "A," be referred to a board of arbitration composed of three attorneys, two of whom shall represent each of the contesting clubs, the third to be selected by them, who shall be some one well versed in base ball matters and an authority on contracts; and the findings of such board of arbitration shall be binding upon the contesting clubs.

The Brooklyn Club recommends that Keeler, Donovan and Kitson be placed upon the list assigned to the Brooklyn Club, said Brooklyn Club reserving the right to defend the validity of its contracts with these three players.

4. We recommend the ratification of Section 4 in its entirety.

5. Inasmuch as this League has no authority to declare that any League shall or shall not locate a club wherever it may elect, we recommend that the word "shall," in the first line of Section 5, shall be stricken out, and that the words "if it has suitable grounds in the Borough of Manhattan" be added after the words "New York," in the second line of Section 5, and that the words "unless all of the clubs parties to this agreement consent to such consolidation" be added the word "exist," in the eighth line of Section 5.

6. We recommend the ratification of the sixth, seventh and eighth sections of the agreement.

7. With the changes above indicated, we recommend the adoption and ratification of the ninth section of the agreement.

(Signed)

CHARLES H. EBBETTS,
President of the Brooklyn Club.
JOHN T. BRUSH,
President of the New York Club.

WHY THEY DIFFERED.

In the exhibits referred to, the New York Club added to its list Davis, Elberfeld, and Delehanty, and Brooklyn added Keeler, Donovan and Kitson. The two minority members were divided among themselves on the application of the third section. Brooklyn insisted unconditionally on the claims of that club to Kitson, Donovan and Keeler, while the New York Club proposed to submit the whole question of the awarding of players to a board of arbitration, to consist of five members, two to be selected by each League, and these four to select the fifth member.

BOSTON AS PEACEMAKER.

While New York and Brooklyn practically presented different minority reports, Boston presented no report at all. Its signature was not attached to any of the documents. Boston voted with the majority on Tuesday on seven of the nine propositions, and with the minority on the third section, awarding players, and the ninth section, binding all clubs in both Leagues to the peace compact. Its vote on the latter proposition was practically one against the whole joint peace agreement. Soden and Conant, of Boston, were the mediums on Wednesday for reconciliation.

NEW YORK FINALLY ISOLATED.

A long discussion followed the presentation of the minority report, from which it was made plain that the majority was in no mood to trifle longer, and that when it came to a vote the Cincinnati Peace Agreement would be ratified by a vote of 6 to 2, if necessary, without the slightest amendment. Finally, at 9 o'clock, after hours of battling for the minority report by Mr. Brush, both reports were filed and a recess was ordered until 10 o'clock—an interim which was used to good advantage to get Brooklyn placated, thus leaving the New York Club entirely isolated.

THE BATTLE WON.

When the League reconvened Mr. Robison moved and Mr. Herrmann seconded the following resolution:

Resolved, That the agreement heretofore entered into between a committee of this League and a committee representing the American League, which agreement is commonly known as the peace agreement, and which agreement is hereto attached, be, and the same is hereby, ratified and adopted and spread upon the minutes.

On roll-call, Brooklyn and Boston voted for adoption, with Chicago, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and St. Louis. Seeing the hopelessness of any further contest, New York also fell into line, thus making the vote for adoption unanimous and ending one of the most stubborn battles ever witnessed in the National League. President Ebbetts, of Brooklyn, next offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be tendered to Chairman Herrmann and the other members of his committee of the conference, for the able manner in which they have handled their most difficult task.

A resolution by Mr. Robison was also adopted that the National League compensate the Brooklyn Club in such sum as may hereafter be determined, and that the amount shall be paid in such manner as shall hereafter be determined between the president of the Brooklyn Club and the members of the Conference Committee on account of the loss of Pitcher Donovan. The meeting then adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday to complete other business.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PATRIOTISM.

While the National League was thus engaged in its most important—and probably last—faction battle, the American League preserved a most admirable position. In fact, President Ban Johnson and his colleagues once more proved their claim to exceptional astuteness and ability by their moderation and self-restraint throughout the National League crisis. By their discreet silence they materially aided the peace proponents of the National League; lighter-waisted magnates would have added to the embarrassment of the Peace Commissioners by injudicious advice or criticism and perhaps have defeated ratification altogether. In every crisis and in all ways have the new magnates sized up to major league standard, thus explaining in part the phenomenal success of the young American League.

BARNEY DREYFUS,
President of the Pittsburg (National League) Club.

NATIONAL LEAGUE REHABILITATION.

THE National League's 1902 season was as successful as could have been expected under the handicap of a lopsided pennant race, aggressive opposition in four cities, a long record of factional fights and a condition of armed neutrality within. During the season, however, the spirit of factionalism died out to a great extent. Financially the season was better than could have been expected under the conditions—a runaway pennant race, experimental teams and universal pitcher dominance—conditions which would doubtless have bankrupted any other organization than the solid old National League. It can be safely said that the money winners, in order, were Pittsburg, New York, Chicago and St. Louis; Brooklyn broke about even; Cincinnati lost somewhat, while Boston and Philadelphia were heavy losers.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, which conducted the campaign under the lead of Chairman John T. Brush, deserved credit for the frictionless running of the machine and for the excellent order maintained on the field. Never was there a National League race season so free from rowdyism and umpire-baiting by ball players. The season was also noticeable for the absence of any managerial or magnaterial outbreaks, the magnates for once remaining discreetly behind the scenes while the players held the center of the stage. On the whole, the National League had good reason to congratulate itself upon the net results of the season of 1902—not so much for what was achieved as for what was avoided, what was learned and what was accomplished toward making the future brighter and better.

FRUITS OF LEGAL VICTORY DISSIPATED.

Several important events occurred during the season which had a potent influence upon the future. On the eve of the championship race the National League scored a great victory by the decision of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court sustaining the validity of the option clause in the League contract. This threw the American League into temporary confusion and made many players waver. But the fruits of this legal victory were frittered away by further lawsuits in Missouri and Ohio, in which the League met with defeat, and by the failure of the Philadelphia Club to immediately re-sign the star players remanded by the Supreme Court from the Athletic Club to the Philadelphia Club. Lajoie, Flick and Bernhard jumped to Cleveland, following which Delehanty, Orth, Townsend and Donahue refused to leave the Washington and St. Louis Clubs, preferring to place themselves in contempt of court.

THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENT,

however, of the season was the sale by Mr. John T. Brush of his Cincinnati Club for $150,000 to a local syndicate composed of Messrs. Cox, Herrmann and the Fleishman Brothers, all men of wealth and standing in Cincinnati. This deal, which was consummated in August, led to the retirement of Mr. Freedman, of the New York Club, from active connection with base ball. With the Cincinnati purchase-money Mr. Brush was enabled to add enough New York Club stock to what he already possessed to give him control of the club. In November, at the annual meeting of the New York Club, Mr. Freedman and his old Board of Directors retired and a new board of Brush men was chosen, which board then elected Mr. Brush as president of the club.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING

of the League held at the Victoria Hotel, New York, December 9th to 12th, the new deal had the important effect of altering and practically wiping out the old factional lines and recreating the League. The test came on the question of whether a president should be elected or the old system of government by committee be continued. On a show of hands, only New York and Boston favored the last-named proposition, and after a contest lasting three days New York and Boston surrendered, and the Pittsburg Club's able secretary, Mr. Harry C. Pulliam, was chosen president and secretary-treasurer. On the question of making peace overtures to the American League the vote in the affirmative was unanimous, although the New York and Brooklyn Clubs were opposed to it at first, and Messrs. Herrmann, Robison and Hart were appointed a committee to ascertain on what basis a peace treaty could be effected. Before adjourning subject to the call of the chair, the National League adopted a 154-game championship schedule and elected a Board of Directors composed of New York, Boston, Chicago and Pittsburg.

THE FINAL LEGISLATION.

The labors of the National League committee resulted in a peace treaty with the American League, to ratify which another meeting of the League was held at Cincinnati, January 19th to 22d, at which, after four days of hard work, the opposition of the New York and Brooklyn Clubs was overcome and the peace treaty was unanimously ratified. Two committees were then appointed—Schedule: Dreyfuss, Ebbett and Hart; Rules: Hart, Hanlon, Fleishman—after which the League adjourned to meet again at the call of the chair.

The National League gave further evidence of its rejuvenation at its spring meeting at the Victoria Hall, New York City, March 4th and 5th. At this meeting complete harmony prevailed; there was no trace of factionalism, and for the first time on record the League gave its president absolute power to run the affairs of the League on the diamond. This was done through a special resolution empowering President Pulliam to discipline any manager or player at his discretion for violation of the rules or for misbehavior of any kind. In order to make this power absolute, all sections of the Constitution conflicting with the resolution were suspended. A feature of the meeting was the retirement of the old Philadelphia magnates, Messrs. Reach and Rogers, and the introduction of Messrs. Potter and Hyneman, representing the big Philadelphia syndicate which had just purchased the Philadelphia Club for $170,000. The 140-game schedule, presented by Chairman Dreyfuss and printed elsewhere, was adopted, as was the report of the Rules Committee providing for uniform playing rules, after which the League adjourned, well prepared for the season of 1903, and in better condition, internally and externally, than for many years.

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1902 RACE.

THE twenty-seventh annual campaign of the National League began April 17th and ended October 5th, 1902, with Pittsburg an easy pennant-winner for the second consecutive time. The race was such only in name, as the pennant was conceded to Pittsburg from the start, owing to the experimental character of the remaining teams, due to wholesale gutting by American League raids. Pittsburg assumed the lead on May 4th, and was never thereafter headed; in fact, for the balance of the season it was a runaway race, the Pirates winning out with 103 victories—the highest number of games ever won by any National League champion team. The Pittsburgs owe their wonderful success to the fact that their team entered the race unbroken, and even strengthened, over the previous year. The team was superior to any club in the country in the matter of pitchers, strong in batting, fast in fielding and master of a superb system of team play which its rivals could not even fathom, let alone break through.

THE FIRST-DIVISION CLUBS.

Aside from the question of the flag, there was quite a fine season-long contest between the Brooklyn, Boston and Chicago teams for second place, the teams finally finishing in the order named, although the relative positions of Brooklyn and Boston were not settled until the last two days of the campaign. These three teams were well matched with their experimental teams, Brooklyn winning out on superior pitching and batting. In the latter department Boston, otherwise strong and well balanced, fell just a trifle short. Cincinnati, which had been looked upon at the beginning as the logical runner-up to Pittsburg, by reason of having retained its old team intact, got a bad start, trailed along two-thirds of the season among the also-rans, and only managed to crowd into and hold a place in the first division after a managerial shift and an infusion of Baltimore talent.

THE SECOND-DIVISION CLUBS.

Chicago, which finished fifth, for a long time held second place, but finally slid down the ladder and remained down, owing to a continuous series of accidents and consequent endless experimenting. The sixth club, St. Louis, started out with an entirely new team, which, by common consent, was assigned to last place. However, the team developed fast and strong, and but for necessary experimenting with young pitchers, might have finished even higher in the race. Philadelphia, second in 1901, had to be content with a poor seventh in 1902. This team was so completely gutted by the American League that practically an experimental team had to be gathered, which team failed to make good, owing to batting weakness. New York suffered from exactly the same batting weakness as Philadelphia, aggravated by team dissensions and accidents to such valuable players as Lauder and Van Haltren, which caused the loss of so much ground that even a managerial shift and the infusion of new blood failed to pull the team out of last place.

THE NET RESULTS.

In conclusion it may be remarked that while good ball was played all along the line, the contests, on the whole, lacked snap and dash, owing to the preponderance of pitchers' games and the universal light hitting—a result largely due to the handicapping effects of the foul-strike rule upon the many young players in the National League. Following is the complete 1902 season race record:

The champion Pittsburg Club was officered and manned as follows:

BEST PITCHING FEAT OF 1902.

THE best pitching feat of 1902 in the profession was accomplished by Irwin Wilhelm, of the Birmingham (Ala.) team, in the Southern League. On August 23d, at Birmingham, Ala., in a double-header against Nashville, Wilhelm pitched both games in succession, allowing his opponents but one hit in each game. The contests were nine-inning events, the Nashville team being shut out in the first game 5 to 0, and losing the second 5 to 1. In eighteen innings Wilhelm struck out eight men and gave but three bases on balls.

REMARKABLE 1902 PITCHING FEATS.

AT Evansville, Ind., on June 8th, Frederick Burchell, the left-handed pitcher of the Evansville team, shut out the Bloomington team without hit or run in ten innings, and brought in the only run in the game in the tenth inning with a three-base hit. McGreevy, the Bloomington pitcher, held Evansville down to five hits, of which Burchell made 2. The game was a championship contest of the Indiana-Illinois-Iowa League.

CLARENCE BEAUMONT,
Champion Balsman of the National League.

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1902 BATTING.

THE official batting averages of National League players who participated in fifteen or more games during the season of 1902, as compiled by ex-Secretary N. E. Young, follow. They show that Clarence Beaumont, of the Pittsburg team, is the leading batsman, closely followed by Willie Keeler. Twenty-three batsmen figure in the .300 class, of whom Cincinnati has 7, Pittsburg 5, St. Louis 4, Chicago 2, New York 2, Boston 1, Brooklyn 1 and Philadelphia 1. It will be seen that Cincinnati, Pittsburg and St. Louis monopolized more than half of the entire list of .300 batsmen.

OTHER POINTS OF EXCELLENCE.

The ten leading run-getters were J. Wagner, of Pittsburg, leading with 105; Clarke, Pittsburg; Crawford, Cincinnati; Tenney, Boston; R. Thomas, Philadelphia; Keeler, Brooklyn; Sheckard, Brooklyn; Beckley, Cincinnati. Only three men—Wagner, Clarke and Beaumont, all of one team—made over 100 runs each in the season.

The ten leaders in sacrifice hits were as follows: Tenney, Boston, leading with 29; Dobbs, Cincinnati, and Chicago; De Montreville, Boston; Keeler, Brooklyn; Dexter, Chicago and Boston; Flood, Brooklyn; Dunn, New York; Ritchey, Pittsburg; Tinker, Chicago; Smoot, St. Louis.

The ten players who led in stolen bases were: J. Wagner, Pittsburg, 43; Slagle, Chicago; P. Donovan, St. Louis; Barclay, St. Louis; Clarke, Pittsburg; Carney, Boston; G. Smith, New York; Beaumont, Pittsburg; Lush, Boston; Dexter, Chicago and Boston.

THE BATTING LEADER.

Clarence Beaumont was born at Rochester, Wis., on July 23d, 1876. He played with the Fox River Valley League during 1896 and 1897 and until August 7th, 1898, when he joined the Milwaukee Club. His excellent batting, fine fielding and splendid base-running led to his purchase by the Pittsburg Club at the close of that season. He batted .350 in 104 games, fielded .926 and stole 32 bases. He was not given a regular position on the Pittsburg team until June 26th. His best batting performance of 1899 in any one game occurred July 22d, at Pittsburg in a game with the Philadelphias, when he made a safe infield hit each of the six times he went to bat. He also made six runs. On August 6th, that year, at Philadelphia, he made five safe hits, including three triples and a two-baser. For a new-comer in the National League, Beaumont has made an enviable batting record, it being an unusual thing for a new man to so soon achieve the batting premiership. In the two preceding seasons that high honor fell to two famous veterans, Jesse Burkett, of St. Louis, leading the League in 1901, while the great all-round player, John Wagner, of Pittsburg, carried all before him in 1900. In the last year of the great twelve-club League, 1899, the great Delehanty led all the batsmen. Following are the official averages in full for the season of 1902:

EXTRA-BASE HITTING.

The flop of many experienced batsmen to the American League, and the operation of the foul-strike rule, combined to decrease batting in the National League during the season of 1902, and in long hitting particularly was the slump felt. Compared with 1901 there was a loss of 509 extra-base hits, and a loss in total long hits of 1,410 bases. Pittsburg excelled in long distance batting, and the Pirates had no rivals in this department of the game. The individual records are appended, New York having 25 players to make long hits, Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburg 23, St. Louis 18, Brooklyn and Philadelphia 17 and Boston 16:

REMARKABLE 1902 BATTING FEATS.

A summary of the 1902 batting feats shows Keeler to have been prominent in the majority, Brooklyn's captain once making five hits and four times four. Barclay, Beaumont, Beckley, Crawford, Dolan and Tenney also made four hits in four games, and these men had a quartette of safe raps in three contests: Barry, F. Clarke, Dobbs and Lowe. Among the pitchers who flushed four safeties in games were Menefee, off Willis; M. O'Neill, off W. Donovan and Evans; Phillips, off White, Voorhees and Felix, and Voorhees, off Yerkes. Summary of the batting feats:

AS TO RUN-GETTING.

The one player to cross the plate five times in a contest was Brooklyn's captain—Keeler—who, on April 24th, in a game with Philadelphia, was credited with a performance of this character. Eleven times players scored four runs in games, one such occasion deserving comment. In the 18-inning tie between St. Louis and Brooklyn, August 17th, four of the Superbas' seven counts were secured by Sheckard, who crossed the plate in the first, second, ninth and thirteenth rounds—every one in which there was anything doing for the Hanlonites. Dates when players made four trips around the circuit in one game, and names of such players are: April 26th, Cooley; May 1st, Beaumont; May 13th, Magoon and Corcoran; May 18th, Magoon; July 17th, Nichols; August 12th, Krueger; August 17th, Sheckard; August 23d, Lowe; August 29th, Beckley; September 17th, F. Clarke.

FREDERICK CLARKE,
Manager-Captain Champion Pittsburg (National League) Club

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1902 FIELDING.

FOLLOWING are the official 1902 fielding averages of all National League players who participated in fifteen or more games in any one position. Boston and Chicago each led in three positions, while Pittsburg has the honor man in one. While Congalton, Chicago, and Kelley, Cincinnati, have a clean percentage of 1.000 in the outfield, the season's honors rightly belong to Keeler, of the Brooklyn Club, who played almost all of the year's schedule and is credited with the fine average of .982. The same may be said of Ritchey, second base, Pittsburg. Evers, Chicago, is credited with first honors, but he only participated in eighteen games, while the little infielder of the champions was in the game the entire year. The figures follow:

NATIONAL LEAGUE 1902 PITCHING.

THE leading pitcher of the National League for 1902 was John Chesbro, of Pittsburg. The record of John Taylor, of the Chicago Club, considering the fact that he was with a losing team, is remarkable. The following is the standing of pitchers taking part in more than 10 games:

Pitchers and Clubs.	Games.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Base hits by opponents	Runs scored by opponents	Hit batsmen.	Strike outs.	Bases on balls.	Wild pitches.	Balks.	Shut out opponents.	Won extra-inning games.	Lost extra-inning games.	Percentage.

THE 1902 SHUT-OUTS.

The National League season was remarkable for the number of whitewashes. There was a total of 97 shut-outs, a record far exceeding that of any recent year. The following table shows records of the different teams of the League in shut-outs:

TIE GAMES.

May 1.—Chicago, 0; Cincinnati, 0; 12 innings.

Sept. 4.—Boston, 0; Pittsburg, 0; 9 innings.

Here are the pitchers and number of shut-out games recorded in their favor:

Chesbro, 8; Taylor, 8; Matthewson, 8; Pittinger, 7; Hahn, 5; Phillippi, 5; Menefee, 5; Willis, 1; Newton, 4; Donovan, 4; Leever, 3; O'Neill, 3; Currie, 3; Fraser, 3; White, 3; Evans, 3; Tannehill, 2; Poole, 2; Kitson, 2; Eason, 2; Doheny, 1; Murphy, 1; Lundgren, 1; McGinnity, 1; Malarkey, 1; Williams, 1; St. Vrain, 1; Iberg, 1; Rhoades, 1; Yerkes, 1; Wicker, 1.

FEW-HIT GAMES.

During the National League 1902 campaign nearly 200 games were played where less than six hits were made in a single contest. In six games there was but one hit made by opposing batsmen. Donovan and Hughes, of Brooklyn; Chesbro and Leever, of Pittsburg; Pittinger, of Boston, and Fraser, of Philadelphia, accomplishing this feat. Following is the tabulated record of few-hit games:

PROSPECTUS FOR 1903.

THE outlook for the base ball season of 1903 is the brightest that has obtained in many years, owing to the fact that the warring American and National Leagues have made peace and entered into an alliance; and also owing to the composition of the quarrel in the National Association, thanks to which the American Association was brought into the National Association, making that body a solid and harmonious whole.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

has a particularly bright outlook, owing to the fact that in addition to holding all of the advantage secured last season it has gained for itself additional strength by obtaining a foothold in the metropolis of the nation, New York, hitherto the impregnable Gibraltar of the National League. This move not only enhances the strength of the organization, but vastly increases its prestige, especially with that large portion of the public which—rightly or wrongly matters not—deems no league fully entitled to major league status without representation in the greatest city in the country. By reason of New York's invasion, superior drawing power and greatly increased team strength, the American League is now undoubtedly the leading base ball organization of the land. It has a splendid circuit, the best ball teams, the confidence of the public and almost unanimous press support. All it needs to retain these paramount advantages is the continuance of the policy that has brought it phenomenal success.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

will enter the field in much better shape than last year, when it was sadly handicapped by a fierce internal faction fight, disrupted and ill-balanced teams and a lop-sided pennant race. Since then the League has almost wholly squelched factionalism, placed a young and energetic president in control of the organization, braced up its teams all round and paved the way for recovery of prestige and prosperity by making peace with the American League and entering an alliance which will give it relief from harassment, opportunity for recuperating from losses and time to repair and equalize its shattered teams. Under the rule of a live executive and with the excellent new blood added to the magnaterial body, the future of the senior base ball organization of the land once more looks exceedingly good.

THE MINOR LEAGUES

passed through the crucial year successfully, and are now all, with one insignificant exception, massed under the banner of the federation of the National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues. President Power, Secretary Farrell and the five members of the National Board handled the complicated affairs of the organization so ably and acceptably that at the end of the season the Association had amply proved its ability to take care of all of the minor leagues' interests without major league assistance or advice. So thoroughly did it demonstrate its value and necessity to the small leagues under its wing that the only important outside organization, the American Association, sought admittance, and is now one of the most useful and loyal members of the organization.

A BENEFICENT ORGANIZATION.

With the accession of the powerful American Association, the National Association gathered under its shield all of the important minor leagues of the country, except the distant and comparatively insignificant California League, which has changed its title to Pacific Coast League, and even that organization may yet be enrolled in the Association's army, negotiations to that effect pending as this is written. There is thus assured for the country at large plenty of first-class base ball, for the promoters a fair degree of security for investment, and for the great body of players ample and steady employment at as good salaries as the sport can well stand. For all which the National Association deserves to be called a base ball benefactor.

FINE PROSPECTS UNDER PEACE.

Elsewhere will be found some details of the National Association's remarkable work during 1902. Also in our "Roster for 1903" will be found a complete and reliable list of the many minor leagues members of the National Association, which makes up a formidable array alike as to numbers, strength of clubs and ability of leadership. If they are but supported in 1903 as they were in 1902, the season will be a brilliant success, in view of the elimination of the war that handicapped the season of 1902.

THE ROSTER FOR 1903.

THE base ball field of 1903 will be fully as well and as widely covered as it was in 1902, when a phenomenal number of leagues and clubs occupied all of the available territory in the country. An idea of the vast scope of the "organized ball" of the times may be gleaned from the appended official roster of the various leagues which will begin the 1903 season:

LEADING BASE RUNNERS SINCE 1890.

A LIST of the leading base runners of the major organizations for the past thirteen seasons, giving the National's honor men from 1890 to 1902, the American Association's for 1890 and 1891, the American League's for 1901 and 1902, and the Players' League for 1890, shows four players to have stolen over 100 cushions in the years they excelled. In the National, Hamilton pilfered 102 sacks in 1890 and 115 in 1891, and Lange, in 1896, swiped an even 100. In the American Association, Tom Brown, now a National League umpire, committed 110 thefts in 1891. The League's leaders have been Hamilton, four times; Ward, Lange and Sheckard, each twice; F. Clarke, Barrett and Slagle, each once. The roll of honor from 1890 to 1902, inclusive:

P. T. POWERS,
President of National Association of Professional Leagues.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION'S WORK.

THE National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues, embracing all the minor leagues in the country except the American Association and California Leagues, had a most successful season, and firmly established itself on an independent basis, despite the antagonism of the two outlaw leagues above mentioned. The membership at the start embraced thirteen minor leagues, and all of these remained loyal and finished the season except the North Carolina League, which disbanded in July. During the year from October 24th, 1901, to October 23d, 1902, Secretary Farrell, of promulgated 2,100 contracts, 64 temporary suspensions of players and 2 expulsions—those of Manager Charles Frank, of Memphis, and President Thomas J. Hickey, of the American Association. Seventy-one players were declared ineligible for jumping contracts or reservation—an average of less than one player per club. Twenty-two official bulletins were issued and 227 player releases were promulgated. During the year the National Board decided 74 disputes between leagues and clubs over players without a protest or howl from any quarter, all decisions being readily acquiesced in by clubs and managers in the interest of harmony—an unprecedented thing in the history of base ball jurisprudence.

THE NATIONAL BOARD,

A SERIOUS ROW.

Outside of the war between the Western League and the American Association, there was no unpleasant incident until toward the middle of the summer, when Manager Charles Frank, of the Memphis Club, persisted in playing an eligible player—Pitcher St. Vrain—who belonged to Tacoma and was awarded to that club by the National Board. Mr. Frank defied the authority of his own League chief, President Nicklin, and the mandate of the National Board, and was backed up in his contumacious attitude by his club officers, who resolved to fight and by a number of injunction and damage suits which enabled Memphis to maintain its defiant attitude for the entire season. While the row was in progress, President Nicklin, of the Southern League, resigned and Judge W. M. Kavanaugh, of Little Rock, was elected to the position. Meantime, also, the Memphis Club owners made secret efforts to form an alliance with the outlaw American Association and to organize a new league paralleling the Southern League circuit. They even went so far as to rent several ball parks and sign a number of the best Southern League players.

TIED THE SOUTHERN LEAGUE UP

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the National Association was held in New York, October 23d, 24th and 25th, 1902, every league member of the Association being represented in person. Secretary Farrell's report embodied the facts set forth at the opening of this article. He also recommended a number of amendments to the National Agreement. Mr. P. T. Powers was reelected as president, and Mr. J. H. Farrell as secretary-treasurer. The National Board of Arbitration was chosen to consist of M. H. Sexton, Rock Island, Ill.; T. H. Murnane, Boston, Mass.; J. H. O'Rourke, Bridgeport, Conn.; W. H. Lucas, Spokane, Wash.; W. M. Kavanaugh, Little Rock, Ark., and J. H. Farrell, Auburn, N. Y., secretary. The report of President Powers was the most favorable ever made to a minor league organization. It showed conclusively that the season of 1902 had been one of unprecedented successes.

IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

The National Agreement was amended to prevent umpires dealing in the sales of players, to limit salaries and to prevent "farming." A resolution was unanimously passed instructing the National Board, in the event of major league overtures for a new National Agreement, to subscribe to no alliance which did not give the National Association equal rights and representation, or which tended to destroy the independence of the organization. The Memphis Club, of the Southern League, and its manager, Charles Frank, were expelled from the Association. A committee was appointed to formulate a uniform code of playing rules, and the National Board was authorized to settle the war between the Western League and American Association upon the best possible terms. After fixing the next meeting place for St. Louis in October, 1903, the Association adjourned. On the first day of the meet the delegates and scribes were tendered a banquet by President Powers, during which Mr. Powers was presented with a silver loving cup. Before adjournment the National Board held several sessions and disposed of a number of cases.

A WAR SETTLED.

While the Association meeting was in progress, Messrs. Watkins and Bryce, of the American Association had come to New York at the solicitation of Editor Richter, of Sporting Life, and Manager Barrow, of Toronto, and were placed in touch with the National Board with a view to compromising the questions at issue between the American Association and Western League. After adjournment three days were consumed in fruitless negotiations over the evacuation by either league of the disputed Kansas City and Milwaukee territory. Neither side would give up any territory nor accept money therefor. President Powers, as a last resort, offered as a compromise that in the interest of the National Association the war be confined to the two cities in dispute, under non-conflicting schedule, the American Association to enter the National Association. This was acceptable to the Association, but the Western League men requested a delay in order to consult with their people. A truce was then declared, dating from October 29th to which took place at Chicago, November 16th, and lasted four days, both leagues being present in force to fight it out with the National Board. After four days of contention before the National Board, during which neither side advanced any acceptable proposition, the Western League yielded to the tremendous pressure for peace at any price, and accepted the Powers Compromise. The American Association was thereupon admitted to membership in the National Association, after rules binding the rival clubs in Kansas City and Milwaukee to certain lines had been made and the two leagues bonded for fulfillment of all obligations. Soon after President Hickey, of the American Association, went South to use his personal influence to compose the factional war there. In this he succeeded so well that the two factions became united and the threatened rival league was shut off, leaving the reunited and strengthened Southern League in sole possession of the field, after the National Board had reinstated the Memphis Club and Manager Frank to full membership in the Association.

THE NEXT MEETING,

TO PLACATE THE PACIFIC COAST.

With all internal troubles healed, the National Association was now sole master of the entire minor league field except in California, where the outlaw State League had expanded by invading the Pacific Northwest League's territory and entering Seattle and Portland. At a special meeting of the National Board held in New York February 18th and 19th, to consider the terms of a proposed new tripartite agreement with the American League and National League, the board carefully considered the Pacific situation, devised a practical plan of settlement of the war and appointed President Hickey, of the American Association, and President Sexton, of the Western League, a committee to visit the Pacific coast to compose the quarrel and bring the outlaw Pacific Coast League within the fold.

TERMS OF NEW AGREEMENT.

At this meeting the National Board also settled the terms upon which President Powers should negotiate the new tripartite National Agreement with Presidents Johnson and Pulliam. It was decided that the basis of negotiations should be as follows:

1. There must be mutual respect for contractual and reservation rights, the minor leagues to be on the same terms as the major leagues.
2. The playing rules must be uniform.
3. A board of arbitration shall be appointed, consisting of equal representation as between the National Association on one side and the two major leagues, taken as one, on the other. The said Board to have jurisdiction only in disputes arising between National Association clubs and major league clubs.

Special instructions were also given President Powers regarding the draft system which it was sought by the major leagues to incorporate in the new agreement, Mr. Powers being provided with a modified system designed to strip the draft of most of the effects harmful to the interests of the minor leagues.

THE EASTERN LEAGUE.

THE Eastern League finished its eleventh consecutive campaign in grand shape. The race, which began May 1st, ended September 21st, 1902, with Toronto as the champion team, after a wonderfully exciting six weeks' neck-and-neck race clear to the wire with Buffalo. The 1901 champion Rochesters finished a poor seventh. Worcester and Providence also proved disappointments in a playing sense, and finished fourth and fifth respectively. Montreal, also, did not come up to expectation with a sixth-place finish, after trailing all season. Of the two new members, Jersey City made a splendid showing, artistically and financially, and achieved third place. Newark made money, but was hopelessly weak from the start, and finished a poor last, after trailing steadily along the rear after the second month of the campaign. Following is the complete season's record:

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

THE first championship season of the American Association began on April 23d and ended September 22d, 1902, with Indianapolis as the champion team, after a long, close and exciting race with Louisville. So close, indeed, was the race that both teams found it necessary to play out the full schedule with three games each on the closing day. These two teams were the only ones ever really in the race, not any of the other teams being their equal in strength—a fact not to be wondered at, considering that in a first season well-balanced teams all round were not to be expected. The remaining teams finished in the following order: St. Paul, Kansas City, Columbus, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Toledo. Far from proving a "Fourth of July League," as had been predicted, the new American Association enjoyed a very successful season. Following is the full season record:

THE WESTERN LEAGUE.

THE third championship campaign of the Western League began April 23d and came to an end September 22d, 1902, with Kansas City winner of the pennant by a splendid eleventh-hour spurt. This was another of the many close races the season of 1902 was prolific of. At one time Omaha seemed to have an insurmountable lead. But when the season was two-thirds over Milwaukee came up clear from the bottom and by a magnificent spurt got to the top. Then Denver headed both Omaha and Milwaukee. Finally, within the last two weeks of the season, Kansas City got into the running and won out on the very last day by an eyelash with Omaha second, Milwaukee third and Denver fourth—15 points covering the group. These four teams had the fight to themselves all season, as the remaining four teams were outclassed from start to finish. The season's record:

SHORTEST TIME IN 1902.

THE fastest game during the season of 1902 was made in an exhibition game at Knoxville, Tenn., between the independent Knoxville team and the Atlanta team of the Southern League—the nine-inning contest being finished in 49 minutes. This was hailed as a record-breaking feat, but the claim was unfounded, as two games have been completed in 47 minutes—Dayton vs. Ironton, at Dayton, Ohio, on September 19th, 1889, and Oakland vs. San Francisco, at San Francisco, November 9th, 1895.

UNASSISTED TRIPLE PLAYS.

THE season of 1902 was remarkable from the fact that a record which had stood unique for twenty-five years was broken, not once but thrice. Up to last year no player had ever made a triple play unassisted except Paul Hines, of the Providence team, who performed the feat against Boston on May 8th, 1878. On August 18th, in a game between the Rochester and Jersey City teams, at Jersey City, first baseman Harry O'Hagen performed the feat. In the fourth inning, with a man on first and second bases, Butler, of Jersey City, bunted the first ball pitched in order to advance the runners. O'Hagen, as quick as lightning, caught the ball, which was a low, swift liner. To the men on first and second it looked as if O'Hagen had failed and they left their bases. O'Hagen lost no time getting over to first and made a double play. He then prepared to throw the ball to second, but that base being uncovered at the moment he instantly changed his plans, and, making a quick dash, reached second in time to complete the very remarkable triple play. At Pottsville, Pa., on September 6th, Frank Eustace, third baseman of the Pottsville team, also accomplished the feat in a game with the Lebanon All-Collegiate team. At Hoquiam, Washington, on September 6th, Shortstop William McGuire, of the Hoquiam team, made an unassisted triple play against the Tacoma Druggists, a visiting team.

THE SOUTHERN LEAGUE.

THE second annual championship campaign of the Southern League began April 26th and ended September 21st, 1902, with Nashville again the pennant winner. The race was between Nashville, New Orleans and Little Rock from start to finish, and for the last two months of the season Nashville maintained so great a lead as to leave no doubt of the final result. Following is the complete record of the season without regard to the complications caused by the many forfeitures entailed by the Memphis rows:

Club.	Atlanta.	Birmingham.	Chattanooga.	Little Rock.	Memphis.	Nashville.	New Orleans.	Shreveport.	Won.	Percentage.
Atlanta	11	11	7	4	5	7	9	54	.450

Little Rock	74	48	.607	Chattanooga	45	73	.381
Memphis	65	56	.537	Birmingham	39	79	.331

THE OFFICIAL AVERAGES.

Following are the official batting and fielding averages of the Southern League players for 1902, as compiled by President J. B. Nicklin. Only players who played in five or more games are included:

A NEW PITCHING RECORD.

AT Helena, Mont., on July 20th, Pitcher James H. Wiggs, of the Helena team of the Pacific Northwest League, by shutting out Seattle for the first five innings, broke the world's record for consecutive shut-outs. Wiggs' record is forty-four innings without a run, exceeding that held by Chesbro, of the Pittsburgs by three innings. On July 4th Wiggs shut out Tacoma in the last three innings, after which he pitched four straight nine-inning shut-out games, followed by the first five innings of the Seattle game included above—a total of 44 innings without a run.

A UNIQUE PLAY.

During the Athletic-Detroit game at Philadelphia, July 13th, 1902, First Baseman Harry Davis, of the Athletics, made a unique play. It is customary to steal second and third, and even home sometimes, but here was a case where a player stole first. With two out and Fultz on third, Davis, who was on first, started for second for the purpose of drawing a throw. He stopped short and Fultz made a bluff to go home. The ball was thrown to third, but Fultz slid in safely. During a powwow between the Detroit fielders Davis started back to first and gained it. Then, after the pitcher got in position, Davis started for second, and was two-thirds of the way down, when Mulin turned around and threw to Elberfeld. Elberfeld threw up to Lepine, who was visibly rattled. Finally Fultz, who had been edging toward home, made a dash for the plate and gained it, Lepine throwing wide to Buelow. The audacity of Davis' play set the crowd wild.

THE NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE.

THE 1902 championship campaign of this League, which commenced May 1st, ended September 6th, with Manchester an easy pennant winner. The team secured the lead in June and never thereafter lost it. The lead soon became so great that the only interest in the race was as to the place. Nevertheless the games were well patronized all season, and the League finished the season with the same membership as it started with. Following is the complete 1902 championship record:

THE NEW YORK LEAGUE.

THE 1902 pennant race of the New York League, which began May 9th, came to a close September 7th, with a sensational finish, the pennant question not being decided until the last day. Albany then finding it necessary to play off a postponed game to win out. It was a grand triumph for Albany, after a long and hard struggle, and a heart-breaking close for Binghamton, which up to the last day seemed to have the pennant won. Ilion finished in a desirable position, while Syracuse and Schenectady kept above the .500 mark. Utica, Troy and Johnstown also ran. Following is the complete season record:

Club.	Albany.	Binghamton.	Ilion.	Johnstown.	Schenectady.	Syracuse.	Troy.	Utica.	Won.	Percentage.

THE CONNECTICUT LEAGUE.

THE Connecticut League campaign began May 3d and ended September 13th, 1902, with New Haven as the champion team and Springfield a good second.

While the race was always close and interesting, the struggle for the last half of the season was practically confined to New Haven and Springfield. The other teams finished in this order: New London, Hartford, Bridgeport, Norwich, Meriden and Waterbury. As usual, the affairs of the League were well managed, and the season was a financial success. Springfield and Hartford did not find this League a bit too slow for them. The full season record follows:

Clubs.	Bridgeport.	Hartford.	Meriden.	New Haven.	New London.	Norwich.	Springfield.	Waterbury.	Won.	Percentage.

N. E. YOUNG'S RETIREMENT.

The close of the 1902 campaign witnessed the complete retirement from base ball politics and office of Mr. N. E. Young, after thirty-six years of active connection with the National Game. In the late sixties Mr. Young was an amateur of note and a member of the famous Olympics of Washington, D. C. In 1871 Mr. Young was one of the organizers of the first professional organization, the National League of Base Ball Players, of which he was made secretary. When the present National League of Base Ball Clubs was organized, Mr. Young became its secretary, in which he continued until 1885, when he became president-secretary-treasurer, which triple office he held until 1901, when the presidency was held in abeyance for a season, its power being delegated to an Executive Committee. Mr. Young, however, retained the secretaryship until last fall, when he resigned that position also, and retired with a competence from the game he had served so well and long.

STICK TO OLD GLOVES.

Professional base ball players are as erratic about the kind of gloves or mitts they use as they usually are in the kind of game they play. Infielders want catchers' mitts, first basemen wear a second baseman's gloves, outfielders wear a first baseman's mitt, and so on. Moreover, they are as hard to please as a summer girl, and when once they get a glove or mitt that suits them, with a hole in the center big enough to hold the ball, even if they don't get the sphere fairly in their hands, nothing can induce them to use another or get a new one.

PITCHERS' RECORDS.

There were 63 shut-outs during the season, Long, of New London, taking the first prize with seven. Reisling is second with five. Following is the record of remarkable pitching feats:

PACIFIC NORTHWEST LEAGUE.

THE second championship campaign of the Pacific Northwest League began April 29th, and ended October 12th, with one of the new clubs, Butte, as the pennant winner, after a season-long struggle and close finish with Seattle. The other newcomer, Helena, finished third, despite a spoor start, which for a long time kept the team at the bottom. The champion Portland team finished a poor fourth, with Tacoma and Spokane bringing up the rear. The season was an artistic and financial success. Following is the complete season record:

Clubs.	Butte	Helena.	Portland.	Spokane.	Seattle.	Tacoma.	Won.	Percentage.
Butte.....	..	10	18	19	11	15	73	.608

A NOTABLE CLUB TRANSFER.

A notable sequence to the disastrous 1902 season of the Philadelphia National League Club was the sale of that club by the stockholders, Messrs. Reach, Rogers and Grafly, to a syndicate of about twenty-three gentlemen of wealth and social standing, headed by Mr. James Potter, who has been elected president of the club. The sale included all the fixtures of the Philadelphia Ball Park. This resort of world-wide fame was opened to the public April 30th, 1887; totally destroyed by fire August 6th, 1894; temporarily rebuilt in twelve days, and reopened August 18th, 1894; new cantilever steel pavilion dedicated May 2d, 1895; new left field stand and club house on April 16th, 1896; new right field stand and promenade galleries, annex and field entrances April 22d, 1897. The playing field is the largest in America, and the permanent fixtures the most elaborate and expensive in the world of sport. Seating facilities 21,008, including 2,500 seats under field stands.

THE INDIANA-ILLINOIS-IOWA LEAGUE.

THE championship campaign of the Indiana-Illinois-Iowa League, which began April 30th, ended September 10th, 1902, with Rockford as the champion team by a very narrow margin over Terre Haute. Rockford led nearly all the way, and it was only in the last month of the season that Terre Haute made matters interesting for the leader. At one time Cedar Rapids also had a look-in for the pennant. The remaining teams were never really in the hunt. The complete record of the 1902 campaign follows:

Clubs	Bloomington.	Cedar Rapids.	Davenport.	Decatur.	Evansville.	Rock Island.	Rockford.	Terre Haute.	Games Won.	Percentage.

THE CALIFORNIA LEAGUE.

THE championship campaign of the California League, which began in March, 1902, ended December 7th, with Oakland as the pennant winner. Oakland beat both San Francisco and Sacramento a majority of the games, but lost the series to Los Angeles, 28 to 29. The apparent discrepancy in the number of games played between certain of the teams and certain others was due to ties and contests called off on account of wet grounds and rain. Had there been a close race for the flag, these games would have been played off on open dates, but the wide margin separating the teams made such a move unnecessary. Following is the official standing:

Clubs.	Oakland.	Los Angeles.	San Francisco.	Sacramento.	Games Won.	Percentage.
Oakland	28	40	40	108	.594
Los Angeles	29	..	34	28	91	.523
San Francisco	23	33	..	32	88	.472
Sacramento	22	22	24	..	68	.405
Games lost	74	83	98	100

	Won.	Lost.	Perct.		Won.	Lost.	Perct.
Oakland	108	74	.594	San Francisco ..	88	98	.472
Los Angeles	91	83	.523	Sacramento	68	100	.405

The champion Oakland Club was made up as follows: Manager, Peter Lohman. Pitchers—Schmidt, Cooper, Cristall, Hodson. Catchers—Gorton and Dunleavy. Infield—Streib, first base; Mohler, second base; Devereaux, third base; Francks, short stop. Outfield—Hurlburt, left field; Walters, center field; McCreedle, right field.

THE OFFICIAL AVERAGES.

THE TEXAS LEAGUE.

THE Texas League's 1902 championship season was a double one, the first season ending June 6th, with Corsicana first and Dallas second. The second season ended with the same two clubs in the same order. This gave Corsicana the season's championship pennant and Dallas second place. The first series had six clubs, and at its end the two last cities—Waco and Texarkana—were dropped from the circuit. The second series had four cities in the circuit. Next season's circuit will have eight. The second season finish is as follows:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Corsicana.....	44	30	14	.682
Dallas	46	24	22	.522
Paris	45	18	27	.400
Fort Worth	43	17	26	.395

THE MICHIGAN LEAGUE.

THE 1902 campaign of the Michigan League came to a premature end on August 20th, owing to the withdrawal of the Flint and Jackson Clubs, both of which came to the conclusion to finish the season on a less expensive independent basis. Bad weather and the jumping out of Grand Rapids, leaving but five teams and open dates, were the principal reason for Flint and Jackson quitting the League. Following is the complete record for the season:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.		Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Battle Creek.....	53	31	.631	Muskegon	39	47	.453
Jackson.....	50	39	.562	Lansing	26	63	.292
Flint	47	41	.534

COTTON STATES LEAGUE.

THE Cotton States League played its first championship season in 1902 and scored a success. The clubs all made some money, although they employed a high grade of players. The teams also played surprisingly good ball, in many instances playing the Southern League teams to a standstill in exhibition games. The race was a particularly close and exciting one, as may be guessed from the fact that Natchez won the flag with a percentage of .519, while all three of the remaining clubs—Baton Rouge, Vicksburg and Greenville—were tied with .495. Following is the season's record:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Natchez	106	55	51	.519
Baton Rouge.....	107	53	54	.495
Vicksburg	105	52	53	.495
Greenville.....	109	54	55	.495

MISSOURI VALLEY LEAGUE.

THE Missouri Valley League made quite a success in 1902—its initial season. It played a schedule of 126 games and ran through its first season with but one change in the circuit. The pennant race never lacked excitement. Although the Nevada pennant winners were in the lead almost all season, Springfield and Fort Scott gave the ultimate champions a run for the honors. The last two or three weeks of the race developed the prettiest kind of a fight, the battle being between Nevada and Springfield, and the winners were hard pressed several times. Following is the completed record:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.		Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Nevada.....	87	37	.702	Poplin.....	57	66	.463
Springfield.....	82	40	.672	Jeff. City.....	40	84	.323
Fort Scott	80	44	.645	Chanute	40	91	.305
Sedalia	72	47	.605	Iola	34	91	.272

JAMES A. HART,
Chairman Joint Rules Convention.

NORTHERN NEW YORK LEAGUE.

THIS little League enjoyed a short season in 1902, beginning in June and ending September 2d. There was a squabble over the pennant, but at a meeting of the League Directors at St. Albans, Vt., on September 4th, the following was declared to be the official record of the race:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Malone	34	21	13	.618

PLAYING RULES CONVENTION.

PURSUANT to the terms of the Cincinnati Peace Treaty, a joint meeting of the Playing Rules Committees of the American League, National League and National Association was held at the Auditorium, Chicago, February 23d, to revise the Code of Rules. The delegates were: American League—Thomas J. Loftus, Benjamin F. Shibe and R. S. Bruce. National League—James A. Hart, Edward Hanlon and Max Fleishman. National Association—P. T. Powers, J. H. Farrell and M. H. Sexton. The delegates sat as a Committee of the Whole, Mr. Hart acting as chairman and Mr. Farrell as secretary. Immediately the question of rules was taken up and an attempt made to arrange a uniform system by starting from the first and changing those that differed.

SOME MINOR CHANGES.

The first rule taken up was the one relative to the catching lines. They adopted it as it stood in the National League GUIDE. This rule limits the catcher to a distance of ten feet from the home plate. Rule 9 was next found to conflict in regard to the position of bases, but was of very little importance. It was adopted as it stood in the American League GUIDE. Rules 17, 30 and 31 were somewhat different, but of minor importance, and were fixed up alike. Rule 32, in regard to delaying the game, was not in the American GUIDE, so was inserted. In like manner Rule 33, of Section IV, in regard to balking, was not in the National GUIDE, so was inserted.

THE FOUL-STRIKE RULE RETAINED.

Then came the noted foul-strike rule, which the Nationals had used for the previous two years and which the Americans never took up. The conflict was found in Section III of Rule 44. This section reads as follows:

A strike is a foul-hit ball not caught on the fly, unless two strikes have already been called.

Some discussion followed, and when the vote was taken it stood 6 in favor and 3 against, the six representing the votes of the National League and National Association men. After some consideration the vote was made unanimous.

A NEW RULE.

After the foul strike had been settled, Tom Loftus, the chairman of the American League Committee, came forward with a proposition which was framed into a rule and adopted. This was inserted as Section II of Rule 1:

The pitcher's box must not be more than fifteen inches higher than the base lines and home plate. The base lines at the home plate shall be a perfect level and the slope from the pitcher's box toward the base lines and home plate shall be gradual.

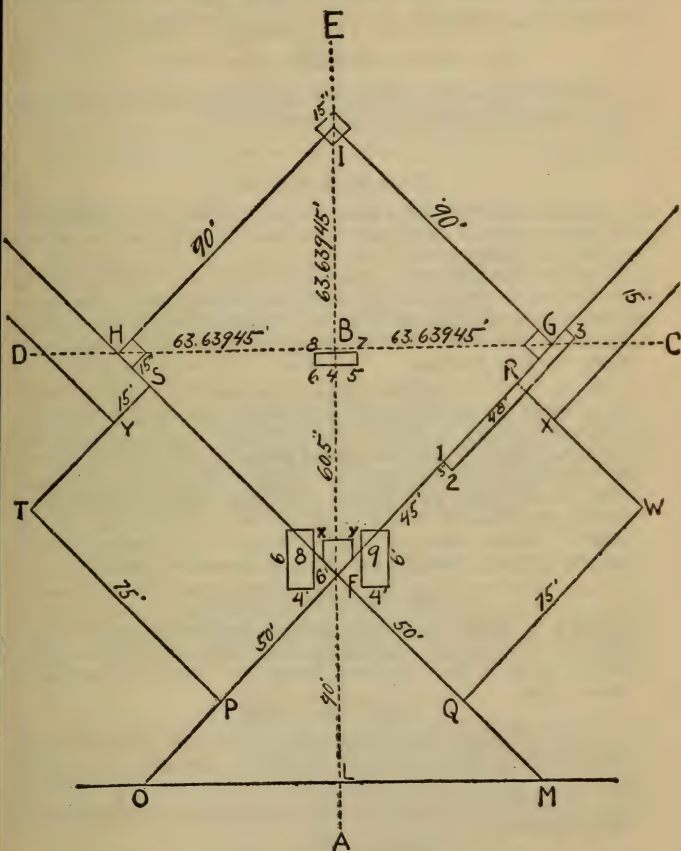

THE BALK RULE.

On motion of Mr. Hanlon, of the National League Committee, Rule 33, Section III, was amended to read as follows:

A balk shall constitute any delivery of the ball to the batsman by the pitcher while either foot of the pitcher is back of the plate.

No other changes of importance were made, and the convention adjourned sine die. The revised Code is given complete in the Reach American League 1903 GUIDE.

PLAYING RULES OF PROFESSIONAL BASE BALL CLUBS.

AS ADOPTED BY THE AMERICAN LEAGUE.

1903.

THE BALL GROUND.

RULE 1. The Ground must be an inclosed field, sufficient in size to enable each player to play in his position as required by these rules.

Sec. 2. The Pitcher's box shall be no more than fifteen inches higher than the base lines and home plate. The base lines and home plate shall be on a perfect level, and the slope from the Pitcher's box toward the base lines and home plate shall be gradual.

RULE 2. To lay off the lines governing the positions and the play of the game known as Base Ball, proceed as follows:

From a point A, within the grounds project a right line out into the field, and at a point B 154 feet from point A lay off lines B C and B D at right angles to the line A B; then with B as center and 63.63945 feet as radius describe arcs cutting the lines B A at F, and B C at G; B D at H, and B E at I. Draw lines F G, G E, E H and H F, and said lines will be the containing lines of the Diamond or Infield.

THE CATCHER'S LINES.

RULE 3. With F as center, and 10 feet radius, an arc cutting line F A and L, and draw lines L M and L O at right angles to F A, and continue same out from F A not less than 10 feet.

THE FOUL LINES.

RULE 4. From the intersection point F continue the straight lines F G and F H until they intersect with the lines L M and L O, and then from the points G and H in the opposite direction until they reach the boundary lines of the grounds.

THE PLAYERS' LINES.

RULE 5. With F as center, and 50 feet radius, describe arcs cutting lines F O and F M at P and Q; then with F as center again, and 75 feet radius, describe arcs cutting F G and F H at R and S; then from the points P Q R and S draw lines at right angles to the lines F O, F M, F G and F H, and continue same until they intersect at the points T and W.

THE CAPTAIN AND COACHER'S LINE.

RULE 6. With R and S as centers, and 15 feet radius, describe arcs cutting lines R W and S T at X and Y, and from the points X and Y draw lines parallel with lines F H and F G, and continue same out to the boundary lines of the ground.

THE THREE-FOOT LINE.

RULE 7. With F as center, and 45 feet radius, describe an arc cutting line F G at 1, and from 1, out to the distance of 3 feet, draw a line at right angles to F G and marked point 2; then from point 2, draw a line parallel with line F G to a point 3 feet beyond the point G and marked 3; then from the point 3 draw a line at right angle to line 2, 3, back to and intersecting with line F G, and from thence back along line G F to point 1.

THE PITCHER'S PLATE.

RULE 8. With point F as center, and 60.5 feet as radius, describe an arc cutting the line F B at point 4, and draw a line 5, 6, passing through point 4 and extending 12 inches on either side of line F B; then with line 5, 6, as a side describe a parallelogram 24 inches by 6 inches.

THE BASES.

RULE 9. Within the angle F describe a five-sided figure, two of the sides of which shall coincide with the lines F G and F H to the extent of 12 inches each, thence parallel with the line F B $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches to the points X and Y, a straight line between which 17 inches will form the front of the plate.

THE BATSMAN'S LINE.

RULE 10. On either side of the line A F B describe two parallelograms six feet long and four feet wide (marked 8 and 9), their length being parallel with the line A F B, their distance apart being six inches added to each end of the length of the diagonal of the square within the angle F, and the center of their length being upon said diagonal.

RULE 11. The Home Base at F and the Pitcher's Plate at 4 must be of whitened rubber, and so fixed in the ground as to be even with the surface.

RULE 12. The First Base at G, the Second Base at E, and the Third Base at H must be of white canvas bags filled with soft material and securely fastened in their positions described in Rule 9.

RULE 13. The lines described in Rules 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 10 must be marked with lime, chalk or other suitable material, so as to be distinctly seen by the Umpire.

THE BALL.

RULE 14. The Ball.

Sec. 1. Must not weigh less than five nor more than five and one-quarter ounces avoirdupois, and it must measure not less than nine nor more than nine and one-quarter inches in circumference. The Spalding National League Ball or the Reach American League Ball must be used in all games played under these rules.

Sec. 2. For each championship game two NEW regulation balls shall be furnished by the Home Club to the Umpire for use. When the ball in play is batted to foul ground and out of sight of the Umpire, the other ball shall be immediately brought into play. As often as one of the two in use shall be lost, a new one must be substituted, so that the Umpire shall at all times, after the game begins, have two balls in his possession and ready for use. The moment the Umpire delivers an alternate ball to the Pitcher it comes into play, and shall not be exchanged until it, in turn, passes out of sight to Foul Ground. At no time shall the ball be intentionally discolored by rubbing it with the soil or otherwise. In the event of a new ball being intentionally discolored or otherwise injured by a player, the Umpire shall, upon appeal from the Captain of the opposite side, forthwith demand the return of that ball and shall substitute another new ball and impose a fine of $5 upon the offending player.

Sec. 3. In all games the balls played with shall be furnished by the Home Club, and the last ball in play shall become the property of the winning club. Each ball to be used in championship games shall be examined, measured and weighed by the Secretary of the League, inclosed in a paper box and sealed with the seal of the Secretary, which seal shall not be broken except by the Umpire, in the presence of the Captains of the two contesting nines after play has been called. The Home Club shall have at least a dozen regulation balls on the field ready for use on the call of the Umpire during each championship game.

Sec. 4. Should the ball become cut or ripped so as to expose the interior, or in any way so injured as to be—in the opinion of the Umpire—unfit for fair use, he shall, upon appeal by either Captain, at once put the alternate ball into play and call for a new ball.

THE BAT.

RULE 15. The Bat must be made entirely of hard wood, except that the handle may be wound with twine or a granulated substance applied, not to exceed eighteen inches from the end. It must be round, and it must not exceed two and three-fourths inches in diameter in the thickest part nor exceed forty-two inches in length.

THE PLAYERS AND THEIR POSITIONS.

RULE 16. The players of each club in a game shall be nine in number, one of whom shall act as Captain, and in no case shall less than nine men be allowed to play on each side.

RULE 17. The Players' positions shall be such as may be assigned them by their Captain, except that the Pitcher, while in the act of delivering the ball to the bat, must take his position as defined in Rules 8 and 29; and the catcher must stand within the lines of his position as defined in Rule 3, whenever the pitcher delivers the ball to the bat, and within ten feet of the home plate.

RULE 18. Players in uniform shall not be permitted to occupy seats on the stands, or to stand among the spectators.

RULE 19. Sec. 1. Every club shall adopt uniforms for its Players, and the suits of each team shall conform in color and style. No Player who shall attach anything to the sole or heel of his shoes, other than the ordinary base ball shoe plate, or who shall appear in a uniform not conforming to the suits of the other members of his team, shall be permitted to take part in the game.

Sec. 2. The Catcher and First Baseman are permitted to wear a glove or mitt of any size, shape or weight. All other Players are restricted to the use of a glove or mitt weighing not over ten ounces, and measuring in circumference around the palm of the hand not over fourteen inches.

PLAYERS' BENCHES.

RULE 20. Sec. 1. The Players' Benches must be furnished by the Home Club, and placed upon a portion of the ground not less than twenty-five (25) feet outside of the Players' Lines; one such bench shall be for the exclusive use of the Visiting Club, and one for the exclusive use of the Home Club. The benches must be covered by a roof and closed at the back and each end; a space, however, not more than six (6) inches wide may be left just under the roof for ventilation. All Players of the side at bat must be seated on their bench, except such as are legally assigned to coach base runners, and also the Batsman, except when called to the bat by the Umpire; and under no circumstances shall the Umpire permit any person, except Managers and Players in uniform, to occupy seats on the benches.

Sec. 2. To enforce this rule the Captain of the other side may call the attention of the Umpire to a violation, whereupon the Umpire shall immediately order such player or players to be seated; if the order is not obeyed within one minute, the offending player or players shall be fined $5 each by the Umpire. If the order is not then obeyed within one minute, the offending player or players shall be debarred from further participation in the game and shall be obliged to leave the playing field forthwith.

THE GAME.

RULE 21. Sec. 1. Every championship game must be commenced not later than two hours before sunset.

Sec. 2. A game shall consist of nine innings to each contesting nine, except that,

(a) If the side first at bat scores less runs in nine innings than the other side has scored in eight innings, the game shall then terminate.

(b) If the side last at the bat in the ninth inning scores the winning run before the third man is out, the game shall terminate.

A TIE GAME.

RULE 22. If the score be a tie at the end of nine innings, play shall be continued until one side has scored more runs than the other in an equal number of innings, provided that if the side last at bat scores the winning run before the third man is out the game shall terminate.

A DRAWN GAME.

RULE 23. A Drawn Game shall be declared by the Umpire when he terminates a game on account of darkness or rain, after five equal innings have been played, if the score at the time is equal on the last even innings played; except when the side that went second to bat is then at the bat, and has scored the same number of runs as the other side, in which case the Umpire shall declare the game drawn without regard to the score of the last equal innings.

A CALLED GAME.

RULE 24. If the Umpire calls "Game" on account of darkness or rain at any time after five innings have been completed, the score shall be that of the last equal innings played; but if the side second at bat shall have scored in an unequal number of innings, or before the completion of its unfinished inning, one or more runs than the side first at bat, the score of the game shall be the total number of runs made.

A FORFEITED GAME.

RULE 25. A Forfeited Game shall be declared by the Umpire in favor of the club not in fault, at the request of such club, in the following cases:

Sec. 1. If the nine of a club fail to appear upon the field, or being upon the field, fail to begin the game within five minutes after the Umpire has called "Play," at the hour appointed for the beginning of the game, unless such delay in appearing or in commencing the game be unavoidable.

Sec. 2. If, after the game has begun, one side refuses or fails to continue playing, unless such game has been suspended or terminated by the Umpire.

Sec. 3. If, after play has been suspended by the Umpire, one side fails to resume playing within one minute after the Umpire has called "Play."

Sec. 4. If a team resort to dilatory movements to delay the game.

Sec. 5. If, in the opinion of the Umpire, any one of the rules of the game is wilfully violated.

Sec. 6. If, after ordering the removal of a Player, as authorized by Rules 20, 53 and 59, said order is not obeyed within one minute.

Sec. 7. If, because of removal of players from the game by the Umpire, there be less than nine players in either team.

Sec. 8. If, when two games are scheduled to be played on the same afternoon, the second game is not commenced within ten minutes of the time of completion of the first game. The Umpire of the first game shall be the time-keeper.

Sec. 9. In case the Umpire declares a game forfeited he shall transmit a written notice thereof to the President of the League within twenty-four hours thereafter. However a failure on the part of the Umpire to so notify the President shall not affect his decision declaring the game forfeited.

NO GAME.

RULE 26. "No Game" shall be declared by the Umpire if he shall terminate play on account of rain or darkness, before five innings on each side are completed, except in a case when the game is called, and the club second at bat shall have more runs at the end of its fourth inning than the club first at bat has made in its five completed innings, in such case the Umpire shall award the game to the club having made the greatest number of runs, and it shall be a legal game and be so counted in the championship record.

SUBSTITUTES.

RULE 27. Sec. 1. In any championship game each side shall be required to have present on the field, in uniform conforming to the suits worn by their team mates, a sufficient number of substitute players to carry out the provision which requires that not less than nine players shall occupy the field in any innings of a game.

Sec. 2. Any such Player may be substituted at any time by either club, but a Player thereby retired shall not thereafter participate in the game.

Sec. 3. The Base Runner shall not have a substitute run for him, except by the consent of the Captains of the contesting teams.

CHOICE OF INNINGS—CONDITION OF GROUND.

RULE 28. The choice of innings shall be given to the Captain of the Home Club, who shall also be the sole judge of the fitness of the ground for beginning a game after rain, but after play has been called by the Umpire, he alone shall be the judge as to the fitness of the ground for resuming play after the game has been suspended on account of rain.

THE PITCHER'S POSITION.

RULE 29. The Pitcher shall take his position facing the Batsman, with both feet square on the ground, and in front of the Pitcher's plate, but in the act of delivering the ball to the bat one foot must be in contact with the Pitcher's plate, defined in Rule 8. He shall not raise either foot, unless in the act of delivering the ball to the bat, nor make more than one step in such delivery.

A FAIRLY DELIVERED BALL.

RULE 30. A Fairly Delivered Ball to the bat is a ball pitched or thrown to the bat by the Pitcher while standing in his position and facing the Batsman ; the ball so delivered to pass over any portion of the Home Base, not lower than the Batsman's knee, nor higher than his shoulder, in which case the Umpire shall call one strike.

AN UNFAIRLY DELIVERED BALL.

RULE 31. An Unfairly Delivered Ball is a ball delivered by the Pitcher, as in Rule 30, except that the ball does not pass over any portion of the Home Base, or does pass over the Home Base above the Batsman's shoulder, or below the line of his knee, in which case the Umpire shall call one ball.

DELAYING THE GAME.

RULE 32. Sec. 1. If the ball is thrown by the Pitcher to any Player other than the Catcher (except to retire a Base Runner), after the Batsman is standing in his proper position ready to strike at a pitched ball, each ball so delivered shall be called a ball.

Sec. 2. The Umpire shall call a ball on the Pitcher each time he delays the game by failing to deliver the ball to the Batsman for a longer period than 20 seconds, excepting that in the case of the first Batsman in each inning, the Pitcher may not occupy more than one minute in delivering not to exceed five balls to the Batsman.

BALKING.

RULE 33. A Balk shall be :

Sec. 1. Any motion made by the Pitcher to deliver the ball to the bat or to First Base without delivering it.

Sec. 2. The throwing of a ball by the Pitcher to any base to catch the Base Runner without first stepping directly toward said base immediately before throwing the ball.

Sec. 3. Any delivery of the ball to the bat by the Pitcher while either foot is back of the Pitcher's plate, and he is not facing the batsman as defined in Rule 29.

Sec. 4. Any motion in delivering the ball to the bat by the Pitcher while not in the position defined in Rule 29.

Sec. 5. The holding of the ball by the Pitcher, so long as in the opinion of the Umpire, to delay the game unnecessarily.

Sec. 6. Standing in position and making any motion to pitch without having the ball in his possession.

Sec. 7. The making of any motion the Pitcher habitually makes in his method of delivery, without his immediately delivering the ball to the bat.

Sec. 8. If the Pitcher delivers the ball to the bat when the Catcher is standing outside the lines of the Catcher's position as defined in Rule 3.

If the pitcher fails to comply with the requirements of any Section of this Rule the umpire must call "A Balk."

DEAD BALLS.

RULE 34. A Dead Ball is a ball delivered to the bat by the Pitcher that touches any part of the Batsman's person or clothing while standing in his position without being struck at; or that touches any part of the Umpire's person or clothing while he is standing on Foul Ground, without first passing the Catcher.

RULE 35. In case of a Foul Strike, Foul Hit Ball not legally caught out, Dead Ball, or Base Runner put out for being struck by a Fair Hit Ball, the ball shall not be considered in play until it is held by the Pitcher standing in his position, and the Umpire shall have called play.

BLOCK BALLS.

RULE 36. Sec. 1. A Block is a batted or thrown ball that is touched, stopped or handled by any person not engaged in the game.

Sec. 2. Whenever a Block occurs the Umpire shall declare it, and the Base Runners may run the bases, without being put out, until the ball has been returned to and held by the Pitcher standing in his position.

Sec. 3. In the case of a Block, if the person not engaged in the game should retain possession of the ball, or throw or kick it beyond the reach of the Fielders, the Umpire should call "Time," and require each Base Runner to stop at the last base touched by him until the ball be returned to the Pitcher standing in his position, and the Umpire shall have called "Play."

THE BATSMEN'S POSITION—ORDER OF BATTING.

RULE 37. The Batsmen must take their positions within the Batsman's Lines, as defined in Rule 10, in the order in which they are named in the batting order, which batting order must be submitted by the Captains of the opposing teams to the Umpire before the game, and this batting order must be followed, except in the case of a Substitute Player, in which case the Substitute must take the place of the original player in the batting order. After the first inning the first striker in each inning shall be the Batsman whose name follows that of the last man who has completed his turn—time at bat—in the preceding inning.

RULE 38. Sec. 1. When their side goes to the bat the Players must immediately return to the Players' Bench, as defined in Rule 20, and remain there until the side is put out, except when called to the bat or they become Coaches or substitute Base Runners; provided that the Captain or one player only, except that if two or more Base Runners are occupying the bases, then the Captain and one player or two players may occupy the space between the Players' Lines and the Captain's Lines to coach Base Runners.

Sec. 2. No Player of the side "at bat," except when Batsman, shall occupy any portion of the space within the Catcher's Lines, as defined in Rule 3. The triangular space behind the Home Base is reserved for the exclusive use of the Umpire, Catcher, and Batsman, and the Umpire must prohibit any Player of the side "at bat" from crossing the same at any time while the ball is in the hands of, or passing between the Pitcher and Catcher while standing in their positions.

Sec. 3. The Players of the side "at bat" must occupy the portion of the field allotted them, but must speedily vacate any portion thereof that may be in the way of the ball or any Fielder attempting to catch or field it.

THE BATTING RULES.

RULE 39. Sec. 1. A Fair Hit is a ball batted by the batsman while he is standing within the lines of his position that first touches "fair" ground, or the person of a player, or the Umpire, while standing on fair ground, and then settles on fair ground before passing the line of First or Third Base.

Sec. 2. A Foul Hit is a similarly batted ball that first touches "foul" ground or the person of a player, or the Umpire while standing on "foul" ground.

Sec. 3. Should such "Fair Hit" ball bound or roll to foul ground before passing the line of First or Third Base, and settle on foul ground, it shall be declared by the Umpire a "Foul Ball."

Sec. 4. Should such "Foul Hit" ball bound or roll to fair ground and settle there before passing the line of First or Third Base, it shall be declared by the Umpire a "Fair Ball."

RULE 40. A Foul Tip is a ball batted by the Batsman while standing within the lines of his position that goes foul sharp from the bat to the Catcher's hands.

RULE 41. A Bunt Hit is a ball delivered by the Pitcher to the Batsman, who, while standing within the lines of his position, makes a deliberate attempt to hit the ball so slowly within the infield that it cannot be fielded in time to retire the Batsman. If such a "Bunt Hit" goes to foul ground a strike shall be called by the Umpire.

BALLS BATTED OUTSIDE THE GROUNDS.

RULE 42. When a batted ball passes outside the grounds the Umpire shall decide it Fair should it disappear within, or Foul should it disappear outside of the range of the Foul Lines, and Rule 38 is to be construed accordingly.

RULE 43. A Fair batted ball that goes over the fence shall entitle the Batsman to a home run, except that should it go over the fence at a less distance than 235 feet from the Home Base, when he shall be entitled to two bases only, and a distinctive line shall be marked on the fence at this point.

STRIKES.

RULE 44. A Strike is:

Sec. 1. A ball struck at by the Batsman without its touching his bat; or

Sec. 2. A Fair Ball legally delivered by the Pitcher, but not struck at by the Batsman.

Sec. 3. A foul hit ball not caught on the fly, unless two strikes have already been called.

Sec. 4. A bunt hit which sends the ball to foul ground, either directly or by bounding or rolling from fair ground to foul ground, and which settles on foul ground.

Sec. 5. A ball struck at, if the ball touches any part of the Batsman's person.

Sec. 6. A foul tip by the Batsman, caught by the Catcher while standing within the lines of his position.

THE BATSMAN IS OUT.

RULE 46. The Batsman is out :

Sec. 1. If he fails to take his position at the bat in his order of batting, unless the error be discovered and the proper Batsman takes his position before a time "at bat" is recorded; and in such case the balls and strikes called must be counted in the time "at bat" of the proper Batsman, and only the proper Batsman shall be declared out: and no runs shall be scored or bases run because of any cta of the improper Batsman; Provided, this rule shall not take effect unless the out is declared before the ball is delivered to the succeeding Batsman. Should Batsman be declared out by this rule be sufficient to retire the side, the proper Batsman the next inning is the player who would have come to bat had the players been out by ordinary play.

Sec. 2. If he fails to take his position within one minute after the Umpire has called for the Batsman.

Sec. 3. If he makes a Foul Hit, other than a Foul Tip as defined in Rule 40, and the ball be momentarily held by a Fielder before touching the ground; Provided, it be not caught in a Fielder's hat or cap, or touched by some object other than a Fielder before being caught.

Sec. 4. If he makes a Foul Strike.

Sec. 5. If he attempts to hinder the Catcher from fielding or throwing the ball, by stepping outside the lines of his position, or otherwise obstructing or interfering with the player.

Sec. 6. If, while the First Base be occupied by a Base Runner, three strikes be called on him by the Umpire, except when two men are already out.

Sec. 7. If, while attempting a Third Strike, the ball touches any part of the Batsman's person, in which case Base Runners occupying bases shall return, as prescribed in Rule 50, Section 5.

Sec. 8. If he hits a fly ball that can be handled by an Infielder while first and second bases are occupied, or first, second and third, unless two hands are out. In such case the Umpire shall, as soon as the ball is hit, declare infield or outfield hit.

Sec. 9. If the Third Strike is called in accordance with Section 5, Rule 44.

Sec. 10. The moment a Batsman is declared out by the Umpire he (the Umpire) shall call for the Batsman next in order to leave his seat on the bench and take his position at the bat, and such player of the batting side shall not leave his seat on the bench until so called to bat, except as provided by Rule 37, Section 1 and Rule 52.

BASE RUNNING RULES.

WHEN THE BATSMAN BECOMES A BASE RUNNER.

RULE 47. The Batsman becomes a Base Runner :

Sec. 1. Instantly after he makes a Fair Hit.

Sec. 2. Instantly after four balls have been called by the Umpire.

Sec. 3. Instantly after three strikes have been declared by the Umpire.

Sec. 4. If while he be a Batsman, without making any attempt to strike at the ball, his person or clothing be hit by a ball from the Pitcher, unless in the opinion of the Umpire he plainly avoids making any effort to get out of the way of the ball from the Pitcher and thereby permits himself to be so hit.

Sec. 5. If while he be a Batsman the Catcher interferes with him, preventing him from striking the ball.

BASES TO BE TOUCHED.

RULE 48. The Base Runner must touch each base in regular order, viz. : First, Second, Third and Home Bases ; and when obliged to return (except on a Foul Hit) must retouch the base or bases in reverse order. He shall only be considered as holding a base after touching it, and shall then be entitled to hold such base until he has legally touched the next base in order, or has been legally forced to vacate it for a succeeding Base Runner. However, no Base Runner shall score a run to count in the game until the Base Runner preceeding him in the batting list (provided there has been such a Base Runner who has not been put out in that inning) shall have first touched Home Base without being put out.

ENTITLED TO BASES.

RULE 49. The Base Runner shall be entitled, without being put out, to take the Base in the following cases :

Sec. 1. If while he was Batsman, the Umpire called four balls.

Sec. 2. If the Umpire awards a succeeding Batsman a base on four balls, and the Base Runner is thereby forced to vacate the base held by him.

Sec. 3. If the Umpire calls a "balk."

Sec. 4. If a ball delivered by the Pitcher pass the Catcher and touch the Umpire or any fence or building within ninety feet of the Home Base.

Sec. 5. If upon a fair hit the ball strikes the person or clothing of the Umpire on Fair Ground.

Sec. 6. If he be prevented from making a base by the obstruction of an adversary, unless the latter be a Fielder having the ball in his hand ready to meet the base runner.

Sec. 7. If the Fielder stops or catches a batted ball with his hat or any part of his uniform, except his gloved hand.

RETURNING TO BASES.

RULE 50. The Base Runner shall return to his base, and shall be entitled to so return without being put out :

Sec. 1. If the Umpire declares a Foul Tip (as defined in Rule 39) or any other Foul Hit not legally caught by a Fielder.

Sec. 2. If the Umpire declares a Foul Strike.

Sec. 3. If the Umpire declares a Dead Ball, unless it be also the fourth Unfair Ball, and he be thereby forced to take the next base, as provided in Rule 48, Sec. 2.

Sec. 4. If the person or clothing of the Umpire interferes with the Catcher, or he is struck by a ball thrown by the Catcher to intercept a Base Runner.

Sec. 5. The Base Runner shall return to his base if, while attempting a strike, the ball touches any part of the Batsman's person.

WHEN BASE RUNNERS ARE OUT.

RULE 51. The Base Runner is out :

Sec. 1. If, after Three Strikes have been declared against him while Batsman, and the Catcher fails to catch the third strike ball, he plainly attempts to hinder the Catcher from fielding the ball.

Sec. 2. If, having made a Fair Hit while Batsman, such fair-hit ball be momentarily held by a Fielder, before touching the ground or any object other than a Fielder ; Provided, it be not caught in a Fielder's hat or cap.

Sec. 3. If, when the Umpire has declared three strikes on him while Batsman, the third-strike ball be momentarily held by a Fielder before touching the ground; Provided, it be not caught in a Fielder's hat or cap, or touch some object other than a Fielder before being caught.

Sec. 4. If, after Three Strikes or a Fair Hit, he be touched with the ball in the hand of a Fielder before he shall have touched First Base.

Sec. 5. If, after Three Strikes or a Fair Hit, the ball be securely held by a Fielder while touching First Base, with any part of his person, before such Base Runner touches First Base.

Sec. 6. If, in running the last half of the distance from Home Base to First Base, while the ball is being fielded to First Base, he runs outside the Three-foot Lines, as defined in Rule 7, unless to avoid a Fielder attempting to field a batted ball.

Sec. 7. If, in running from First to Second Base, from Second to Third Base, or from Third to Home Base, he runs more than three feet from a direct line between such bases to avoid being touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder; but in case a Fielder be occupying the Base Runner's proper path, in attempting to field a batted ball, then the Base Runner shall run out of the path and behind said Fielder, and shall not be declared out for so doing.

Sec. 8. If he fails to avoid a Fielder attempting to field a batted ball, in the manner described in Sections 6 and 7 of this Rule; or if he, in any way, obstructs a Fielder, attempting to field a batted ball, or intentionally interferes with a thrown ball; Provided, that if two or more Fielders attempt to field a batted ball, and the Base Runner comes in contact with one or more of them, the Umpire shall determine which Fielder is entitled to the benefit of this Rule, and shall not decide the Base Runner out for coming in contact with any other Fielder.

Sec. 9. If, at any time while the ball is in play, he be touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder, unless some part of his person is touching a base he is entitled to occupy; Provided, the ball be held by the Fielder after touching him.

Sec. 10. The Base Runner in running to first base may overrun said base without being put out for being off said base, after first touching it, provided he returns at once and retouches the base, after which he may be put out as at any other base. If, in overrunning First Base, he also attempts to run to Second Base, or, after passing the base, he turns to his left from the Foul Line, he shall forfeit such exemption from being put out.

Sec. 11. If, when a Fair or Foul Hit ball (other than a Foul Tip, as referred to in Rule 39) is legally caught by a Fielder, such ball is legally held by a Fielder on the base occupied by the Base Runner when such ball was struck (or the Base Runner be touched with the ball in the hands of a Fielder), before he retouches said base after such Fair or Foul Hit ball was so caught; Provided, that the Base Runner shall not be out in such case, if, after the ball was legally caught as above, it be delivered to the bat by the Pitcher, before the Fielder holds it on said base, or touches the Base Runner with it; but if the Base Runner, in attempting to reach a base, detaches it before being touched or forced out, he shall be declared safe.

Sec. 12. If, when a Batsman becomes a Base Runner, the First Base, or the First and Second Bases, or the First, Second and Third Bases be occupied, any Base Runner so occupying a base shall cease to be entitled to hold it, until any following Base Runner is put out and may be put out at the next base, or by being touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder, in the same manner as in running to First Base, at any time before any following Base Runner is put out.

Sec. 13. If a Fair Hit ball strikes him before touching the Fielder, and in such case no base shall be run unless forced by the Batsman becoming a Base Runner, and no run shall be scored, or any other Base Runner put out.

Sec. 14. If, when running to a base or forced to return to a base, he fails to touch the intervening base or bases, if any, in the order prescribed in Rule 47, he may be put out at the base he fails to touch, or being touched by the ball in the hands of a Fielder, in the same manner as in running to First Base; Provided, that the Base Runner shall not be out in such case if the ball be delivered to the bat by the Pitcher before the Fielder holds it on said base or touches the Base Runner with it.

Sec. 15. If, when the Umpire calls "Play," after any suspension of a game, he fails to return to and touch the base he occupied when "Time" was called before touching the next base; Provided, the Base Runner shall not be out in such case if the ball be delivered to the bat by the Pitcher before the Fielder holds it on said base or touches the Base Runner with it.

WHEN BATSMAN OR BASE RUNNER IS OUT.

RULE 52. The Umpire shall declare the Batsman or Base Runner out, without waiting for an appeal for such decision, in all cases where such player is put out in accordance with these Rules, except as provided in Rule 50, Sections 10 and 14.

COACHING RULES.

RULE 53. The Coacher shall be restricted to coaching the Base Runner only, and shall not be allowed to address any remarks except to the Base Runner, and then only in words of necessary direction; and shall not, by words, or signs, incite or try to incite the spectators to demonstrations; and shall not use language which will in any manner refer to or reflect upon a player of the opposite club, the Umpire or the spectators, and not more than one Coacher, who may be a player participating in the game or any other player under contract to and in the uniform of either club, shall be allowed at any one time, except that if base runners are occupying two or more of the bases, then the Captain and one player, or two players under contract to and in the uniform of either club may occupy the space between the Players' lines and the Captain's lines to coach base runners. To enforce the above, the Captain of the opposite side may call the attention of the Umpire to the offence, and thereupon the Umpire must order the illegal Coacher or Coachers to the bench, and if his order is not obeyed within one minute, the Umpire shall assess a fine of $5 each against the offending player or players, and upon a repetition of the offence, the offending player or players shall be debarred from further participation in the game, and shall leave the playing field forthwith.

THE SCORING OF RUNS.

RULE 54. One run shall be scored every time a Base Runner, after having legally touched the first three bases, shall touch the Home Base before three men are put out. (Exception.) If the third man is forced out, or is put out before reaching First Base, a run shall not be scored.

THE UMPIRE OR UMPIRES AND THEIR RESPECTIVE DUTIES.

RULE 55. No Umpire shall be changed during the progress of a championship game, except by reason of personal illness or injury incapacitating him for the discharge of his duties.

RULE 56. The Umpire is the representative of the League, and as such shall have power to enforce every section of the code of playing rules of the game; and he shall have power to order any Player, or Captain, or Manager to do or to omit to do any action that he may deem necessary to give force and effect to the laws of the game.

RULE 57. There shall be no appeal from any legal decision of the Umpire.

RULE 58. Under no circumstances shall any Player be allowed to dispute a decision by the Umpire in which only an error of judgment is involved; and no decision rendered by him shall be reversed, except it be plainly shown by the code of rules to have been illegal; and in such case the Captain alone shall be allowed to make the appeal for reversal.

RULE 59. Sec. 1. In all cases of violation of these Rules, by either a Player or Manager, the penalty for the first offence shall be a fine by the Umpire of $5, and for a second offence a prompt removal of the offender from the game or ground, followed by such period of suspension from actual service in the club as the President of the League may elect.

Sec. 2. The Umpire shall, within twelve hours after fining or removing a Player from the game, forward to the President a report of the action and the causes therefor.

Sec. 3. Immediately upon notification by the Umpire that a fine has been imposed upon any Manager, Captain or Player, the President shall notify the person so fined and also the club of which he is a member, and, in the event of the failure of the person so fined to pay to the Secretary of the League the amount of said fine within five days of notice, he shall be debarred from participating in any championship game or from sitting on a player's bench during the progress of a championship game, until such fine is paid.

Sec. 4. When the offence of the player debarred from the game is of a flagrant nature, such as the use of obscene language, or an assault upon a Player or Umpire, the Umpire shall, within four hours thereafter, notify the President of the League, giving full particulars.

Sec. 5. He shall also notify both Captains, before the game, and in the presence of each other, that all the playing rules will be impartially enforced, and that their failure to co-operate in such enforcement will result in their being fined and, perhaps, their removal from the game.

RULE 60. Before the commencement of a game the Umpire shall see that the Rules governing all the materials of the game are strictly observed. He shall ask the Captain of the Home Club whether there are any special ground rules to be enforced, and if there are, he shall see that they are duly enforced; Provided, they do not conflict with any of these rules.

RULE 61. The Umpire shall not only call "play" at the hour appointed for the beginning of the game, but also announce "game called" at its legal conclusion.

RULE 62. The Umpire shall suspend play for the following causes: First, if rain is falling so heavily as to oblige the spectators on the open field and open stands to seek shelter; in which case he shall note the time of suspension; and should rain fall continuously for thirty minutes thereafter, he shall terminate the game.

RULE 63. The Umpire shall suspend play in case of an accident to himself, or to a Player, which incapacitates him or them from service in the field; or in order to remove from the grounds any Player or spectator who has violated the rules.

RULE 64. In suspending play from any legal cause, the Umpire shall call "Time;" when he calls "Time" the play shall be suspended until he calls "Play" again, and during the interim no Player shall be put out, base be run or run be scored. "Time" shall not be called by the Umpire until the ball is held by the Pitcher standing in his position.

RULE 65. The Umpire shall call and count as "a ball" any unfair ball delivered by the Pitcher to the Batsman, but not before such ball has passed the line of the Home Base. He shall also call and count as a "strike" any fairly delivered ball which passes over any portion of the Home Base, and within the Batsman's legal range as defined in Rule 43, which is not struck at by the Batsman, or a foul tip which is caught by the Catcher, standing within the lines of his position, or which, after being struck at and not hit, strikes the person of the Batsman; or when the ball is purposely hit foul by the Batsman, or when the ball is bunted foul by the Batsman.

RULE 66. If but one Umpire is assigned, his duties and powers shall be that of both the Umpire and the Assistant Umpire, and he shall be permitted to occupy such positions on the field as will best enable him to discharge his duties.

FIELD RULES.

RULE 67. No person shall be allowed upon any part of the field during the progress of a game, in addition to the Players in uniform, the Manager of each side and the Umpire; except such officers of the law as may be present in uniform, and such officials of the Home Club as may be necessary to preserve the peace.

RULE 68. No Manager, Captain or Player shall address the spectators during the progress of a game, except in case of necessary explanation.

RULE 69. Every Club shall furnish sufficient police force upon its own grounds to preserve order, and in the event of a crowd entering the field during the progress of a game, and interfering with the play in any manner, the Visiting Club may refuse to play further until the field be cleared. If the ground be not cleared within fifteen minutes thereafter, the Visiting Club may claim and shall be entitled to the game, by a score of nine runs to none (no matter what number of innings has been played).

GENERAL DEFINITIONS.

RULE 70. "Play" is the order of the Umpire to begin the game, or to resume play after its suspension.

RULE 71. "Time" is the order of the Umpire to suspend play. Such suspension must not extend beyond the day of the game.

RULE 72. "Game" is the announcement by the Umpire that the game is terminated.

RULE 73. "An Inning" is the term at bat of the nine Players representing a Club in a game, and is completed when three of such Players have been put out, as provided in these Rules.

RULE 74. "A Time at Bat" is the term at bat of a Batsman. It begins when he takes his position, and continues until he is put out or becomes a Base Runner; except when, because of being hit by a pitched ball, or in case of an illegal delivery by the Pitcher, or in case of a sacrifice hit purposely made to the infield which, not being a base hit, advances a Base Runner without resulting in a put-out, except to the Batsman, as in Rule 45.

RULE 75. "Legal" or "Legally" signifies as required by these Rules.

SCORING.

RULE 76. In order to promote Uniformity in Scoring Championship Games the following instructions, suggestions, and definitions are made for the benefit of scorers, and they are required to make all scores in accordance therewith.

BATTING.

Sec. 1. The first item in the tabulated score after the Player's name and position shall be the number of times he has been at bat during the game. No time at bat shall be scored if the Batsman be hit by a pitched ball while standing in his position, and after trying to avoid being so hit—or in case of the Pitcher's illegal delivery of the ball to the bat, which gives the Batsman his base, or when he intentionally hits the ball to the field, purposely to be put out, or if he is given First Base on called balls.

Sec. 2. In the second column should be set down the runs made by each Player.

Sec. 3. In the third column should be placed the First Base hits made by each Player. A base hit should be scored in the following cases :

When the ball from the bat strikes the ground within the foul lines and out of reach of the Fielders.

When a hit ball is partially or wholly stopped by a Fielder in motion, but such Player cannot recover himself in time to handle the ball before the striker reaches First Base.

When a ball is hit with such force to an Infielder that he cannot handle it in time to put out the Batsman. (In case of doubt over this class of hits, score a base hit, and exempt the Fielder from the charge of an error.)

When a ball is hit so slowly toward a Fielder that he cannot handle it in time to put out the Batsman.

That in all cases where a Base Runner is retired by being hit by a batted ball, the Batsman should be credited with a base hit.

When a batted ball hits the person or clothing of the Umpire, as defined in Rule 48, Sec. 5. In no case shall a base hit be scored when a Base Runner has been forced out by the play.

Sec. 4. In the fourth column shall be placed the Sacrifice Hits, which shall be credited to the Batsman, who, when no one is out, or when but one man is out, advances a Runner a base by a Bunt Hit, which results in putting out the Batsman, or would so result if the ball was handled without error.

FIELDING.

Sec. 5. The number of opponents put out by each Player shall be set down in the fifth column. Where a Batsman is given out by the Umpire for a foul strike, or where the Batsman fails to bat in proper order, the put-out shall be scored to the Catcher. In all cases of out for interference, running out of line, or infield fly dropped, the "out" should be credited to the Player who would have made the play, but for the action of the Base Runner or Batsman.

Sec. 6. The number of times the Player assists shall be set down in the sixth column. An assist should be given to each Player who handles the ball in assisting a run-out or other play of the kind.

An assist should be given to a Player who makes a play in time to put a Runner out, even if the Player who could complete the play fails, through no fault of the Player assisting.

And generally an assist should be given to each Player who handles or assists in any manner in handling the ball from the time it leaves the bat until it reaches the Player who makes the put-out, or in case of a thrown ball, to each Player who throws or handles it cleanly, and in such a way that a put-out results, or would result if no error were made by the receiver.

Assists should be credited to every Player who handles the ball in the play which results in a Base Runner being called "out" for interference or for running out of line.

ERRORS.

Sec. 7. An error shall be given in the seventh column for each misplay which allows the Striker or Base Runner to make one or more bases when perfect play would have insured his being put out, except that "wild pitches," "bases on balls," bases on the Batsman being struck by a "pitched ball," or in case of illegal pitched balls, balks and passed balls, all of which comprised battery errors, shall not be included in said column. In scoring errors of batted balls see Section 3 of this Rule.

An error shall not be scored against the Catcher for a wild throw to prevent a stolen base, unless the Base Runner advances an extra base because of the error.

No error shall be scored against an Infielder who attempts to complete a double play,, unless the throw is so wild that an additional base is gained.

STOLEN BASES.

Sec. 8. A stolen base shall be credited to the Base Runner whenever he reaches the base he attempts to steal unaided by a fielding or by a battery error, or a hit by the Batsman.

THE SUMMARY.

RULE 77. The Summary shall contain :

Sec. 1. The score made in each inning of the game.

Sec. 2. The number of bases stolen by each Player.

Sec. 3. The number of two-base hits made by each Player.

Sec. 4. The number of three-base hits made by each Player.

Sec. 5. The number of home runs made by each Player.

Sec. 6. The number of double and triple plays made by each side, and the names of the Players assisting in the same.

Sec. 7. The number of innings each Pitcher pitched in.

Sec. 8. The number of base hits made off each Pitcher.

Sec. 9. The number of times the Pitcher strikes out the opposing Batsmen.

Sec. 10. The number of times the Pitcher gives bases on balls.

Sec. 11. The number of wild pitches charged to the Pitcher.

Sec. 12. The number of times the Pitcher hits Batsman with pitched ball.

Sec. 13. The number of passed balls by each Catcher.

Sec. 14. The time of the game.

Sec. 15. The name of the Umpire.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN!!

1. THE ART OF CURVE PITCHING.
2. THE ART OF BATTING.
3. THE ART OF ZIGZAG CURVE PITCHING.
4. THE ART OF BASE RUNNING.
5. BASE BALL AND HOW TO PLAY IT.

The first four of these books are too well known to require detailed description. They are acknowledged by all to be the best special treatises on base ball ever issued. Over 50,000 copies sold to date. They are plain, practical and scientific, and you can learn more from them in two hours of careful study than you can from field practice in two years. But as valuable as they are, No. 5 is worth more than all of them put together. This is a much later work of 64 large pages, covering every department of base ball and is warranted to be the best and most complete treatise on the game ever written. It contains special chapters for umpires, captains, etc., and also tells how to become a professional. The chapter on Pitching is the very latest, and contains full directions for throwing three special curves. This chapter alone is worth more than the price of the book. Price of Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, 15 cents each—the four at one time for 50 cents in cash or 55 cents in stamps. Price of No. 5, 25 cents in cash or 30 cents in stamps—all by mail, postpaid.

THE MAGIC BASE BALL CURVER!! This little mechanical device is the greatest invention in base ball since the discovery of the "curve," as thousands who have used it can testify. The pitcher who uses one can strike out the batsmen about as fast as they can take their places. 21 men struck out in 9 innings is its record. It is so small that the batsmen cannot see it, and they all wonder where those awful curves come from. With it an amateur, with a little practice, can beat a professional. Price by mail, only 25c., two for 40c., three for 50c. If stamps are sent, 5c. additional in either case.

CAPTAIN'S BADGE! This is a beautiful little badge for the use of captains. It is nickel-plated, with the word "Captain" in raised letters upon it. Team captains should get one without fail. Price only 25 cents in cash, or 30 cents in stamps.

PREMIUM OFFER! Any one purchasing direct from me 75 cents' worth of these goods at one time may select any one of the above named articles free as a premium. No goods exchanged. Address,
